PARIS, Feb. 11.—The French Government is extremely desirous that the leaders in the next American Administration shall become more familiar with the French point of view in international affairs than, they fear, President-elect Harding and his lieutenants are now.

What the French are most anxious for Americans to realize is that without American aid and sympathy the reparations problem and other problems which disturb the peace of Europe cannot be settled. They regret the refusal of America to aid in the allied negotiations, while at the same time American accord is so important in the present situation, the dangers of which are momentarily springing into view.

Within the last two days Premier Briand has sent several notes to Ambassador Jusserand at Washington instructing him to take action to present the allied indemnity proposal in a more favorable light. Without American help Germany cannot be made to pay up and under the encouragement which the Germans would get from a separate treaty with America, which might weaken important provisions of the Versailles Treaty, now the law of European nations, France fears new and disturbing difficulties.

Urge Sending Special Envoy.

This situation has given rise in many circles in Paris to a demand that France send an Extraordinary Ambassador to America to try to compromise the interests of the two countries on certain international policies. It has even been suggested that President Millerand cross the Atlantic for this purpose. Various other names have been mentioned for the proposed mission, which would be rather popular than strictly diplomatic. Some of his friends have suggested that ex-Premier Clemenceau, who speaks English and is popular in America, would be the right man.

The Paris Midi today refers to a Paris dispatch to THE NEW YORK TIMES conveying the view that President-elect Harding should understand that England and France cannot, at least for years to come, give up the League of Nations.

"That," says the Midi, "is language which Americans should understand. It is truth. But unfortunately such a warning seems to have no effect. Senator Lodge persists in wishing the death of the Treaty of Versailles. The right wing of the Republican Party believes that it can commit the country to that political heresy of a separate peace with Germany. The moderates appear to hesitate. Mr. Harding himself appears not to know what he will do.

"America must know what Europe thinks. Here every one seems to take it for granted that all Americans know that the Seine runs through Paris, that England is on an island, and that the Germans have hard heads. But that is not the case. Neither is it true that many Frenchmen know the distance which separates Springfield, Mass., from Springfield, Ill. The two continents do not know each other.

"Today M. Jusserand is almost alone to fight for us against German propaganda. And that is why, after so many proofs of friendship, one is afraid of waking up some morning and learning that America has hit us on the nose with a rock."

American Aid on Credits Wanted.

The Petit Parisien today pleads for an effort to bring French opinion to the notice of the new Administration and of the American people.

"Soon America is going to wake up," writes Philippe Millet, "and what is she going to do? We are lamentably ignorant. And this should not be. The accord of Paris runs the risk of being a dead letter if the United States refuses to facilitate the credit operations without which we cannot use the future payments by Germany—indeed, the whole execution of the Treaty of Versailles is in the balance. It becomes every day more apparent that the operation of this treaty will become truly difficult if America persists in refusing to ratify the treaty, which was in great part her work."

M. Millet then argues that France should find ways to appeal more strongly to the American people.

"Not only the great public, but the statesmen, the future members of the new Administration," he proceeds, "seem not to know what we think, and in a certain measure they hesitate as to what plan to follow. Leaving Washington recently, Sir Auckland Geddes said: 'I have not the least idea what the policy of the future Administration will be,' and so now is the time to let ourselves be heard.

"In the first place, it is necessary to make America understand that France cannot think of turning her back on the League of Nations, the covenant of

Shallow-Minded Visitor Reminds Wilson of Bungalow

"That man," said the President, "is a simple bungalow. He has no upper story whatever."

SINN FEIN FORCES SHOW MORE FIGHT

PROPAGANDA CHIEF CAUGHT

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DUBLIN, Feb. 11.—"The campaign of outrages against forces of the Crown continues with intensity." This sentence in the weekly survey of conditions issued by Dublin Castle for last week, accompanied as it is by the statement that of the thirty-five casualties those of the police especially show a remarkably high percentage of mortality, discloses the deadliness of this guerrilla warfare.

Up to date the casualties to the Crown forces have been: Police, 224 killed, 836 wounded; military, 57 killed, 143 wounded. Reference to casualties during the recent war shows a much higher percentage of wounded.

In view of such incidents, deductions based on premises of any weakening in the attitude of the rebels would be untrustworthy.

In the south and southwest particularly, notwithstanding the imposition of martial law, with its extreme penalties, the Irisen Republican army recently has displayed capacity for quick and effective organization of a coup, which argues the reverse of a moribund association.

Alleged spies are frequently summarily dealt with, and at Clogheen, near Clonakilty, in County Cork, only today, a laborer named Robert Eady was found dear in a field some distance from his house with a placard pinned on his back and inscribed: "Spies and informers, beware."

Removed from his house in bare feet by men at midnight, the unfortunate man was shot in the back and head.

An airplane which made a forced landing at Ballinamina, near Kilfinane, County Limerick, was burned yesterday afternoon by local armed Republicans, who speedily appeared on the scene. Observer Mackay is missing. It appears that the pilot went for assistance, and on return found the machine in flames. There is no trace of Mackay, whom he had left standing by.

Extensive rounding-up operations against rebel parties believed to be scattered in the wild district of the Dingle Peninsula, are reported in telegrams from Tralee as being in progress. As was the case when a large portion of Dublin was invested, the sections being dealt with are entirely isolated, and no persons permitted to leave or enter. Horses were commandeered in Tralee yestrday to facilitate the work of the military and the police. The desolate and mountainous peninsula offers excellent cover and protection for fugitives, and the task of the Crown forces is admittedly difficult."

Desmond Fitzgerald, M. P., Minister of Propaganda for the Dail Eireann, was arrested tonight. Fitzgerald has been on the run for some time past. He was the inspiring force behind the Sinn Fein bulletin, the Republican typewritten organ which, notwithstanding efforts of the authorities to locate its office of publication with a view to suppression, continues to appear with regularity. On several occasions Fitzgerald narrowly escaped capture.

HUGHES TO CONFER WITH HARDING ON DIPLOMATIC POSTS

Expected Also to Discuss Possible Appointments of Assistants in State Department.

HILL AND FLETCHER URGED

CABINET TALK SLACKENS

Special to The New York Times.

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., Feb. 11.—Mr. Harding's announcement today that Charles Evans Hughes will be here next week for a conference indicates that the President-elect is about ready to close his Cabinet books and give his attention to diplomatic appointments. Although no formal invitation to Mr. Hughes to become the next Secretary of State has been made public, Mr. Harding, when asked by newspaper correspondents today concerning the significance of the approaching Hughes visit, replied with a dry smile:

"It will be safe speculation whether I will or will not invite Mr. Hughes to enter the Cabinet."

In addition to going over the list of candidates for diplomatic posts, it is thought that the President-elect will ask Mr. Hughes's advice as to his associates in the State Department. Two names have been mentioned frequently in connection with the important office of Under Secretary of State, and for both men Mr. Harding has high regard. These are Dr. David Jayne Hill and Henry P. Fletcher, former Ambassador to Mexico and one of the guests accompanying Mr. Harding on his recent houseboat cruise along the Florida east coast.

In view of the President-elect's often-expressed intention of seeking closer relations with Latin America by raising the standard of American diplomats to the southern republics, Mr. Harding has been urged to draw on Mr. Fletcher's intimate acquaintance with Spanish-American countries by appointing him Under Secretary of State. Mr. Fletcher represented this country in Chile and Mexico and has traveled extensively in South America. He has known Mr. Harding for several years, but during the two weeks' cruise on Senator Frelinghuysen's houseboat this acquaintance has ripened into friendship. On several trying occasions during the cruise, when Mr. Harding was a target for office seekers and persistent self-appointed "reception committees," Mr. Fletcher, by a combination of tact and pointed frankness, succeeded in steering away those who would interrupt the President-elect's vacation. It is understood that Mr. Fletcher is desirous of a European appointment.

Friends of Dr. Hill Active.

The suggestion that Dr. Hill be selected Under Secretary of State comes after the abandonment of the boom for him as head of the department. The circle of Dr. Hill's backers appears to have broadened since Senate irreconcilables were boosting him for Secretary of State last November.

In behalf of Dr. Hill it is urged that Mr. Hughes, unfamiliar with diplomatic routine and precedent, will need an Under Secretary capable of assisting him on these points. It is pointed out that in Washington there are more embassies than in London, and that foreign diplomats here are so numerous it is a physical impossibility for the Secretary of State to give as much time as is necessary for interviews with them. Relations between the State Department and embassies and legations would be facilitated and improved, it is urged, through the appointment of an Under Secretary of State with intimate knowledge of international affairs, and, preferably, one who has served before

French See German Propaganda Here In Protest on Blacks; None Now on Rhine

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 11.—The French learn with pained surprise from their newspapers today that a mass meeting in Madison Square Garden is being planned to protest against the presence of French black troops on the Rhine. The pained surprise is based on the fact that there are no French black troops on the Rhine. They were withdrawn last June, and half sent to Africa and half to Syria to join General Gouraud's army.

In their dispatches the French papers make a hero of Colonel Galbraith, head of the American legion, for telling von Mach, organizer of the meeting, to get out when he sought Galbraith's aid in his project. But what worries the French is that German propaganda can go so far in New York as to organize such a meeting for such a purpose.

After the armistice the French sent to the Rhine in their forces of occupation some four regiments of Senegalese troops, who are black beyond peradventure. It is against these troops that most German complaints were made. In all their propaganda against the French pictures of Senegalese were used. Because of the impression produced on other countries the French War Department named a commission to investigate the charges against the French non-European troops. There were 227 complaints of which 72 were maintained, 96 doubtful and 59 unfounded. Yet to disarm criticism the French withdrew the Senegalese.

There remain several regiments of Moroccans on the Rhine, but the War Department states the behavior of these troops is fully up to standard. The Moroccans completed one of the most famous shock divisions of the French Army and were put between the First and Second American divisions in the July 18 attack south of Soissons, which turned the tide of the war.

The French War Department say the Moroccans will be kept on the Rhine. Officials of the French Government say they hope American public opinion will not allow itself to be misled about the personnel of the French troops in the occupied territory.

PARIS, Feb. 11 (Associated Press).—The Foreign Office announced today that only 227 complaints were filed against all the French Colonial troops in Germany, including the negroes withdrawn last June, as well as the Algerians and Arabs. These troops spent the equivalent of 10,050,000 days on duty in Germany.

Of the 227 complaints, the announcement said, 72 cases were proved, 96 were doubtful and 59 unfounded. The 72 proved cases resulted in one imprisonment for life, 7 suspended sentences, 28 imprisonments, 23 subjections to military discipline and the dropping of 13 cases. Nine cases of attacks on women were established, acording to the announcement.

TOKIO, Feb. 11—Five American bluejackets were fired at by unknown persons in Vladivostok at 11 o'clock Tuesday night, one of them being wounded, says the Asahi Shimbun's Vladivostok correspondent today.

The Americans, reinforced by Russian policemen, arrested three Russian officers formerly under the late General Kappel, once commander of the western armies of the Omsk Government, the correspondent adds.

The impression in Vladivostok, according to the correspondent, is that the attack was arranged by communists with the object of straining relations between Japan and the United States.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—The attack on five American bluejackets at Vladivostok Tuesday night, as announced by the Asahi Shimbun of Tokio, had not been reported tonight to the Navy Department. In the absence of an official report department officials refused comment.

ALL AGENCIES JOIN IN FIGHT ON TYPHUS

RIGID INSPECTION PLANNED

Steamship Companies Warned —Health Department Orders 100 New Inspectors.

A medical alliance to prevent immigrants infected with typhus or any other serious disease from landing in this country was completed yesterday by the United States Public Health Service, the City Health Department and the State medical officers at the Quarantine station.

These agencies, through all their facilities for inspection, will co-operate to prevent any immigrant from landing in this country until he, with all baggage, has been put through a delousing plant and submitted to a series of stringent medical inspections. The health officers of all these agencies served notice on steamship companies yesterday that punishment to the fullest extent of the law would be meted out to those evading any of the provisions.

Resurrecting from the Sanitary Codes of the State a law passed in 1863, when typhus and other serious diseases threatened the city, Dr. Royal S. Copeland, Health Commissioner, announced yesterday that no ship from a foreign port would be permitted to come within 300 yards of a pier in this city until the proper permit had been issued by the Health Department of the city after stringent inspection. This will add the inspection of city health officials to that made by State and Federal authorities at the Quarantine station in New York Bay. The provisions of the law have not been enforced in late years.

Dr. Copeland's measures for protecting the city against any possible cases of typhus among immigrants were approved in detail yesterday by Dr. Hugh S. Cumming, Surgeon General of the United States Public Health Service, with whom the city Health Commissioner consulted for half an hour on the telephone. Dr. Cumming told of the work that had been done in Washington to prevent the landing of immigrants infected with typhus and informed Dr. Copeland that a realignment of Public Health officials was being made in foreign countries to prevent suspected immigrants and unclean ships from leaving foreign ports.

Hoboken Joins in Fight.

The police boat John F. Hylan yesterday started a patrol of the three vessels held at Quarantine because typhus cases had been found among passengers, and today will resume the duty of making sure that no foreign ship proceeds to a pier anywhere in this city without the official permission of the City Health Department. Health officials at Hoboken also took steps yesterday to co-operate in this rigid inspection.

Reinforcements to the Public Health Service physicians already at work in this city were started from Boston and Washington last night by order of Dr. Cumming, and at least 100 Inspectors will be standing at the city gates tomorrow to see that no immigrant lands without a clean bill of health.

Dr. Cumming also informed the Health Commissioner here that he had ordered Public Health officials in Europe to hurry to the typhus areas and to cities whence these typhus cases took ship, and to report conditions by cable. Several of these experts were ordered to Triest, known as one of the danger spots. He said that American Consuls in Europe also had been instructed to cause a close inspection to be made of every ship sailing with immigrants, and to refuse bills of health to ships that did not meet the standards of cleanliness.

Although these measures fall short of Dr. Copeland's plea to the President to stop all immigration from disease-infected areas, it is the opinion of public health officials that they will be adequate to prevent any disease from becoming a scourge in this country. Health Commissioner Copeland said that he was greatly disappointed that the President had not placed the embargo on immigration, but that he believed the same result would be accomplished, at least in some measure, by the examination at foreign ports under the supervision of American consuls.

Consuls Enjoined to Vigilance.

"The Public Health Service has been taking necessary steps to prevent the introduction of epidemic diseases from abroad," said a telegram to Health Commissioner Copeland by Joseph Tumulty, secretary to President Wilson. "At the request of the Treasury Department, the Secretary of State recently issued instructions to consular agents to withhold bills of health from vessels sailing to the United States unless they shall have complied with the quarantine regulations of this Government. Fourteen medical officers of the Public Health Service are now stationed at important points abroad and additional officers are being selected.

STOPS PAYMENT ON NO. DAKOTA CHECKS

STATE BANK AFTER FUNDS

Special to The New York Times.

BISMARCK, N. D., Feb. 11.—Developments came fast today in North Dakota's State banking tangle.

Golden Valley County has garnisheed deposits of the Bank of North Dakota in all banks in the county on the ground that it cannot otherwise collect what it has coming from the State.

The State Industrial Commission has ordered payment stopped on all checks drawn by the State Treasurer in payment of hail warrants and for issuance of funds to counties, townships and cities, and on all checks drawn by township Treasurers, except those for the support of educational, charitable and penal institutions.

The Industrial Commission has ordered the Bank of North Dakota to send out collectors to force payment by commercial banks of all money due the State Bank from these banks. The order is said to threaten 200 banks with difficulties.

As a result of the commission's drastic orders a special State convention of the Independent Voters' Association met today to consider steaps for the recall of Governor Lynn J. Frazier and State Treasurer William Lempke, who are members of the commission, as well as several other State officers.

The order stopping payment on checks makes a special exception of those of County Treasures who are now depositing all incoming funds in the Bank of North Dakota.

The order to the Bank of North Dakota to send out collectors to force immediate payment of money due from commercial banks directs the collectors to report back to the State Bank Examiner in case the banks are unable to pay the State Bank Examiner has authority to suspend or close banks when he considers them in a doubtful condition.

The amount due from the State banks was placed at $1,250,000. Officials said that these same banks helds loans from Minneapolis banks, and deposits of money loaned country elevators by Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce firms, that would total more than five times the amount due the Bank of North Dakota, but, it was pointed out, that the present crisis would not embarrass the Minneapolis institutions, as the loans were all protected by ample security.

The Proposed Recall.

Announcement by one of the independents regarding the proposed recall election today said:

"Revalations brought to light by the House Committee investigating the Bank of North Dakota and other State industries threaten to bring things to a climax.

"The obstructions put in the committee's way by Governor Frazier, Attorney General Lempke and Cimmissioner J. N. Hagen, when the committee was attempting to suppress gross irregularities and misuse of public monies have caused consideration of the necessity of bringing about an immediate adjournment of the Legislature before the appropriations have been voted for the next biennum.

"There are several who are suggesting thta the House should adopt a resolution to adjourn pending a recall. In that connection it is suggested that an extra session be called to appropriate budget money before July 1."

Recall, it is agreed, should be the last recourse. All members of the Industrial Commission, Frazier, Lempke, Hagen; three members of the Supreme Court, Cheif Justice J. E. Robinson, R. H. Grace and H. A. Bronson, all Non-Partisans, are mentioned. Dr. E. F. Ladd, United States Senator-elect, has also been mentioned in the present recall.

The State Industrial Commission in explaining its new order declared it had been forced to take this step by the opposition, and, in order to protect the Bank of North Dakota and the State's public funds, the Commissioners say they cannot get the money needed at present. The checks on which they refuse payment will be registered and a record in order kept and interest will be paid for the use of this money.

The resolution, explaining the reason for this drastic action, reads:

"The private banks in the majority of instances never been ale to pay the Bank of North Dakota, but have failed, neglected and refused to pay such funds, giving for their reasons poor crop conditions and the failure of people to meet their obligations.

"The Bank of North Dakota endeavored to be as lenient as possible with the banking interests in forcing payment of obligations. Private banking institutions, however, have charged that the Bank of North Dakota was embarrassed and in financial straits when,

SAYS SLAIN BANDIT WAS 'STOOL PIGEON' IN WHITMAN INQUIRY

Frank Walsh, bandit, one of the two men killed when a truck with twenty-five barrels of whisky was waylaid near Monmouth Junction, N. J., on Thursday night, was a "stool pigeon" for the Whitman investigation, according to Assistant District Attorney James F. Smith.

Ex-Governor Charles S. Whitman said yesterday that he had talked several days ago to Walsh and had placed him on the list of witnesses to be called before the Grand Jury later. Mr. Smith said that he was using Walsh as a "stool pigeon" in the meantime. He said he knew nothing about the manner of Walsh's death, but that he had received an anonymous telephone call indicating that Walsh had been murdered to prevent any further "squeal" on his part.

Walsh's contribution to the Whitman investigation had been the statement that certain members of the Automobile Squad were identified with a loosely organized gang of bandits who combined bootlegging and automobile stealing. He also furnished a list of "crooked" garages in New York City and New Jersey where stolen automobiles and illicit whisky were hidden.

Walsh, according to Mr. Smith, had said that he paid a share of the money received from rewards and the sale of stolen automobiles to a relative of a city Commissioner, who was said to have divided it with policemen.

Walsh's Examination Delayed.

Walsh was to have been called before the Grand Jury this week, but the flood of new evidence on other lines caused Mr. Whitman to change the program and postpone further presentation of cases regarding automobile graft for several days. Walsh was notified that he would not be called before the Grand Jury until Tuesday after next.

Walsh was shot in the eye, and, according to first account, he was shot by one of the men defending the twenty-five barrels of whisky from the bandits' attack. His body, however, was found several miles away from the scene of the hold-up, and it was reported yesterday that he was murdered by his former accomplices for becoming a "stool pigeon" to the Whitman inquiry.

The manner of Walsh's death resembles that of his former partner, Frederick P. Eckert, also a bootlegger and automobile thief. Eckert was found murdered in an automobile on Staten Island. The mystery in his death was never cleared, but it was reported that he had been assassinated because he was about to "squeal." According to detectives, he had threatened to betray grafting prohibition agents. Mr. Whitman recently made a statement linking Eckert with "automobile graft" in the Police Department.

"Walsh was the right-hand man of Eckert," said Mr. Smith yesterday. "He knew a lot about Eckert's death and about Eckert's connection with the Police Department. We found him a mine of information about automobile grafting and bootlegging in which policemen were implicated.

Told About Thieves' Scheme.

"Walsh was the man who told us about the scheme of automobile thieves for 'ageing' automobiles—that is, hiding them away for sixty days until the insurance had been paid and then bargaining with the insurance companies for a 'reward,' if they recovered them.

"We got in touch with Walsh originally when his name was mentioned before the Grand Jury by other witnesses. We made an appointment to see him and Governor Whitman and myself had a talk with him.

"I told him that he was in danger of being indicted, but offered him a chance to tell his story. He decided to play with us, instead of against us, and proved to be one of the best witnesses that we have found yet.

"His death, however, will not hamper us. He gave us the names of some of his accomplices, and we are getting confessions from them. Losing his testimony, however, gives us a setback in preparing the case against one policeman, but we will have enough evidence to indict and convict, nevertheless."

Information emanating from Department of Justice agents was that automobile thieves operating in New York not only had accomplices in the police automobile squad, but had good friends among officials in nearby New Jersey towns and cities, who helped them escape and aided them in handling stolen cars. One Chief of Police was said to have dealt in stolen cars. When asked about this Mr. Smith said:

Mr. Smith said that the first he knew of Walsh's death was when an unidentified man called him on the telephone at the District Attorney's office today.

"They bumped off Frank," the voice said.

"Who's Frank?" asked Mr. Smith.

"Frank Walsh," replied the voice. "He's the man who told you a lot about automobile stealing."

According to Mr. Smith, the informant

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 11.—The White Star Line has bought the German steamer Bismarck, the largest vessel in the world, from the Reparation Committee. The Bismarck will carry mails and passengers between Southampton, Cherbourg and New York.

The Bismarck, a vessel of 56,000 tons, was built at Hamburg for the Hamburg-American Line. Last Fall it was reported that fire had badly damaged the vessel while lying at her dock in Hamburg. The Bismarck was to have been delivered to the Allies under the terms of the Peace Treaty. The Bismarck is nearly twice the size of the Lusitania, which was 32,000 tons.

RAIL UNIONS WOULD TAKE WAGE CHANGES

ROAD EXECUTIVES TO MEET

But Their Chairman Announces That They Do Not Plan a General Wage Reduction.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Feb. 11.—Railroad labor announced tonight that it stands ready to make changes in wages, rules and working conditions, whenever such changes are shown to be "just and reasonable." B. M. Jewell, President of the Railway Employes Department, American Federation of Labor, claiming to represent 1,500,000 railroad workers, declared that Thursday's decision of the Labor Board refusing to abrogate the national working agreements, "points the way to permanent peace" in the railroad industry. He said it illuminates the principle of "collective bargaining."

"Collective bargaining," he said, "means that both sides shall be represented by representatives of their own choosing, neither side interfering with or dictating to the other in the selection of its representatives. When the workers choose to be represented by their duly constituted unions and union officials, collective bargaining means bargaining on the basis of union recognition. Therein lies the way to permanent peace in the railroad industry, and we believe it to be the way clearly indicated by the Railroad Labor Board's decision which adheres so rigidly to the true collective bargaining principle.

"Railway workers seek no special privilege. They are entitled to a square deal and they should not be expected to accept less. Through their organizations they are ready at all times to make changes in wages, rules, working agreements, &c., when such changes are found to be just and reasonable. Only the fundamental principles of industrial relations are immutable; only fundamental rights are inalienable.

For Negotiation, Not Warfare.

"Negotiation, and not warfare, is the spirit of the railway workers, and happily we have a law and a tribunal that gives promise of making it possible to translate that spirit into performance."

The railway executives will meet next Friday at the Drake Hotel, in this city, to plan methods for bringing the question of wage reductions for unskilled labor before the board. A general reduction in wages of railway employes is not being considered by the Association of Railway Executives, which represents 90 per cent. of the mileage of the country, according to Thomas DeWitt Cuyler, Chairman. In a statement tonight he denied reports that a general reduction was planned.

The procedure now contemplated is for various roads to call conferences with their unskilled employes to negotiate for wage cuts, and thus bring the question before the Labor Board in the shape of definite controversies between the men and the executives. In reference to Friday's conference Mr. Cuyler says:

"This meeting has been called to give the executives opportunity to receive a report from its Labor Committee, of which General W. W. Atterbury is Chairman, regarding developments since the last general meeting of the association.

"The subject of a general reduction of railway wages has not been considered by the association or its Labor Committee, and will not be the subject of consideration at the meeting Feb. 18.

To Consider Steps to Be Taken.

"The Railroad Labor Board in its decision yesterday held that it could not take any action on the Labor Committee's suggestion that a reduction be made at once in the wages of unskilled labor because conferences had not been held and a controversy developed between the employes and the railways which would enable the board legally to take jurisdiction of the subject. It is expected that consideration will be given at the meeting Feb. 18 as to what steps should be taken by the individual railways to get the question of a revision of the wages of unskilled labor properly and legally before the board."

Meanwhile labor is preparing to file protests with the Labor Board against such roads as are said to have ordered wage reductions. One petition charges the St. Louis & Southwestern with cutting the wages of maintenance of way employes, but at St. Louis today officials of the road announced they knew of no such wage reduction.

Executive sessions took up the time of the board today. No action was taken on the request of Frank P. Walsh, attorney for the unions, that twenty-four financiers be subpoenaed tomorrow. Mr. Jewell is expected to inform the board when he will be ready to proceed with the presentation of the union side of the national agreements. Monday and Tuesday are expected to be devoted to the case of the Atlanta, Birmingham & Atlantic Railroad, which seeks permission to cut wages on the plea that it faces bankruptcy.

MILLER, STICKING TO TRANSIT PLAN, EXPLAINS DETAILS

FIRST FIX VALUE OF LINES

SCHEME FOR LOWER FARES

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 11.—All doubts as to whether or not Governor Miller has taken any backward step in relation to his transit program were cleared away today when a letter, containing an elaboration of his plan, which the Governor sent to General Oliver B. Bridgman in response to a request for light on his project, was made public at the Executive Chamber.

From the Governor's letter it appears that in drafting the New York City Transit bill, his plan to have a commission of three members, vested with every power the State can delegate, undertake the solution of the city's transit problem, had been adhered to in every respect. The New York City Administration will have a voice at every stage of the negotions preceding final settlement, but in the settlement itself, the Governor's commission alone will speak for the public.

It is made very clear in the Governor's letter that the commission alone will determine the rate of fares. At the same time, the missive conveys the impression that no immediate increase in fares is contemplated and that heroic measures will be adopted to avoid it at any time, even to the point of seeking an agreement whereby interest on bonds and dividends may be deferred for one or two years.

Predicts More Home Rule.

A feature of the letter is the Governor's contention that in its ultimate working out his plan would tend to give to the city a greater measure of what might be termed "home rule," at least in relation to its transit affairs, than it has enjoyed at any time.

The Governor proposes that the city shall have either representation on the Board of Directors of the one company that would take over operation of all the transit lines in the city, or else that jointly with the company, the city should form a board of control that would determine, broadly, the policy of operation.

The Governor told General Bridgman also that all his appointees on the proposed new commission would be New York City men, and added that when its task completed, it surrendered its powers of regulation to the proposed State Public Service Commission, the city would have two out of the five members of that body.

And, finally, when the Transit bill is presented to the Legislature next week it will be in complete accord with the Governor's special message on the transit evil and his remedies for it.

66 Broadway, New York City.

Mansion, Albany, New York.

My Dear Governor Miller: I have read with interest your message to the Legislature on the transit problem in our city and have followed the discussion that has appeared in the daily press. I am keenly alive to the fact that the present situation calls for drastic and immediate action.

From talks that I have had with people in all walks of life, I find that they are coming more and more to understand your message. Possibly if we had been prepared by a preliminary inquiry there might not have been so much unenlightened opposition at the start.

Personally, I find quite a few who have been rather hesitant about your program because they have no information with regard to the work the commission would be expected to undertake when it is appointed by you should the Legislature comply with your recommendation.

Would it be too much to ask you to send me a brief outline of what you expect the commission to undertake if appointed? I am sure it would be most helpful to me in determining my own attitude. Very respectfully,

OLIVER B. BRIDGMAN.

The Governor's Letter.

State of New York.
Albany.
Feb. 11, 1921.

My Dear General Bridgman:

I acknowledge yours of the 3d inst.

Doubtless a preliminary inquiry such as you suggest would have prepared the public mind for my message on the transit problem. Probably it would also have resulted in throwing the subject over to the next session of the Legislature.

No inquiry was needed to demonstrate the necessity of creating a tribunal competent to deal with the problem. The present condition is proof enough of that. As that is all we are now proposing to do, it did not appear to me to be wise to waste valuable time in a preliminary inquiry to ascertain what we already knew.

The city Administration has proposed a remedy for the present intolerable condition, namely, the establishment and operation by the city of bus lines, and has invoked the power of the State to enable that to be done.

It appeared to me to be wiser to delegate the power of the State to a competent tribunal to study the whole transit problem and to assign each method of transportation to its proper field, and it did not seem to me to be necessary to have a preliminary inquiry to ascertain whether the Board of Estimate was such a tribunal.

It is obviously necessary, first, to determine the facts; second, to formulate a plan, and, third, to put it into effect, and no one proposes to exclude the city from participation in any of these three steps. On the contrary, the bill now in course of preparation will expressly provide for the participation of the city both in the formulation of the plan and in the negotiations to put it into effect.

Undoubtedly there must be negotiations, but there should be no such interminable delay as attended the negotiations preceding the signing of the dual subway contracts. There need be no haggling with the companies over terms. It will be for the commission, when appointed, to decide upon just terms which the companies should not be permitted to dictate.

To give the commission the whip hand, which it undoubtedly must have, it will be necessary to clothe it with all the power which the State can give it. It is doubtful if a single company in New York could operate twenty-four hours under existing conditions if the regulatory powers of the State were exerted as they might be exerted, even now, in behalf of better service.

Details of the Miller Plan.

I am not suggesting the use of strong-arm methods, but only that just terms be formulated and enforced by proper authority. There should be no thought of confiscating capital actually invested in the public service. Security and stability of capital investment are essential to efficient and cheap service. On the other hand, the time is ripe to correct the errors of the past, and the companies must understand at the outset that just terms will necessarily exclude the perpetuation of such errors.

I am merely proposing the efficient exercise of State power now being inefficiently exercised. The prompt solution of the problem requires energy, decision and courage, and I know of but one way to bring those qualities to bear on its solution. The problem is no doubt complicated, but I have noticed that difficulties usually grow less as one approaches them.

The commission when appointed must be free to formulate a plan according to the facts as they shall ascertain them to be, and I do not wish any views of mine to interfere with the exercise of independent judgment by the commission.

However, I have no objection to giving you, as you request, an outline of a possible plan:

(1) The value of the physical property used in the public service, without reference to present capitalization, should be determined. The data for such valuation of many of the lines must already be in the possession of the present commission. It should not take long to make a valuation of the others.

(2) Eliminate all outstanding inter-company leases.

(3) Retire outstanding securities, except such underlying liens as cannot readily be retired, for which provision looking to eventual payment must be made.

(4) Vest in the city title to all lines not already owned by the city, free and clear of all incumbrances, except such underlying liens.

(5) Make a lease to a new company, which shall provide for amortization of the determined valuation and for adequate reserves for depreciation, contingencies and the like.

(6) Mortgage such lease to an amount approved by the commission, and issue stock and bonds not in excess of the valuations determined by the commission, in exchange for the securities retired.

7. To promote prompt reorganization and revamping of lines without assessing security holders, defer interest and dividends for one or two years, as might be determined by the commission, and at the end of such period prescribe a rate of fare sufficient to pay all charges provided for in the lease.

8. As an incentive to efficient management provision could be made for increased return on capital as fares are decreased, and a reduced return as they are increased.

9. Looking to the eventual transfer of general regulatory powers to the single Statewide Public Service Commission, provision could be made for a board of control, on which the city and the company should have proper representation. The alternative to that would be representation by the city on the Board of Directors of the company. The board of control plan is probably preferable, and that board might well have the powers of the present Transit Construction Commission.

10. As all approved charms will adequately be provided for under the plan, the provisions of the dual contracts for preferential payments could be eliminated and such other changes made as will fit these contracts into the plan, and as may appear to be in the public interest.

11. Provision for the imperative and immediate needs of the city for further transit facilities should be made promptly.

12. Determine what further relief, if any, can be given by legislation.

Results that Should Follow.

The above outline is suggested merely for the purpose of discussion. A readjustment of the present deplorable transit situation in New York City by any plan that may ultimately be decided upon should have these results:

1. To the public, a revamped and rehabilitated transit system that can and will give adequate service; assurance that the exploiting of the public for stock-jobbing and other purposes is really an evil of the past, and a new set-up that will insure efficient operation of the system at a fair return for service really and fully performed. This would mean the end of the present intolerable conditions which endanger the comfort, the health and even the life of the traveling public.

2. To the city, the ownership of the greatest transit system in the world; the freeing of its present frozen investment in the subways, so that approximately $250,000,000, including the amount for which the city is already obligated, will be released for new subways and extensions, schools and other badly needed municipal improvements, and adequate participation in, and control of, the new system.

3. To the investor, the full protection of the real values in the present transit systems, and the protection and stabilization of the new securities so as to render them an attractive field for investment.

The bill in process of preparation will provide for a transit commission of three to deal with transit in cities of 1,000,000 inhabitants and more. Of course, if the bill passes, I shall select citizens of New York as members of that commission. The bill will also provide for a State Public Service Commission of five, with jurisdiction over all other public utilities in the State.

In view of the extended jurisdiction proposed for the State Public Service Commission, it was found upon study to be necessary to make it a Statewide commission. Of course, the City of New York should have proper representation upon it, and, if the bill passes in the form proposed I shall select two members of that commission from the City of New York.

I trust the foregoing will give you the information desired.

In undertaking to outline a plan it must be understood that it is merely tentative and suggestive. I believe no attempt will be made in the proposed bill to tie the commission down to any plan or to go further than to prescribe a general course of procedure. It is probably premature for me even to outline a proposed plan, and I only do it to invite constructive criticism. Very sincerely yours,

NATHAN L. MILLER.

Governor Discusses His Solution.

Following the publication of the foregoing correspondence the Governor, now sufficiently recovered in health to be out of bed, at the Executive Mansion discussed his transit program with the newspaper correspondents, whom he received for the first time in ten days.

"Would the full grant of power over rates, regardless of franchise or contractual obligations, which you propose, apply only to your New York City commission, or would it apply alike to the State Public Service Commission that would exercise supervision over all public utilities outside of the city?" the Governor was asked.

"It would apply to the State Commission as well; the Public Service Commissions law will be amended to that effect," was the reply.

"The New York City Administration would have only advisory powers in connection with the negotiations to carry your New York City transit plan into effect?"

"I think it will be necessary for the new commission to have final say in the settlement."

"How can title in the transit lines the city does not already own be vested in it, if the city should fail to act favorably on that proposal?"

"If the companies were willing to have title vested and the city refused to accept, that is what you mean? Well, we have not reached that situation yet and I do not think it would be wise to discuss what might happen under the circumstances."

"But is there a way in which the city could be forced to give its consent?"

"I do not think so."

"Is there any reason why the city should not want to avail itself of the offer, except for the purpose of playing politics with this situation?"

"I do not see why the city should not accept."

"In connection with the physical valuation and taking over of the properties, would you resort to the courts and condemnation proceedings?"

Not Hard and Fast Plan.

"I do not think it would be well to tie the commission down to any plan, even by suggestion, at this time. That will be for the commission itself to determine upon inquiry. This plan that I have suggested is merely tentative, put out for the purpose of provoking discussion of the subject more than anything else. The bill will not contain any hard and fast plan for the commission to follow."

"In the matter of valuation, will pre-war values be taken as a basis, or would you take replacement value?"

"The valuation should be based on normal value. The fact that possession of the properties is sought for a public purpose, that they are not now earning anything, and that the public would suffer if the purpose of the plan was not accomplished—these are things that would have to be taken into consideration in fixing values. They are factors which the courts would be compelled to take cognizance of if the matter should come before them."

"Would you give the city equal representation on the proposed board of control?"

"Very likely the city would have more than equal representation, and the city, of course, would appoint its own representatives on the board. But that is a detail which would have to be worked out."

"You say in your letter that $250,000,000 subway bonds would be eliminated as offsets to the debt limit. Will you elaborate on that statement?"

"When the subways become self-sustaining, as we have the right to expect with the transit situation rehabilitated, the city could go before the Appellate Division and move for the release. The property, of course, would have to be self-sustaining, but that need not necessarily imply an increased fare. It might be brought about through reduction in the cost of operation. Economy and improvement in the methods of managements might even make a reduced fare possible and the subways still would earn enough to pay fixed charges. I have not undertaken either in my message or my letter to deal with the fare question, which I regard as purely incidental, except to suggest inducement for economical management and low fares."

"It has been suggested in reports which have been published that you have changed your mind and made compromises to placate sentiment in New York City, as for instances giving the City Administration a voice in the negotiations looking to a readjustment?"

"I never contemplated excluding the city from the negotiations. I have held that the city should not have a veto power in connection with fares, and I hold so now. I hope I am capable of changing my mind when conditions justify it. I have not consciously changed my mind in regard to this matter. I have seen no occasion to do so. Perhaps I did not make myself quite clear at first."

Has Held No Conferences.

"How long will it require to put this plan into effect?"

"I do not know how long. I should think it would require some months for the commission to get through. In any event, the commission need not go back to the Legislature for power. It will have all the powers that it needs and all that the State can delegate from the start."

"What assurance is there that the companies would be willing to transfer their properties to the city and to grant the concessions that the plan contemplates and to which reference is made in your letter to General Bridgman?"

"Well, I have a feeling that in the first place the situation is such that the companies would have to accept any just plan, because it would be better from their point of view than the present situation. In the second place because, if the State were to exercise its full regulatory power, the companies could not operate at all."

"In your proposal for a new company to take over all the transit companies, is it contemplated that the Interborough and the B. R. T. would bid for them or would the field be open to all?"

"Any one at all could bid. Competition would not hurt the city, as I see it."

The Governor said that in all probability the Transit bill would be presented to the Legislature next week. He has gone over a tentative draft of the measure and made some suggestions for changes which now are being incorporated in the bill.

"Have you talked with Chairman Samuel S. Koenig of the New York County Republican Committee, or any other politician from New York City, since the bill has been in course of preparation?" the Governor was asked.

"I have conferred with no one except the gentlemen who are drafting the bill, President pro tem. Lusk of the Senate, Speaker Machold of the Assembly and, I think, Senator Knight, Chairman of the Senate Committee on Public Service."

"Have the legislative leaders told you whether your transit program is likely to go through?"

"I have not asked them. That is a matter for the Legislature."

"As the plan stands the New York City Administration will have a voice in the negotiations, a chance to say whether it likes or does not like, approves or disapproves of the readjustment your commission proposes?"

"It will have just that."

While no reference was made to it in the interview, the city Administration in the end would hold the key to the situation because its sanction will be required to any financial arrangement that must be made to carry out in its finality the Governor's program.

JITNEY BUSES UPHELD.

Vice Chancellor Griffin Dismisses Suit to Stop Them.

The suit of the Public Service Railway Company of New Jersey to restrain the operation of "jitney" buses along its lines was dismissed yesterday by Vice Chancellor John Griffin in Jersey City. Suit was brought against thirty-six automobile owners who were doing a passenger business in Northern New Jersey, principally in Newark and Jersey City. The action against William Reinhardt of Newark was taken as a test case.

In his decision Vice Chancellor Griffin said:

"The right of the people to use the public highways of the State freely and without hindrance, subject only to proper police regulation, unless the Legislature should otherwise ordain, is unquestioned; and in the exercise of this right the people are not exercising a franchise. Thus persons complying with the Kates act do not acquire a franchise to use the public highway.

"It was not passed for the benefit of the street railways. The franchise of the complainant is as to its tracks and ways, and gives it the exclusive use thereof as against competing carriers in the manner indicated in Camden Horse Railroad Company vs. the Citizens Coach Company. It has no grant outside of the tracks and ways, and, therefore, when it seeks to enjoin competing carriers from using a highway in the manner declared lawful under the Camden Horse Railroad Company vs. Citizens Coach Company I feel bound to hold that it has no standing in this court to ask for injunctive relief."

REPUBLICANS SEEK TRANSIT SENTIMENT

County Speakers' Bureau Will Discuss Governor's Program on Monday Night.

PLAN NO DEFINITE ACTION

Travis H. Whitney, W. A. Prendergast and Ogden L. Mills Will Speak.

Governor Miller's traction program will be the topic for discussion at a meeting of the Speakers' Bureau of the New York County Committee at the Café Boulevard on Monday night, and there was considerable speculation yesterday as to whether this indicated that the local Republican organization was getting ready to back the Governor's plan.

Travis H. Whitney, ex-Public Service Commissioner; ex-Controller William A. Prendergast and Representative-elect Ogden L. Mills will speak. Mr. Whitney and Mr. Prendergast are regarded as supporters of the Governor's traction plan, and Mr. Prendergast has been advising the Governor on the New York City transit situation and is believed to be in line for appointment to the Governor's proposed transit commission.

It was explained both by Harold G. Arons, Chairman of the Speakers' Bureau, and Samuel S. Koenig, Chairman of the County Committee, that the meeting would not commit either the bureau or the County Committee to the Governor's program.

Mr. Arons, who will preside, said that at least one hundred Republicans who had enrolled as speakers for the coming city campaign would attend and that the transit situation had been chosen as the topic of discussion because of the realization that it was likely to be a leading issue. There will be discussion from the floor after the speeches.

So far the Republican organization of New York County, unlike that of Kings County, has taken no action to approve the Governor's traction plan. Another meeting of the Republican legislators from New York County will be held today, but it was said to be unlikely that any definite action would be taken. A minority at least of the legislators and their Assembly district leaders are believed to be opposed to the Governor's program, as originally outlined in his message.

MAYOR URGES VOTERS TO DEMAND BUS LAW

B. R. T. Receiver's Threat to Stop Bridge Cars Prompts Hylan to Seek Public Support on Bill.

Following the announcement of Lindley M. Garrison, receiver of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, that he would stop operation of the company's cars over the Williamsburg Bridge if the city began the operation of a municipal line, Mayor Hylan issued a statement yesterday urging residents of New York to write their State Senators and Assemblymen to vote for the bill giving the city power to establish bus lines. The Mayor asked how long the people of New York would submit to "threats" like that of Mr. Garrison, and declared that the "dangerous power" of the traction interests could be broken forever by the establishment of municipally owned and operated bus lines.

"The Board of Estimate and Apportionment and the Board of Aldermen, the duly elected representatives of the people, resolved that the local line on the Williamsburg Bridge, which is owned by the City of New York, be operated municipally," he said. "The bridges of the City of New York are the property of its citizens. The Commissioner of Plant and Structures, by resolution, was authorized and directed to municipally operate this line for the benefit of the traveling public. For this purpose $300,000 was appropriated.

"The receiver of the B. R. T., Mr. Garrison, not a resident of the City of New York, was appointed by a Federal Judge, and in substance states to the people of the City of New York: 'If you (the people) install anad operate your own cars over your own tracks, over your own bridge, we will withdraw our surface cars from your bridge.'

'How long will the people of this great city submit to such threats? The answer is in your hands. The Board of Estimate and Apportionment by unanimous vote authorized the presentation of a resolution to the Governor requesting that he give his support to a bill submitted on behalf of the city permitting the people of the city to own and operate its own bus service.

"The bus bill, introduced and now pending in the Legislature, will give to the City of New York the power to purchase and operate its own buses. You should write to the Senator and Assemblyman representing your district, urging the passage of the bus bill. The traction interests are alive and always well represented at Albany. The people will be equally well represented if they demand proper action on the part of the Assemblyman and Senator from their home district."

VOLK REPEATS B. R. T. ATTACK.

Says People Are Entitled to Know About U. S. Loan and Receivership.

Congressman Lester D. Volk of Brooklyn, who introduced a resolution last Monday in the House of Representatives calling for an investigation of the loan of approximately $17,000,000 to the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company by the War Finance Corporation, issued a statement last night repeating his assertion that he intended to find out the reason for the approval of the loan by Controller Charles L. Craig. Dr. Volk said that the B. R. T. in its application for the loan stated that it had a direct relation to the prosecution of the war, since it furnished passenger transportation to Fort Hamilton and many army, navy and munitions bases in Brooklyn, when in fact it was merely a holding company.

Congressman Volk, who has also introduced a resolution for an investigation of the appointment of a receiver for the B. R. T., asked if the appointment was made to break down the contract with the city and avoid the 5-cent fare provision or to avoid the consequences of the Malbone Street disaster. "The people are entitled to satisfactory answers to those questions," he said.

ETTINGER LOSES FIGHT TO RULE EXAMINATIONS

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 11.—William L. Ettinger, New York City Superintendent of Schools, has no jurisdiction over the examination of applicants for teaching positions requiring licenses, Frank B. Gilbert, acting State Commissioner of Education, decided today, in ending a controversy of many months' standing between the Superintendent and the Board of Examiners.

The dispute involved the power of Superintendent Ettinger over the Board of Examiners, the power of the Board of Education to determine by its by-laws the subjects and dates for teachers' examinations and the power of the Board of Superintendents to determine the passing mark and subjects generally of examinations to ascertain the professional and academic qualifications of teachers under the New York City School law.

Summarized, Commissioner Gilbert's conclusions read:

"1. The Superintendent of Schools has no jurisdiction over the examinations of applicants for teaching positions requiring licenses, which examinations include the preparation of questions, the rating of answers and such other investigations as may be necessary to ascertain the fitness of such applicants for licenses. He may not withhold licenses from persons who have been found, upon examination, to be qualified to receive such licenses and have been placed by the Board of Examiners upon eligible lists.

"Except as to such examinations and the preparation of eligible lists, the Board of Education and the Superintendent of Schools have the same jurisdiction and control over the Board of Examiners and its employes as they possess and exercise over other boards and bureaus within the educational system of the city school district.

"2. The Board of Education may not determine the subjects of examinations and the dates on which such examinations are to be held, and Subdivision 2 of Section 11 of the by-laws of the Board of Education, providing to this effect, is invalid. The Superintendent of Schools, in the exercise of his administrative functions, should determine the dates of examinations.

"3. The Board of Superintendents may determine the subjects generally of examinations, and the Board of Education should prescribe such subjects on the recommendation of the Board of Superintendents. The determination of the passing mark upon examinations enters directly into the determination of the fitness of applicants for licenses, and should be made by the Board of Examiners, subject to review as provided by law."

Commissioner Gilbert held that there seemed to be some basis for complaint that full opportunity of appeal was not given in cases where the Board of Examiners might have erred in the rating. It might become necessary, he said, under certain circumstances, to modify the rules of appeal in such cases.

FIRE ROUTS 200 FAMILIES.

First Avenue Blaze Confined to Mill and Homes Are Reoccupied.

About two hundred families were ordered from tenements in the vicinity of Thirtieth Street and First Avenue shortly before midnight last night because of a fire in the mill of the East Side Planing Company, at 510-514 First Avenue. Two alarms were sent in and the firemen, with Chief Kenlon in command, kept the blaze confined to the mill. After an hour's work the fire was under control and the people who had been driven from their homes were allowed to return.

The members of the New York Cycle Club an organization of men interested in fire fighting, were having their monthly meeting when they learned of the First Avenue blaze. Ten automobiles were obtained and the "fire bugs," as they are styled by the regular firemen, went to the fire in a body, headed by Dr. Harry M. Archer, an honorary chief of the department.

HARDING NOW TURNS TO FOREIGN POSTS

in the State Department. Dr. Hill's experience in the State Department under John Hay and as Ambassador to Germany, together with his recognition as an authority on international matters, his friends say, are eminent qualifications for this post. There is no information available here as to whether Dr. Hill would accept the office, but his friends declare that he could not decline if Mr. Harding drafted him for service.

There were no further developments today regarding the Cabinet situation. Since coming to Florida Mr. Harding has had considerable pressure brought upon him to appoint a Southern man to the Cabinet. Numerous candidates have been brought forward, but it is understood that the President-elect does not regard this effort as a concerted drive of Southern Republicans, but rather as activities of various parts of the South in behalf of certain prominent men in those localities.

Mrs. Harding Joins Husband.

Mr. Harding received several callers this morning, but made no further engagements for the rest of the day. Early this afternoon he played eighteen holes of golf, returning in time to meet Mrs. Harding, who arrived on an evening train from Washington, accompanied by Dr. C. E. Sawyer of Marion, the Harding family physician.

Charles G. Dawes, who is in Florida visiting relatives, will see the President-elect next week. Mr. Dawes's visit, it is understood, will be in the nature of a short call, and not in response to any invitation from Mr. Harding.

Señor Juan Riano, the Spanish Ambassador, called this morning to pay his respects to Mr. Harding. Among other visitors was John Barrett, former Director General of the Pan-American Union, who had an hour's conference with the President-elect.

"While I am not authorized in any way to quote the President-elect or interpret his views," Mr. Barrett said, "it is, I believe, permissible to state that he apparently looks with favor upon the following important points:

"First—The promotion, as the sure basis of practical Pan-Americanism of Pan-American commerce, which has grown from $300,000,000 to $3,000,000,000 in the last twenty years (my period of relationship to it) along lines mutually beneficial to the United States and Latin America.

Urges Trained Diplomats.

"Second—The appointment of Ambassadors and Ministers of the United States to Latin America of only men who will possess the highest fitness in ability, character and training, without regard to political influence.

"Third—The settlement of the principal problems in our Pan American relations, such as those with Mexico, Colombia, the Dominican Republic, Haiti, Nicaragua and Panama, on a basis of absolute justice and fairness to all concerned. Specifically, it can be said that he would appear to hope for the early ratification by the Senate of the Colombia Treaty, and for a comprehensive understanding with President Obregon and Mexico which will inaugurate a new and permanent era of friendship and co-operation between Mexico and the United States.

"Fourth—The recognition of the occasion of the unveiling and dedication in Central Park, New York City, April 19, 1921, of the statue of General Simon Bolivar, the George Washington of South America, presented by the Government of Venezuela, as a great Pan American event, which he hopes can be attended by himself or the Secretary of State, or both."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—Former Governor Lowden of Illinois has been offered and has declined the post of Secretary of the Navy under President Harding, according to some of his friends here.

SLEEPING SICKNESS ENDS ANOTHER LIFE

REMEDY STILL TO BE FOUND

Danger Slight and Disease Is Not Believed to Be Infectious, but Cause Remains Mystery.

For the third consecutive year New York is afflicted by a mild epidemic of sleeping sickness, although data to estimate the number of those affected are not available in the statistics of the Department of Health. The figures are being obtained this year for the first time after an effort failed to get them from physicians last year.

Dr. Louis I. Harris, Director of the Bureau of Preventable Diseases, said last night that basing his estimates on the known proportion of deaths from sleeping sickness, he thought that there were a few more than 2,000 cases in New York last year. Dr. Israel Strauss of 331 Central Park West, who announced that he had isolated the germ of sleeping sickness, and who has had much experience with the disease in the Mount Sinai Hospital, said that he believed the number of cases last year was "several thousand."

"There is no doubt that an epidemic of what is popularly known as 'sleeping sickness,' exists," said Dr. Strauss. "It existed last year and the year before, but this year it seems to be somewhat milder, and not so many cases are expected."

At present there are fifteen cases in Mount Sinai Hospital, several in the Beth Israel, and the number seems to be growing every day. Thirteen cases were reported Thursday to the Department of Health, and eleven yesterday. Since the beginning of the week there have been thirty-nine cases reported and seven deaths. Since January 1,154 cases have been reported.

One Death Yesterday.

Another death took place yesterday in Port Chester, which has been a centre of the disease, where Margaret Munro, 24 years old, of 9 Leonard Street, Edgeland, died in the United Hospital. She was taken there on Feb. 1. Another boy was found to be ill of the disease in Port Chester.

As a result of the large number of cases reported from this one section it was reported that the State Department of Health would send an inspector to investigate conditions.

Although Health Department officials were emphatic in saying that there was nothing in the present situation to alarm the public, they admitted that the epidemic was a curious manifestation of an unusual disease. Many prominent men and women, some of them financial and social leaders, have suffered from mild forms of the disease, and there seems to be no way of telling where it will next appear, or its cause.

Dr. Harris made a report yesterday to Dr. Royal S. Copeland, Health Commissioner, which showed that last year there were 654 cases and 211 deaths reported to the department, but this did not include all cases. As the accepted death rate is 10 per cent., although some physicians place it slightly higher, Dr. Harris estimated that there were more than 2,000 cases in the city. The age groups most affected by the disease last year were those from 20 to 24 years, and from 25 to 29 years, which Dr. Harris pointed out bore a remarkable resemblance to influenza.

"In the final analysis the Health Department must depend on physicians as the first line of defense," said Dr. Harris. "The danger at present is only moderate. There are much more serious diseases. In one week recently there were sixteen deaths from tubercular meningitis, which caused no comment. The fact that the sleeping sickness is such an odd disease and is so little understood seems to make the public so interested in it. We have found that only once has more than one case been reported from a single household, so the chances of contagion do not seem to be high.

Cause Is Mystery.

"There is no agreement as to the cause of the disease, or how it has been transmitted. Dr. Strauss and some other men at Mt. Sinai say that they have found an organism which causes the disease, but their claim has been disputed by Dr. Simon Flexner and others. Three is disagreement between authorities as to almost every phase of the disease, and no definite treatment known.

"It was recorded years ago by Cruikshank, one of the great authorities, and he found that it came in the wake of other epidemics. This seems to have followed the influenza epidemic, although there is no reason to believe that there is any real connection between them."

At Mt. Sinai Hospital there have been more than 150 cases in the last eighteen months, although Dr. Harris said that from Jan. 1 to Feb. 1 his inspectors had been able to learn of only nineteen cases in seventeen of the large hospitals of the city, excluding Mt. Sinai. He will have the hospitals canvassed again this week.

The disease has spread rapidly all over the world in the last few years.

Dr. Royal S. Copeland said that he expected a mild epidemic of influenza within the next four or five weeks. Eighteen cases were reported yesterday and on Thursday twenty-one cases. These figures are much lower than at this time last year.

The Commissioner said that the disease, as near as could be learned, was hand conveyed by secretions from the nose and throat. He advised cleanliness, particularly frequent washing of the hands, and said that when a person reached home the face should be thoroughly washed and the nostrils cleansed with soap and water. In homes where there is a person sick of the disease the patient should be kept in a room away from the rest of the family.

ONE KILLED, TWO HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENTS

F. D. Murphy, Veteran Telegrapher, Run Over—Dr. W. G. Frey and Son Pinned Under Car.

Frank D. Murphy, 64 years old, of 230 East Sidney Avenue, Mount Vernon, was run down by an automobile a short distance from the Mount Vernon Station yesterday morning while hurrying to catch a train. His skull was fractured and he died a short time after being taken to the local hospital. Mr. Murphy was carrying an umbrella and apparently did not see the automobile, which was driven by Gordon M. Howe.

Mr. Murphy was one of the oldest telegraphers with the Western Union, having been with that company for forty years. He worked with Thomas A. Edison many years ago, and was a member of the Old Timers Club, of which Mr. Edison is a member. He is survived by his widow.

Dr. Walter G. Frey of 205 Grand Avenue, Astoria, one of the leading physicians and surgeons of Queens, and President of the Queens County Medical Society, was probably fatally injured yesterday when an automobile in which he and his son, Dr. Walter G. Frey Jr., were riding overturned on Jackson Avenue, near Trains Meadow Road, outside Long Island City. The automobile skidded, and both men were pinned beneath it. Passers by lifted the machine and called an ambulance from St. John's Hospital, where it was found that Dr. Frey had several broken ribs and internal injuries. His son had his right arm and back injured, and also received internal injuries.

HELPED FATHER BREAK JAIL.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, Ga., Feb. 11.—Verner Dorsett, twenty-two years old, has confessed that she was the person who effected the jail breaking of five convicts in Campbell County, near here, last December. Love for her father, an aged moonshiner, sentenced to serve two years in the chain gang, was the motive that led her to smuggle him the saws with which he and the others cut their way to freedom.

Now, her father saved, she herself faces a prison term. Nor will she buy forgiveness of the law by revealing his whereabouts, although it is understood that the prosecution has offered to be lenient with her if she will tell where he is. She was released under $500 bond pending disposition of her case.

Verner's father is Guy Dorsett, who, the authorities declare, has been a moonshiner for years.

Verner says she bought the saws and hid them under her dress when she called on her father in jail. She carried a basket of fruit and offered this to the Sheriff for examination. She was admitted to the cell occupied by her father and four other prisoners. The next morning Sheriff Jenkins found the cell empty and the bars sawed.

Three of the fugitives were recaptured, but Dorsett and a negro made a clean getaway.

The Grand Jury returned a true bill against the girl today and her trial will take place next week.

FRENCH WOMEN AT COBLENZ

Go to Celebrate Anniversary of Americans' Entrance Into the Line.

PARIS, Feb. 11.—A delegation of women representing the France-America committee left here for Coblenz this evening, having been invited by Brig. Gen. Allen, commanding the American forces on the Rhine, in connection with the anniversary of the American army's entry into the line in February, 1918.

SNOW HALTS EFFORT TO RUN ALBANY CARS

TROY LINES ALSO BLOCKED

Strikers Jeer Workers and Throw Snowballs, but There Are No Disorders.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 11.—Srtike-breakers made futile efforts today to pilot street cars along tracks buried beneath the heaviest snow of the year in both Albany and Troy. With the snowstorm increasing tonight, both cities feared an entire absence of any kind of transportation tomorrow. Jitney buses were abandoning the streets, where they have flourished in large numbers since 1,200 employes of the United Traction Company went on strike two weeks ago.

Drifts of snow more than a foot deep stopped everything save sleighs on some thoroughfares and snow piled higher and higher on the ground. Unless the temperature should rise, it was not expected that street cars would make any headway for several days.

Meanwhile union labor in Albany was drafting a program to extend relief to the traction employes who quit work rather than accept a 25 per cent. reduction in pay. The company's refusal to arbitrate with its men was characterized as "the opening gun in a scheme to smash trade unions in the United States" by John J. Hart, President of the Albany Typographical Union. Other labor leaders, he said, shared this view.

The Executive Committee of the Albany Typographical Union requested the Central Federation of Labor to assess all union workmen in the city as a means of creating an immediate relief fund for the strikers.

Possible efforts to bring about arbitration of the dispute between the company and the strikers were discussed at a conference attended by Mayor Fleming of Troy and two State mediators. They declined to discuss the result.

For eight hours today a crew of strike-breakers, carrying picks, shovels, sand and salt, tried to break a passage along the snow-covered rails for two street cars, but they moved less than a mile, twice skidding off the tracks.

At Troy similar attempts to penetrate the snow also failed. The only car sent out in that city jumped the track shortly after leaving the barn, and was quickly returned to the sheds when it had been replaced on the rails.

State troopers kept strike sympathizers calm in both cities, never allowing crowds to congregate and ordering loiterers near the car barns to keep moving. Noisy jeers were flung at the strike-breakers when the cars left the rails, and a few snowballs were thrown, but there were no disorders.

The transit company announced it had more than three hundred strikebreakers in the barns here, and almost as many at Troy, but only a few of them ventured on the streets.

WHITE EXPECTS TO STAY.

Democratic Chairman Says Movement Against Him Is Disintegrating.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11. — George White, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, who has had conferences with several Senators and Representatives, expressed the belief today that the effort against him was disintegrating. He said he did not find any sympathy for the opposition to him among the members of Congress with whom he had talked.

Bernard Baruch's defense of Mr. White is taken here as indicating that William G. McAdoo, in whose behalf as a possible candidate for the Presidential nomination the movement against Mr. White is supposed to have been organized, will not sanction the movement. A report in Democratic circles had it that Mr. McAdoo was returning from Mexico and would announce that he did not approve the effort to force Mr. White's resignation. Mr. Baruch is regarded as Mr. McAdoo's closest political friend.

Chairman White is preparing a letter to all members of the National Committee, in which he will discuss the movement to have him call a meeting of the committee, and leave it to the members to determine whether they believe it desirable.

According to those in touch with Mr. White, he has had advices from some members of the National Committee that they signed the call for the meeting in the supposition that Mr. White had decided to resign from the Chairmanship.

Robert W. Woolley, who, with Thomas Love of Texas, organized the movement for a committee meeting, and who has been suspected of acting in the interests of Mr. McAdoo, has written to Mr. Baruch concerning the latter's defense of Mr. White. Mr. Woolley sent a copy of this letter to Mr. White, with assurances that he had no personal feeling against the Chairman.

Mr. White said today that he sincerely hoped the matter would not descend to the level of personalities.

prevent possible spread of an epidemic, Quarantine activities at New York are under the jurisdiction of the State of New York. Negotiations are in progress to transfer this work and the Quarantine station there to the Public Health Service of the Treasury Department. Meanwhile, the service has detailed an officer to assist State quarantine officials and will, if necessary, detail additional officers.

"In view of precautions already taken and steps contemplated it is believed that the New York City Health Commissioner's suggestion that a complete embargo be placed on all immigration is not warranted at this time."

Health Department inspectors sent out in haste yesterday to gather all information on delousing plants available for the treatment of immigrants reported back to Commissioner Copeland that there was plenty of apparatus for the work of disinfecting aliens and their baggage so that no typhus-carrying vermin would be brought into this country.

At the Bush Terminal in Brooklyn they found a huge plant formerly used for the sterilization of cotton which could be turned into a delousing plant in a few days. It would take only a short time to transport the apparatus to Hoffman Island or any other place in the harbor, and hundreds of immigrants could be passed through the plant each day.

Apparatus sufficient to sterilize the clothing of 2,000 persons was found in an army store in this city, and the inspectors reported that the sterilization process of these machines would occupy only twenty minutes. All vermin and eggs would be killed in that time. All this apparatus could be transported in a day to any place in the city.

Army Delouser Too Small.

After he had virtually finished arrangements for the use of the small delousing plant at the old army piers at Hoboken, Commissioner Copeland learned that it was too small to take care of more than a fraction of the immigrants now held at Ellis Island and on ships, and then set out to find other apparatus.

It had been expected that the immigrants on the Holland-America liner Ryndam could be cared for at this plant, but the officials of the line finally decided to do the required work themselves at the Hoboken piers. They attempted to borrow a sterilizing plant from the navy, but were unsuccessful. Then the announcement was made that the line would erect its own plant at the Hoboken piers. The Ryndam was to have sailed today, but on account of the holding of 1,500 steerage passengers for inspection she will be unable to leave until Tuesday.

After Percy A. Baker, Superintendent at Ellis Island, had notified shipping companies that the immigration authorities would receive no more aliens not in presentable condition, representatives of various lines held a meeting in the offices of Cornelius Van De Stadt, General Passenger Agent of the Holland-America Line, at 24 State Street. Dr. Leland E. Cofer, Health Officer at Quarantine, attended the meeting and told of the plans for a sterilizing station at Hoffman Island. He said that it would take some time to build this plant, and that, meantime, emergency measures would have to suffice.

The International Mercantile Marine Company decided yesterday to build their own sterilizing plant. Work on the plant will be started today, and an attempt will be made to borrow a temporary plant from the United States Navy.

Representatives of the steamship companies told Dr. Cofer that everything possible was done to see that the immigrants were clean before the ships left Europe. They said the ships were disinfected and thoroughly cleansed before sailing from the other side.

Divert Liners to Boston.

The unusual expedient of turning transatlantic liners into Boston was announced yesterday by officials of steamship lines here after they had learned of the congestion at Ellis Island. The United American Lines has turned its steamer Mount Clay, from Hamburg into Boston with more than 800 passengers. The Holand-America liner Nieuw Amsterdam, with about 1,800 passengers from Rotterdam and Boulogne, also goes into Boston. The Red Star liner Finland also was ordered diverted to Boston. These liners have no passengers from the disease-infected areas.

David Lindsay, Passenger Manager in charge of the third-class department of the International Mercantile Marine, said yesterday that the steerage passengers of the Lapland could be transferred to another vessel and that the Lapland, after being fumigated, would sail on schedule time today. Mr. Lindsay said that it was planned to transfer to four ships now available here all passengers arriving on ships whose condition would make their acceptance at Ellis Island doubtful if it should prove necessary. The company would also hire a vessel for the accommodation of passengers refused at Ellis Island.

"One infected immigrant might spread a plague that would cause a million deaths in six weeks in New York," said Dr. Copeland at a dinner of the Men's Club of the All Souls' Universalist Church in Brooklyn. "The crowded housing conditions increase the danger."

As an additional precaution against the entrance of aliens who might bring dangerous disease, Dr. Copeland today will organize a force of clerks to take the names and future addresses of all immigrants coming in on ships, so that the observation of these incoming aliens by the Health Department will not end at the sterilizing stations. They will be kept under medical surveillance for more than two weeks. These clerks will start work this morning.

Dr. Copeland said that he had been able to find only 25 per cent. of the first and second cabin passengers of the Presidente Wilson, one of the three ships now under quarantine. He is now seeking additional information about the remainder of the cabin passengers about 300.

Health Commissioner J. F. Stack of Hoboken informed Commissioner Copeland yesterday thathewould see that no aliens got away from the Hoboken piers without passing through a sterilization plant. Neither will any sick persons be removed to hospitals without his permission.

In its patrol work around the three quarantined vessels, Presidente Wilson, Providence and San Giusto, the police boat John F. Hylan picked up eighteen men out in small boats from the Brooklyn waterfront to hail relatives on the vessels. Their names were taken, and they were warned that they would probably be called to the Federal Court in Brooklyn to explain their defiance of the law prohibiting any person from approaching quarantined ships.

According to the police, some of these men tried to pass bundles onto the ships, and there were reports that they had even received messages from the ships. Violations of this sort in the past have been punished with heavy fines by the Federal courts.

No new cases of typhus were reported yesterday to the Department of Health, the figure remaining at thirty-nine.

TELLS STORY OF BREAK OF WILSON AND HOUSE

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Feb. 12.—Referring to the coming publication of former Secretary of State Lansing's book, "The Peace Negotiations," Percy Hammond, in his "Gossip About Books," published in Saturday's issue of The Chicago Tribune, tells a story of what are declared to be the underlying causes of the estangement said to exist between President Wilson and his one-time intimate friend, Colonel E. M. House. Mr. Hammond, who was one of the American correspondents in Paris at the time of the peace negotiations, writes:

"Since this is a column of gossip this morning, it may be permissible for it to recite a story told in the corridors of the Crillon in the latter days of the conference. It is about the eclipse of the flaming friendship between the President and Colonel House, his morgantic Secretary of State, to repeat the mot of a Chicago woman.

"The French, British and Italian Prime Ministers, in their unofficial visits to Mr. Wilson, the story says, had found him disinclined to the earthly or brass-tack mood. He was sincerely disposed to the stained-glass postures of a haloed Crusader, but much too eloquent for busy European statesmen. So they formed the habit of calling on the more taciturn Colonel House in his modest apartments to get the President's views less wordily and to intimate to him their own.

"Mr. Wilson was visiting Colonel House when the British Premier's card came up. The Colonel, graciously excused by the President, returned soon after and resumed the conversation. A few minutes later M. Clemenceau asked for a private interview, and again Colonel House bowed himself out with apologies. He had been back but a short time when Signor Orlando was announced, requesting a moment's conference.

"Mr. Wilson waited once more and on Colonel House rejoining him showed nothing of annoyance at the contretemps. But according to the casual historians of the Crillon, the incident darkened the landscape of a great friendship and the President and the Texan were intimate no more. The story is harmless, for it blames neither, and it has a foundation of truth sufficient to be in the manuscript of another impending history of American diplomacy alone and imperiled in a great city."

GOMPERS DENIES VOTE CONDEMNED THE TREATY

Tells Peace Forum British Dominions Co-operated With Americans at Paris.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 11.—American labor did not leave the Peace Conference in Paris with all that it felt, in justice, it ought to have secured, but it left with all it was possible to get, declared Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, tonight before the Philadelphia Public Ledger Forum on the Peace Conference.

Discussing the labor clauses of the peace treaty and the difficulties met and overcome in reaching decisions upon them, Mr. Gompers censured Socialist members of the Commission on International Labor Legislation, maintaining that "they were constantly of assistance to those who were trying to weaken the labor provisions that were written into the treaty."

In defending the granting of a separate vote to each of the British Dominions, he said that they were "more often with progress than against it."

"It was my experience," he said, "and I look upon it as something of a dependable guide, that the votes of the representatives of these Dominions and Commonwealths were more often with the United States than with England.

"The fact is, in my opinion, that progress is safeguarded by the British possessions having been given the vote. With but few exceptions, the viewpoint of the American labor movement, constructive, democratic, uncontaminated by any of the philosophies that are cousin to Bolshevism, is shared only by the labor movements of these self-governing Dminions and Commonwealth."

Mr. Gompers, at the conclusion of his prepared address, aroused enthusiasm when he said:

"I decline to accept as final the declaration that the votes cast last November were a condemnation of the treaty of peace. The treaty, as an issue, was brought into the campaign when its greatest exponent was stricken. He could not speak to the people as he had spoken. But his spirit and brain and character and courage lived—and do live. I believe that had the American people been able to vote upon the single question, 'Shall the Treaty of Versailles be ratified?' there would have been an overwhelming vote in favor of ratification."

OPPOSES GERMAN TREATY.

ACCEPTS TORRIENTE LAW.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVANA, Feb. 11.—The first financial institution to take advantage of the provisions of the recently enacted Torriente law for the gradual liquidation of the moratorium is the National Bank of Cuba. This was officially announced tonight.

By a contractual relation this institution, which has a branch in New York City, is the depository of the funds of the Cuban Government. The question has been recently raised whether the Government had the right under this contract to insist upon payment in full of deposits approximating $22,000,000 as a preferred creditor.

Simultaenously with the announcement of the bank officials of their decision to claim the privileges of the Liquidation act came the statement that the bankers' lawyers had advised them that the first payment under the new law, due Feb. 15, would be only 5 per cent. instead of 15, as previously accepted in the interpretation of the Torriente bill.

The appearance of what may be termed a "joker" in the Liquidation act caused consternation in some quarters here tonight, and the lawyers' interpretation of the law is the subject of heated discussion.

Having applied for permission to come in under the Liquidation law, the bank automatically binds itself to liquidate by percentages upon the six specified dates. Failure to meet any one of the percentage payments upon the specific dates will bring about suspension of the institution automatically; but any group of the stocholders, creditors or officers who desire may submit to the liquidating commissioners a plan for reorganization. Should this be approved the institution will be subject in continuing under such reorganization.

HINTS BRITISH USE NAVY PRESSURE HERE

URGES BATTLESHIP INQUIRY

He Tells Senate War Will Follow If the Sea Armament Race Continues.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—Defending his position that it is practicable as well as wise for the United States to suspend its naval building program for a period of at least six months, in order that it may be determined whether the battleship is obsolete and what constitutes a modern fighting navy, Senator Borah made it plain to the Senate this afternoon that he did not subscribe to the report presented to the Senate yesterday by the Committee on Naval Affairs. He intimated that the committee had not given due consideration to the arguments advanced by those who contend that the day of the capital ship is past and that he day of the submarine and aircraft is at hand.

Senator Poindexter, who presented the committee's report to the Senate, stated that it was the carefully considered conclusion of the officers of the General Board of the navy, and added that those views were concurred in by the Navy Department and by the Senate Committee on Naval Affairs. He denied that Senator Borah's information that Great Britain, France and Italy were enjoying a naval holiday so far as capital ship construction is concerned, was accurate. But for the Grand Fleet of Great Britain, backed by the united navies of America, France, Italy and Japan, said Senator Poindexter, Germany would have won the war.

Senator Borah referred to published articles which alleged that Great Britain was carrying on active propaganda in this country, the purpose of which was to prevent the American naval program from being completed.

Hears Navy Has Propaganda Proof.

"This propaganda, it is said, is for the purpose of bringing about a cessation of capital ship construction by the United States," said Senator Borah. "They even say that proof that such propaganda is being directed against our naval program is in the possession of the Navy Department here in Washington. If it is true, the people should know it.

"We are informed that the British are working to delay our program. The British Ambassador, we are informed, is on his way back to this country with a plan for disarmament and at the same time we are told that this propaganda is going on. I would like to ask the Senator from Washington, Mr. Poindexter, if the committee investigated this."

"There was something to that effect," replied Senator Poindexter, "but the committee is of the opinion that it should not be made public at this time. The Senator may have the information if he desires."

"Unless I am permitted to make it public I would not receive it," said Mr. Borah. "I am told that the British actually circulated false propaganda to interfere with our naval plans. My own opinion is that such evidence is not in existence. I have every reason to believe that Great Britain has not laid down a single capital ship since the Battle of Jutland."

Borah Urges Caution in Building.

In opening his argument Senator Borah said:

"A few days ago I offered a resolution which was sent to the Committee on Naval Affairs, asking the view of that committee as to the practicability and the wisdom of suspending our naval program for a period of six months. The committee has replied. I have read that reply and I wish to say that I feel that this matter has another side than that presented by the committee and that this other side is worthy of our consideration. It is a subject with which we must deal in a few days when another appropriation measure (the navy bill) comes before us and it is my intention to get certain information into the record along with the report of the committee.

"My resolution did not relate to disarmament, but was intended solely to determine whether or not we are now building a navy that will be when completed a modern fighting navy. If it should develop that the navy now being constructed is not the most efficient navy it would be a double crime on the part of Congress to proceed with that navy. It would not only be a crime against the taxpayers, but it would also be unfair to the people whom this navy proposes to protect.

"I am frank to say that I do not think that we have given sufficient attention to this matter. As a general proposition it has not been a subject that has been sufficiently considered by the people of the country.

"In the great war Germany had in her submarine fleet not more than 10,000 men, and these men, despite the Grand Fleet, supported as it was by the navies of America, France, Italy and Japan, almost won the war, and did bring Great Britain to the verge of starvation. This must impress any one that here is a phase of naval warfare that must be considered in the buildinug up of any modern fighting navy.

"My only desire is to bring to the attention of the Senate and people of this country the views of those who differ from the conclusions of the Committee on Naval Affairs. I am not here to offer expert opinions, for I am not an expert, but I do want to cite those who are qualified to speak, and who, I believe, speak in good faith."

Tells of Differing British Views.

Senator Borah then said that Great Britain had suspended her building program for six months and had referred the whole naval question to the Committee on Imperial Defense, which committee was still at work trying to find what a modern fighting navy really was.

"Great Britain," continued Borah, "has not laid down a single capital ship since the war, and the same is true of France and Italy."

Senator Borah then read excerpts from the opinions of various British officers, among them the articles written for The London Times by Rear Admiral S. S. Hall, R. N., who believes that the capital ship has about reached the obsolete stage and that naval wars of the future will be won in the air and under the water. Admiral Hall quoted Admiral Jellicoe as authority for the statement that not in 200 years had Great Britain been so near disaster as she was at a certain stage of the war, when German submarine activities reached the peak.

"What was Admiral Hall's command in the war?" asked Senator McCormick.

"I do not know," replied Senator Borah, "but I believe he speaks with authority."

Another article read by Senator Borah set forth that the day might not be far away when Great Britain would be the third naval power. Senator Hitchcock asked him if this was not a plain intimation that in such an event the United States and Japan would be the first and second naval powers.

"This is a situation, if true," said Senator Hitchcock, "that we should bear in mind in discussing the naval problem. We must remember that the positions of the United States and Great Britain are very different. The people of the British Isles are dependent upon commerce to live, while this country, situated on a great continent between the oceans, is self-supporting. Situated as they are, the British Isles are a target for submarine attack, while because of our long coast lines submarine attack is less effective against this country. We must consider the position of Japan in the Pacific, if what the writer says is true regarding the likelihood of Great Britain dropping to third place."

"Does the Senator from Idaho know," asked Senator Brandegee, "that the Japanese Diet declined today to reduce Japan's naval building program?"

Not Urging Disarmament Now.

"I am not discussing disarmament," was the reply. "I do not want the United States to disarm, except by an agreement entered into with the other great powers. I am not opposed to the United States having an efficient navy, but I want to know what kind of a navy we must have if we are to have one that is efficient in the modern sense of the word."

If battleships were becoming obsolete, Senator Borah said, he wished it understood that he preferred to have the $300,000,000 that would be expended to complete six dreadnoughts, now authorized, used to build submarines and aircraft.

"Both Admiral Sims and Admiral Fiske, who have been cited by the Senator, urged the Naval Committee to continue the construction of these six ships," said Senator McCormick.

"No man can read the testimony of Sims and Fiske before the House Committee on Naval Affairs," replied Senator Borah, "and not conclude that these officers are of the opinion that capital ships will be obsolete in five years."

"Well, that was not the testimony they gave before the Senate committee," Senator McCormick answered.

"I have not suggested," replied Senator Borah, "that we do away with our battleships. I am giving the testimony of those who believe that such ships are obsolete. I am as certain as I can be of anything that, if this building program race is carried along by the great nations, war will follow as certain as night follows the day. I propose to do all I can to make that impossible.

"In view of our $29,000,000,000 debt and with a $2,000,000,000 deficit facing us in the next few weeks, I do not think it is necessary to point out that every dollar drawn from the United States Treasury counts. I favor, as I have said before, stopping this program for six months or for a year until we find out where we are at."

Withholds Name of Officer Quoted.

Senator Borah then quoted certain unnamed American naval officers who are of the submarine-aircraft school. He said he was not permitted to make the names public, but that he was willing to give them to the Committee on Naval Affairs. One of these officers was quoted as saying that, in a few years, "a surface ship can go nowhere except to the bottom."

"This officer is an Admiral of the United States Navy," added Senator Borah.

"Is he on active duty or retired?" Senator Brandegee ased.

"He is retired. He retired after forty-seven years' active service," replied Senator Borah.

Senator Poindexter, replying to Senator Borah, said that neither the General Board of the Navy nor the Committee on Naval Affairs underestimated the importance of the submarine or aircraft in naval warfare. The contention of the General Board, he added, was that the battleship remained the backbone of the fighting fleet, and that the destroyer, the submarine and the flying machine remained as auxiliaries of the first importance to all fleets. The Grand Fleet of Great Britain, backed by the allied navies, he contended, proved the efficiency of the capital ship. It was the Grand Fleet, he added, that bottled up the German high seas fleet and in the end assured allied victory.

NAVAL BILL UNDER FIRE.

Amendment for $7,500,000 for Aircraft Ruled Out in House.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—The Naval Appropriations bill ran through hostile waters in the House today, but in the end was still afloat.

Criticised from all sides, it almost went down at times as members attempted to riddle some of the provisions of the $395,000,000 measure. One section, when on the point of going out, was saved by Chairman Butler of the Naval Affairs Committee, who went to the front and rescued it.

Opposition to the bill cropped out as a result of the general dissatisfaction with the new method of framing appropriation legislation. Heretofore the Naval bill has been drafted by the Naval Committee, but under the so-called budget system that committee waits while a Sub-Committee on Appropriations does the work.

Representative Britten of Illinois, ranking Republican member of the Naval Committee, argued that funds recommended by the framers of the measure were not authorized by law. In this way many sections went out on points of order, with indications that many more will go out, for only a little headway was made with the reading.

Advocates of economy and friends of disarmament jumped to their feet in all parts of the chamber to throw out an amendment by Representative Hicks, Republican, of New York, providing $7,500,000 for navy aircraft. They had their way, although Mr. Hicks pleaded earnestly for sufficient funds to build up the air branch of the sea service. There was no vote on the amendment, it being ruled out on a point of order as new legislation.

Mr. Britten pointed to an item of $5,000 for expenses of the Civilian Naval Consulting Board, of which Thomas A. Edison has been one of the leading members since 1916. Chairman Kelley of the subcommittee in charge of the bill remarked that it was subject to a point of order, but insisted that it should stay because the country still was technically at war. Chairman Butler pleaded with Mr. Britten to let it stay, and the latter finally withdrew his objection.

Mr. Britten failed to upset an appropriation of $343,000 for temporary government in the Virgin Islands.

There were many speeches for and against the project of the biggest navy in the world. Representative Pou, Democrat, of North Carolina, declared that, while he had voted for a big navy every year during his twenty years of service, he had hoped the time might come when he could cease giving such support.

"A battleship is of no earthly value except to kill or destroy," he said. "Right now, 90 per cent. of all Government appropriations are for the army and navy, and God help us if this thing is to continue. I see no hope for the future. The Chairman of the Military Committee recently made a startling statement which was calculated to shock, but which nevertheless is true, when he said that America today was without a friend among the nations of the world. So I shall continue to vote for an unconquerable navy—not a navy as great as the greatest, but a navy that can defeat any under the sun."

KANSAS GIRLS PEDOGRAPHED

Special to The New York Times.

LAWRENCE, Kan., Feb. 11.—Will bridegrooms of the future demand pedographs of their wives-to-be? is the question brought up here by the revelations of "pictures" of the feet of Kansas University co-eds on file in the Department of Physical Education.

"The Pedographs," said Dr. Martha M. Bacon, who is in charge of the "feet pictures," "are somewhat of an index of character. You can tell what kind of a life the owners lead."

Therein lies the reason why bridegrooms of the future may demand pedographs as character witnesses for the future wife.

The queer thing about the revelations of the little black and white pictures is that only one girl in the university approaches the standard of perfection in contour and development of the feet. She is Claire Newton of Chanute, Kan., daughter of a missionary, who was born and reared in China, the land of cramped feet.

Flat feet, calloused feet, deformed feet and feet with things on them that really do not belong to healthful feet, all were found among the university women.

Workers May Tie Up Panama Canal

PANAMA, Feb. 11.—Operating mechanics employed on the Canal have resigned because of the withholding of bonus payments, and the situation threatens a tie-up of the Canal by the time the Atlantic and Pacific fleets return here from the joint manoeuvres which are now in progress off the west coast of South America.

WOULD BAR LANDIS AS BASEBALL HEAD

NO LAW NOW COVERS CASE

Attorney General Declares Present Statutes Apply Only to Compensation as Lawyers.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—Representative Benjamin Welty of Ohio introduced in the House today a bill to prevent Federal Judges from accepting salary from any other source that the Government. The bill was inspired by the action of Judge Kenesaw M. Landis of Chicago in consenting to act as national arbitrator for organized baseball and an opinion by Attorney General Palmer that such a course was not contrary to law.

Mr. Welty said he thought Judge Landis was violating judicial standards and neglecting his work as a Judge.

"I received a telegram today from District Attorney Clyne at Chicago," said Mr. Welty, "in which he states that there are approximately 1,230 cases on Judge Landis's docket. It would take two years to clear this docket. At the same time I have received several complaints from attorneys who tell me that their cases have been postponed."

Representative Welty wrote on Feb. 2 to Attorney General Palmer asking whether it is a misdemeanor for a Federal Judge to receive an emolument in addition to his salary for acting as an arbitrator on matters which might come into his court.

In reply Attorney General Palmer wrote:

"In reply to your letter of Feb. 2, wherein you request information as to whether or not it is a misdemeanor for a Federal Judge to receive an emolument in addition to his salary for acting as an arbitrator on matters which might come into his court, I have examined the subject and you are advised that it is not a crime, either misdemeanor or felony.

"There seems to be nothing as a matter of general law which would prohibit District Judges from receiving additional compensation for other than strictly judicial services, such as acting as Commissioners or arbitrators. There are a number of instances in which Federal Judges have been designated by Congress or by the Executive to act as Commissioners to pass on claims. The matter is fully discussed in United States vs. Ferreira, 13 How. 40, 77, and the note on page 52, where it was held, in effect, that Congress could designate a Federal Judge to adjust claims under a treaty with Spain for the reason that such an office or function did not have the essential qualities of a court. In 1898 the question was referred to Attorney General Griggs whether Judge Putnam could be paid extra compensation under his appointment as Commissioner to decide the claims arising out of seizure of British vessels in Bering Sea, and it was held he could. Several instances of Federal Judges acting in such capacity are referred to in the opinion.

"The fact that the Judge's action as 'arbitrator' might come up collaterally in the court of which he is a member does not affect his right to hold the position or perform the functions, though it might make it improper for him to sit in the Federal Court in some particular case, e. g., the Judge's actions as a property holder might come up in the court of which he is a member.

"Aside from the general law, therefore, such action could only be illegal if made so by some specific act of Congress. I do not find any such act. The only two which seem to have the slightest bearing on the subject are Section 1 of the Legislative, Executive and Judicial Appropriation act of March 3, 1917, and Section 258, Judicial Code.

"Congress evidently had in mind the matter of outside employment of Judges by the enactment of Section 258 and it deliberately decided not to go further than to prohibit their employment as counsel or attorney. This statute was the act of Dec. 18, 1812, and contained also the provision as to residents in the District.

"In other respects the attention of Congress has been called to the matter of Government officials receiving emoluments from outside affairs and has legislated on it to the extent desired and expressed specifically in the enactments of Congress. This is a demonstration of a negative character that Congress has proceeded no further than it desired, having in mind this specific subject.

"While it might be true that the Judge's duty as arbiter would take so much of his time as to interfere substantially with the performance of his judicial duties, this, of course, would be a matter to be disposed of when such interference has actually occurred, and would probably be an objection only on the ground of incompetency, and considered upon that ground only.

"I am, therefore, answering your question in the negative."

BERLIN PAPER ACCEPTS 'PATH-TO-WAR' REPORT

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Feb. 11.—The reported "tension between America and England" caused by the interview of some London correspondents with Ambassador Geddes is watched here with greatest interest, although most of the newspapers assume an attitude of reserve. The Lokal-Anzeiger, however, always ready to magnify any international complications from which it foolishly hopes Germany might profit, says:

"That the English official version does not deny the existence of serious tension is really confirmation of Geddes's utterance. There is undoubtedly danger of war between the two Anglo-Saxon nations. Lloyd George himself declared in his speech on Dec. 22 that if competition in armament did not cease another world catastrophe was unavoidable. America's arming with rapidity is deadly to England. This causes England's Government the gravest apprehensions, and official negotiations between the two nations now in progress only prove they realize the danger which will be avoided by an agreement reducing the competition in armament. Until now these efforts have not had the desired result. On the contrary, Congress and the new President constantly repeat the determination to increase the naval program. If this program is carried out, England cannot do otherwise than consider it a casus belli, as Geddes gave the American journalists to understand. But upon the further developments of Anglo-American relations depends the fate of the whole world, including Europe and Germany."

MAY CONDEMN CROYS TO REMAIN GERMAN

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 11.—The children of Charles, Prince of Croy, and his wife, who was Miss Nancy Leishman of Pittsburgh, are probably destined to be Germans. Their parents are very anxious to have them reared as French; but, inasmuch as their father and his two brothers fought in the German Army, the French Court at Valenciennes cannot see the matter in the same light as the former Miss Leishman and her noble husband.

In origin the Croy family is Belgian and French. For many years members of it have had interests in Germany, although they owned the Château of Bon Secours, the domain of l'Hermitage and other property in the north of France. During the war this property was sequestered by the French Government. After the war the Princes of Croy, Charles, Engelbert and Antoine, brought an action to recover possession of this property and to establish anew their French citizenship.

One of the arguments they presented was that their grandfather had been a French noble. The attitude of the French Government is that, even if the Princes were French, they lost their citizenship by serving in the German Army. As for Prince Antoine, the Government charges that as a German officer he was responsible for pillage in Northern France during the war.

The court of Valenciennes ruled yesterday that it could not determine the question of citizenship, but would examine the title to contested propery worth some $200,000.

KING RECEIVES GEDDES.

Lord Chalmers Not to Accompany Ambassador on His Return.

LONDON, Feb. 11.—Sir Auckland Geddes, Ambassador to the United States, who is to sail for America on Feb. 15, was received today by King George in anticipation of the Ambassador's departure.

It is understood here that Lord Chalmers, Permanent Secretary of the British Treasury, will not accompany Ambassador Geddes to the United States.

Early in January the British Treasury announced that Lord Chalmers would leave shortly for the United States on a mission which had for its object the refunding of the British debt to America. On Jan. 18, however, it was authoritatively stated that Lord Chalmers's visit had been postponed because it was considered that negotiations with the American Government should not occur during the absence of Sir Auckland Geddes, who had been summoned home for conferences with the Government.

HEARST SUES TO BAR MORE FOREIGN LOANS

FIVE NATIONS ARE NAMED

Demand Is Also Made to Forbid Paying Funds to Envoy Bakhmeteff.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—Again asserting justification from his rights as a taxpayer, William Randolph Hearst began proceedings today in the District of Columbia Supreme Court, before Justice William Hitz, to tie up funds which, he alleges, Secretary of the Treasury Houston is attempting to lend to foreign countries. He names in this connection Czechoslovakia, France, Greece, Italy, Liberia and Boris Bakhmeteff, the recognized Russian Ambassador.

The amount involved is alleged by Mr. Hearst to be $419,176,322.82, now deposited in the Treasury and belonging to the people of the United States. It is asserted that Secretary Houston is attempting to negotiate loans from this fund totaling $129,701,633.38 in the following amounts: To Czechoslovakia, $6,072,834; France, $50,496,977.24; Greece, $33,236,829.05; Italy, $34,921,192.75, and Liberia, $4,974,000.

Mr. Hearst characterizes the Czechoslovak Republic as "a de facto belligerent Government," because it broke away from the domination of the Government of Austria-Hungary. He is informed and believes, he states, that of a total of $67,000,000 in credits established for this "de facto belligerent Government" there remains a balance of $6,072,834.36 in the Treasury which Secretary Houston is attempting to pay to it and will pay, unless he is restrained.

Ambassador Bakhmeteff, it is asserted, established a credit of $187,729,750 in favor of the Kerensky régime prior to its overthrow on Nov. 15, 1917. At that time, Mr. Hearst says, the credit balance of Kerensky's Government had dwindled to $56,000,000 deposited in the National City Bank of New York. If Secretary Houston is not restrained, according to Mr. Hearst, this amount will be paid over to Bakhmeteff.

The plaintiff not only wants loans stopped, to those named, but wants them stopped to any and every foreign Government.

The acts of Congress under which Secretary Houston intends to make these loans, Mr. Hearst states, are dated Sept. 24, 1917, April 4, 1918, and July 9, 1918, when huge Liberty loans were floated by Secretary McAdoo.

Justice Hitz set Feb. 21 as the date for the hearing on the injunction proceedings. Secretary Houston is ordered to appear at that time and show cause why he should not be restrained.

ASKS HOUSE TO REWARD HEROIC NAVAL OFFICER

Representative Eagle Says Lieut. Isaacs Surrendered for Commander and Later Escaped.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—A dramatic appeal to the House to reward the heroic war exploit of Lieutenant Edward Isaacs, U. S. N., who stepped forward in another man's place to become a prisoner aboard a German submarine after his ship, the President Lincoln, had been torpedoed, was made today by Representative Eagle, Democrat, of Texas. The speaker said Isaacs's record would stand out as one of the daring feats of the World War.

"When the submarine captain demanded an officer prisoner," said Mr. Eagle, "Isaacs walked forth and announced that his commander, Percy W. Foote, now aide to the Secretary of the Navy, had probably perished and that he was ready to go. For eleven days while a captive of the U-boat he learned facts about the German Navy's plan of operations which were of the utmost importance to the allied fleet."

With this in mind he escaped at the risk of his life, Mr. Eagle continued, and was so badly wounded and beaten that now, at the age of 29, he is physically unable to stay in the navy.

"Congress should retire him with the rank of Captain, not as a Lieutenant," Mr. Eagle added, "so that when he goes out of service it will be on sufficient pay to buy bread and meat for his wife and children."

URGES JAPAN TO REPLY ON THE LANGDON CASE

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—The State Department has drawn the attention of the Japanese Foreign Office to the fact that the American note concerning the recent killing of Lieutenant W. H. Langdon, an American naval officer, by a Japanese sentry at Vladivostok has not been answered and has urged that a reply be sent.

The Japanese Foreign Office is thought to have been embarrassed by the delay of the War Office in making a report to it on the incident, covering the findings of the court-martial which has been trying the sentry. In view of the delay it is possible that the incident may not be closed before the new Administration takes office on March 4, but officials of the State Department are anxious to adjust the case before leaving office.

In the negotiations that have taken place so far over the case the Japanese Government has indicated what was accepted as a sincere desire to adjust the matter.

TOKIO, Feb. 10.—The formation of an association to support the cause of Toshigoro Ogasawara, the Japanese sentry who shot and killed Lieutenant Langdon of the United States cruiser Albany at Vladivostok late in December, has been decided upon by a group of army reservists here.

Members of the association are descendants of the "Edokko," the original natives of ancient Tokio, who were renowned for their chivalry. It is urged that a petition be sent to the court-martial which tried Ogasawara, asking for his release and declaring that his punishment would destroy military discipline.

FIGHT ON ARMAMENTS TO CONTINUE IN JAPAN

Author of Defeated Curtailment Move Warned Against Rivalry With America.

TOKIO, Feb. 10 (Associated Press).—The defeat of Yukio Ozaki's resolution proposing a curtailment of naval armaments in the House of Representatives here today does not end the campaign against military and naval expansion and in favor of more constructive work at home, according to newspaper comments on the situation.

The Asahi Shimbun of Osaka declares that M. Ozaki's suggestion was "timely," while the Yomi-Uri Shimbun of this city asserts that an agreement between the powers to limit armaments is "obligatory to save Japan from eventual bankruptcy."

Although it was not expected that the resolution would be adopted, and some of his friends advised him against insisting upon a vote because rejection would be likely to be misinterpreted abroad, M. Ozaki requested a division of the House. In an address he warned his countrymen that curtailment of armaments was coming upon the heels of the League of Nations, which he was convinced was upon a solid footing.

"If naval expansion," he declared, "is aimed at America, it is ridiculous and futile, as an examination of the relative strengths of Japan and the United States will demonstrate. Japan should take the initiative in restricting armaments and not follow the example of Germany, which proved that expansion of armaments results in the growth of Socialism and communism."

Etsujiro Uehara, who was educated in the United States and England, supported M. Ozaki's resolution, saying that its adoption would go far toward disabusing the world of the idea that Japan was militaristic and aggressive.

JAPAN WAITS FOR HARDING.

Will Exert No Pressure for Alien Land Settlement Now.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11 (Associated Press).—Because of the pending change of Administrations, the Japanese Government is understood to have decided against exerting any pressure to obtain at this time a readjustment of the issues existing between it and the American Government as a result of the adoption of the Alien Land law in California.

It is also understood that the Tokio Foreign Office is satisfied with the recommendations for a settlement made by Ambassador Shidehara on the basis of his negotiations with Roland S. Morris, American Ambassador to Japan. Whether the Japanese Government has set its full seal of approval on the recommendations is not definitely known here, but it is said that so far, at least, it has shown no disposition to decline to accept them.

which is indissolubly tied to the Treaty of Versailles. She is ready to examine and doubtless to approve any amendments to the covenant which Americans wish to suggest.

"She must hope that America will ratify the covenant andthe treaty and will give up this idea, an obsession beneath the dignity of a great country careful of its responsibilities. Apart from that, it is necessary to explain to the American people in what spirit France pursues the execution of the treaty, to show that we do not ask of Germany what she cannot pay and to ask aid in the interest of general world recovery."

PUTS GERMANY'S FINE AT $35,700,000,000

Deutsche Zeitung Says Cabinet Has Fixed That as Limit of Possibility.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Feb. 10.—The reactionary Deutsche Zeitung publishes an account of the German proposals to be submitted at the coming conference in London, which, it says, somes from a particularly well informed source.

"The Minister of Finance," it says, "has put aside all other work to rush the preparation of counter-proposals for London, but is as determined as ever to reject the Paris program. The Cabinet has arrived at the conclusion that the sum of 150,000,000,000 marks [normally $35,700,000,000] represents the limit of Germany's solvency. A detailed account of the reasons which led to this conclusion will be given. Payment will be made in instalments extending over thirty years.

"These proposals will first be submitted to Paris, which will be asked to inform Berlin whether they, together with the Paris program, will be considered as a basis for further discussions in London. If Paris refuses, the German Government will not accept the invitation to London, because such treatment would give the London result of the conference the form of a dictated agreement, which Germany will not sign. In this case there would not be any London conference.

"It is most likely that Germany will ask America to arbitrate between her and the Entente. If the Entente should again use force and occupy German territory, Germany would consider it a casus belli, which would automatically annul the Versailles Treaty. In this case, however, America would interfere to prevent another European war, which would surely involve Eastern Europe, too, in new difficulties.

"Germany hopes the entente will not prevent the London Conference by a negative answer, and that the conference will be postponed till the middle of March, when, after Harding's inauguration, America may participate in it.

"Although the leaders of the political parties will be acquainted with Germany's proposals before they are sent to Paris, the Reichstag will not be asked to consider them, because public discussion now might cause grave danger. Documentary evidence accompanying the German proposals will prove that the forcible execution of the Paris program must cause Germany's speedy economic death and paralyze the activity of all classes, making it impossible for the Entente to attain the desired result even if it should take over Germany's administration, in which case anarchistic conditions might result."

It is more than likely that this story in the Deutsche Zeitung is pure invention. The Foreign Office confirms this opinion and assures THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent that no figures have been determined upon at this early stage of the conference called to consider the question. The suggestion of American interference especially was branded as originating from a brain entirely devoid of any political intelligence.

Post Would Fear Our Arbitration.

BERLIN, Feb. 11 (Associated Press).—The Ministry of Finance has reached the conclusion that the utmost sum Germany can pay in reparations is 150,000,000,000 marks, this including all she has paid so far in cash and goods, according to information which the Deutsche Zeitung says it has received from a "special" source.

The Deutsche Zeitung's suggestion that the United States be invited to mediate between the Entente and Germany fails to arouse enthusiasm in the conservative industrialist organ, the Post, which expresses fear that the American verdict in such a case, while deciding on a sum between that submitted by Germany and the Entente figures, would be more likely to incline toward the Entente's demands.

The belief is expressed by the Post that, even if this reputed offer by Germany were to be accepted, she would be affixing her signature to an obligation which would be impossible for her to meet.

"American mediation would only be welcome," says this newspaper, "if we could ascertain the American attitude in advance. We do not want to repeat the mistakes of 1918."

Would Let Allies Seize the Ruhr.

BRESLAU, Feb. 11 (Associated Press).—Paul Loebe, President of the Reichstag and publisher of the Breslau Volkswacht, urges Germany, in an editorial appearing in his paper today, to refuse to comply with the Paris reparations demands, thereby permitting the occupation of the Ruhr district by the Entente, which, he says, would be compelled to attempt the operation of the mines.

He declares that the miners would then refuse to work and the coal production would fall off to such an extent that the Entente would abandon its demands and submit "reasonable conditions."

Unemployment will be widespread if the present plan is agreed to, Herr Loebe believes; tax receipts will decline and it will not be possible for the Entente to collect its indemnities.

"Variable Annuity of 12 Per Cent."

PARIS, Feb. 11.—Louis Loucheur, who, as Minister of the Liberated Regions, assisted Premier Briand and the other members of the Allied Supreme Council in fixing the German reparations, explained to The Associated Press today his definition of Germany's payments on her exports.

"It seems that the terms of the variable annuity of 12 per cent. on exports is imperfectly understood abroad," he said. "It never has been the question to create, or oblige Germany to create, a tax upon exports. What was sought was to establish Germany's capacity for payment. Therefore, we divided the annuity into two parts, one fixed, which is an irreducible minimum which has been established upon figures close to, although below, those prepared by the American experts during the Peace Conference, which always have been regarded as the least Germany must pay. The second part of the annuity, called the variable, is to be calculated at the close of each six months' period by taking 12 per cent. of the total exports during the six months."

No tax was to be laid upon any specific export, nor were exports to the different countries taken into consideration, said M. Loucheur. It was simply a percentage on the total figures of the German nation's foreign sales.

"In a word, it is a method of calculating the annuity upon Germany's economic development," M. Loucheur asserted. "All the experts during the Peace Conference in 1919 were agreed that payment of an indemnity beyond a certain minimum must be closely related to the economic expansion of Germany, and declared that one of the best indices was the volume of exports. To summarize, it is not a tax upon exports; it is a simple means of calculation. Any other interpretation given by the German press is misleading."

SAYS WE MAY GIVE AID TO RAISE GERMAN DEBT

Congressman McFadden Thinks Plan to Fund Allied Loan Would Help Berlin Get Money.

Speaking before the sixth annual convention of the Silk Travelers' Association in the Hotel Astor last night, Congressman Louis T. McFadden of Pennsylvania, Chairman of the House committee on Banking and Currency, indorsed a plan reported to be in the making in England and France for funding the allied debt to the United States, amounting to $15,000,000,000, including the $5,000,000,000 owed to banks and other institutions. This would make it possible, he said, to float $4,000,000,000 or $5,000,000,000 of the German reparation obligations in the United States. He expressed himself in favor of an interest rate not exceeding 6 per cent.

Mr. McFadden said that it was expected the war debt could be funded over a period of fifteen to twenty years, and if a loan of four or five billion dollars could be floated in the United States, made by Germany and guaranteed by the Allies, that this amount of credit would be established for the sale of American products to England and Continental Europe. It also meant, he continued, that international trade would be immediately relieved and the foreign exchange situation improved, facilitating the financing of trade between the United States and the rest of the world.

"This proposition, if true," Congressman McFadden continued, "is one of the most constructive proposals for world readjustment that has been made." He pointed out that such an arrangement would be predicated on a definite indemnity for Germany; what each of the allied countries would receive in reparations; a definite settlement between England, the United States and allied countries, to which the United States loaned $10,000,000,000, and the first recognition by these countries of their determination to pay obligations in full.

BOLSHEVIST AGENTS WORK FROM BREMEN

600 IN A SECRET SYSTEM

By WALTER DURANTY.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 11.—Under a three-column headline "Organization of Bolshevist Propaganda," the Liberté tonight affirms that headquarters of the Pan-European Red conspiracy has been discovered at Bremen by "international agents," who further secured copies of photographs of its archives. What is more, adds the Liberté, "the American State Department is said to be in possession of the stenographic report of the proceedings at the last meeting of the Bremen conspirators."

The whole Bolshevist organization is now known to the police and lists of names, aliases, &c., of Red agents in various countries are about to be communicated to the Governments concerned.

The Red machine is organized on strictly military lines. Each link of the chain from the chief director at Bremen down to the humblest agent must give absolute obedience to his immediate superior, from whom he receives all orders. The utmost secrecy is maintained and not only are a majority of the subordinated unaware of the identity of their chiefs but nearly all imagine their orders come from Moscow and are ignorant of the very existence of the Bremen committee.

The Liberté declares that over 600 communist agents are employed by Bremen in propaganda work, mostly in Italy and Central and Eastern Europe, France and England being considered for the time being an unfavorable field for operations. The heads of the movement never stay long in one country, but are continually on the move on journeys of inspection, which helps them to evade the police.

The Liberté story is perhaps the explanation of the present intense activity of the Paris police. Despite the fact that the documents seized in connection with the alleged Bolshevist leader, Abramovitch, alias Zalews—arrested at Nice a fortnight ago and brought to Paris for examination today—have not thrown as much light on communist doings in France as had been expected. Hardly a night passes without a big police raid in one or more quarters of the city where foreign elements are largest. Thus last night 200 foreigners were arrested, and judging by similar figures that have already appeared the total number of such arrests cannot be less than 1,000.

Meanwhile action against the French communist organizations is being carried on with hardly less vigor. Last night the police broke into the premises of the young Communist Federation and seized a number of documents. There were other raids of the same character, mostly in connection with anti-militarist propaganda, and a dozen young men have been arrested in Paris and the provinces for putting up anti-militarist posters. The Socialists are highly indignant and do not hesitate to say that the whole of the police investigation has discovered nothing really serious or capable of justifying the severity of the measures taken. They declare that the basis of the affair is really political and represents an attempt by Briand to keep in the good graces of the Nationalist Party, who showed themselves in the recent Chamber debates inclined to criticise the result of the Paris conference rather sharply.

So far as Abramovitch and his henchmen are concerned, it is a fact that judicial authorities find difficulty to establish the charge against them, there being no state of war between the Soviets and France. It was announced today that two Serbians arrested near Paris the same day as Abramovitch at Nice were about to be released owing to the impossibility of proving them guilty of any crime under the French code.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—Officials at the State Department today professed to have no knowledge of any stenographic copy of the proceedings at Bremen of the International Bolshevist Propaganda Committee, which The Petit Parisien stated was understood to be in possession of the department.

POLISH-SOVIET TREATY.

Moscow Wireless Reports the Signing at Riga.

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Feb. 11.—The treaty of peace between Soviet Russia and Poland was signed at Riga yesterday, it is announced in a wireless despatch received here from Moscow.

The preliminary peace treaty between Poland and Soviet Russia was signed at Riga, Oct. 12 last. Negotiations for a permanent peace were taken up at Riga by representatives of the two Governments shortly afterwards, and these negotiations have been dragging along ever since. There have been various reports that the conferences had been broken off, but none of these was confirmed, and it was announced by Premier Witos of Poland to the Polish Parliament late last month that the work of making peace was then "nearing completion."

The foregoing message, quoting a Moscow dispatch, embodies the first report of any definite conclusion of the Riga negotiations, and confirmation is lacking from Polish or other sources.

BLAME AMERICANS IN RIOTS.

Filipino Constabulary Chief Urges Punishing Page and Sweet.

MANILA, Feb. 11.—The dismissal from service of Captain Herbert C. Page, an American who commanded the Philippine Constabulary Barracks on the night of the riots at Manila, Dec. 15, when eleven persons were killed, was recommended to Governor General Francis Burton Harrison today by Brig. Gen. Rafael Crame, Filipino commander of the constabulary.

General Crame charged that Captain Page encouraged the enlisted men of the constabulary to take the law in their own hands and to resent any interference or attempt at dispersion by the Manila police. Captain Page was also charged with failure to report the feeling of resentment among the constabulary men toward the police.

A reprimand for Colonel Lucien R. Sweet, an American, and four Filipino officers of the constabulary, for negligence during and after the riots, was also recommended by General Crame.

Seventy-seven enlisted men of the constabulary are on trial on charges of murder in connection with the riots. These men were recently found guilty of sedition in this connection.

Soviet Honors for Prince Kropotkin.

LONDON, Feb. 11 (Jewish Telegraph Agency).—Special preparations are being made by the Russian Soviet authorities for the funeral of the late Prince Kropotkin, who died recently, says a Moscow dispatch today. The funeral will occur on Sunday and the body of the Prince is being brought to Moscow by special train.

BAR ON VILNA FORCE DIVIDES THE SWISS

Opposition in French Sections to Forbidding League Troops to Pass.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Feb. 11.—The refusal of the Swiss Government to allow the passage of League of Nations troops through its territory to supervise the plebiscite in Lithuania has caused a keen controversy in Switzerland.

The general opinion, especially in German Switzerland, is that the Government was right in refusing, but in French Switzerland opinion tends to the view that the Government was wrong, particularly as the troops are not being sent for purposes of war, but to maintain peace or for policing purposes. The reasons for the Government's action, are, firstly, that it fears Socialist opposition and refusal by railway men to work on troop trains, and, secondly, that the old pro-German Party, with the pseudo-Prussian officers, is still very influential.

The Swiss Government has now been asked by the League of Nations Council, which will meet in Paris Feb. 21, to send a representative to the council to discuss the refusal to allow the passage of the plebiscite troops. Article IV, of the covenant stipulates that any member of the League not represented on the council shall be invited to send a representative to sit as a member at any meeting of the council at which matters are considered which especially affect the interests of that member. It is under this article that Switzerland is invited to be represented.

The League Council some time ago decided that the transport and victualling of the force of 1,500 men for Vilna provided by Great Britain, France, Norway, Spain and possibly Holland should be entrusted to Marshal Foch. The Marshal then approached the Swiss Government through the French Embassy in Berne for permission to transport the troops through Switzerland. The Swiss Government in a statement made to Parliament by M. Motta, head of the Political Department, in reply to Colonel Bruegger, refused to accede to Foch's request.

It now seems possible that the Government will reopen the question. Its refusal was not based on any special principle, such as the promise made on behalf of the League Council by A. J. Balfour on Feb. 13, 1920, that Switzerland should not be required to agree to the passage of foreign troops. On the contrary, the refusal was based on expediency, M. Motta thinking that this was not a favorable time for a plebiscite in Lithuania. The question of expediency, it is held in some quarters here, is clearly for the League Council alone to settle and the Swiss Government has gone rather far in raising it. Should Switzerland now agree to let the troops pass on the ground that her objections to the plebiscite are removed, that would absolve the League Council from the necessity of examining her attitude. A question at issue is the right of the Swiss Government as a member of the League to exert influence on the action of the Council in a matter which the Council alone is competent to decide.

The question is considered especially important because the fact that the League headquarters are in Switzerland might mean that similar action might be taken on some other occasion, not in connection with the passage of troops, but in connection with some decision of the Council itself, a decision which might be considered as infringing Swiss neutrality simply because it had been taken on Swiss soil.

SAYS MIRBACH'S SLAYER HAS A SOVIET PLACE

DANZIG, Feb. 11.—Blumkin, one of the men who assassinated Count von Mirbach, German Ambassador to Russia, in Moscow in 1918, is a shining literary light of Moscow and holds a position in the Soviet Government, despite the fact that his crime is no secret about the clubs and cafés, says the magazine Ostwacht, which publishes details to show there has been no attempt to comply with Germany's request that the murderer be brought to trial.

Blumkin belongs to the Left Wing Social Revolutionaries and has a Soviet commission for special assignments, the Ostwacht says, and was attached to the Fifth Bolshevist army for special work. He is widely read, a poet and author. "Literary circles jest about the crime," the magazine adds. "One evening an associate said: 'After all, to be a good author requires more nerve than to throw bombs at a Mirbach.'"

Cope Expedition Sails From the Falkland Islands.

VALPARAISO, Chile, Feb. 11.—Commander John Cope of the British Imperial expedition, which hopes ultimately to reach the South Pole by airplane, sailed from Port Stanley, Falkland Islands, Dec. 20, according to a message received here.

With four companions he purposes to spend eighteen months surveying and charting the western shores of Weddell Sea, and hopes to carry out other scientific investigations in the Antarctic regions. The men will live in tents and depend on seals and penguins for fresh meat.

Former German Steamer Abandoned at Sea—Her Crew Rescued.

MONTREAL, Feb. 11.—The French cargo steamship Victorieux, which left New York Feb. 2 for Cadiz and Tangiers, has been abandoned at sea and her crew rescued by the steamer Cranford, according to a radio message picked up at Cape Race today. The message did not give the position of the ship when she was abandoned or indicate the reason for leaving her.

FLEECED OUT OF $16,000.

Frank P. Reiss of New York Gave It to "Racing Men" at Miami.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—A punctured dream of wealth in which racing men at Miami, Fla., a mythical hotel in Pittsburgh and a vanished bank roll of $16,000 played a part was related to the police here today by Frank P. Reiss, a retired merchant of New York.

Reiss, the police said, reported that while in Miami for his health he had met certain strangers of pleasing presence and convincing tongue who told him how much money could be made in a racing game. He entrusted to them $16,000 in cash, he reported, agreeing to meet his allies in a Pittsburgh hotel they named.

But there was no such hotel in all Pittsburgh, Reiss found, and he stopped off to tell the police here about it before again seeking the trail of the $16,000 in Miami.

FRENCH CAPTURE AINTAB FROM TURKS

SOME OF TURKS' DEMANDS

PARIS, Feb. 11.—In order to strengthen their hand at the new Turkish Peace Conference, scheduled to begin in London on Feb. 21, the French have captured the city Aintab from the Turkish Nationalists, thus spanking Mustapha Kemal with the right hand, while they pat him on the back with the left.

Kemal's fortunes have been on the mend since Viviani induced the League of Nations to ask President Wilson to undertake negotiations with him to save Armenia. In fact they mended so rapidly that he was inclined to defy his French sponsors. But, now that he has lost Aintab, the French expect that his Ambassadors will be more reasonable at London.

Aintab, a city of some 40,000 inhabitants, is just within the French zone of influence under the Treaty of Sevrès, and ever since the Kemalists seized it last year, the French have been trying to get them out. If one has doubts about the reasons for hastening the job, one has only to read the semi-official statements in the French newspapers today. The Temps says that now, having punished the Turks, France is willing to show her old and well-known friendship for them. As the distinguished M. Herbette remarks:

"The Turkish Nationalists can now see their mistake in not reaching an understanding with France. Recently they have been very aggressive on our front and at the same time have prepared a program for the London conference which would reduce the French zone. But now the French troops have entered victoriously into Aintab. The Government at Angora should choose its adversaries, and perhaps also its counselors, better. Aintab having been taken, France is at her ease in going to the London conference."

The Journal des Débats, however, takes a different view. It says it is a good thing that Aintab has been taken, since the French were trying to take it.

"It is all very well that General Gouraud has congratulated his troops," it says, "but it is time that the French Government ceased to waste men and millions in this Asiatic enterprise. What sort of policy have we? In the name of the Turks we demand the revision of the Treaty of Sèvres, and that while we are fighting a bloody battle to remain in positions where we have no right except by that same treaty. France claims for Turkey the restoration of regions where the Turks are in a minority, and France remains in regions where the population is overwhelmingly Turkish."

The French Nationalist press hails the capture of Aintab as a great French victory.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 10.—A decree issued today names as the delegates to the approaching London conference on the Near Eastern situation Osman Nizami Pasha, former Minister of War, who is now in Rome; Mustapha Rechad Pasha, who is in London, and Tewfik Pasha, the Grand Vizier. The Turkish delegates will leave Saturday with their assistants.

Tewfik Pasha asked the Interallied Commission for $86,000 for the expenses of the Turkish delegation. The commission, however, allowed only half of this amount, which will be given to the delegates at the time the delegation boards the train.

The Nationalists, who are awaiting a steamer in Adalia, have asked for no money to defray their expenses.

LONDON, Feb. 11.—A Turkish diplomat who recently arrived in London declared today that the delegates of the Nationalist Government of Mustapha Kemal Pasha and those of the Constantinople Government would unite at the coming London conference on Far Eastern questions to present identical proposals for the modification of the Treaty of Sèvres.

CLEMENCEAU REFUSED TO BE PHONOGRAPHED

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 11.—What Georges Clemenceau did in his life and generation and much of what he wrote and said will be preserved in the history of mankind, but the sound of his voice will die with him, by his own decision. A few weeks before he sailed for India, where he has been hunting tigers with as much success as he used to hunt political opponents out of office in the days when he earned his nickname, he was asked by the Institute of the Sorbonne to allow a phonographic record to be made of his voice so that it might be preserved to future generations. He refused the request with the remark that his tongue had sufficed for his generation and none hereafter was likely to want to hear the sound of it.

When he returns here next month he will be asked to reconsider his decision, for a new scheme is on foot to complete as far as possible the collection of phonographic records of the voices of the famous men now in the institute and at the same time to make a permanent collection of cinematograph films taken on famous occasions. In these joint libraries of disks and films will be preserved for all time the voices and appearance of the famous men of this generation.

CHINA URGENT FOR RADIO.

American Contract Explained in Reply to British Protest.

PEKING, Feb. 11 (Associated Press).—In connection with the efforts of the British to effect a cancellation of the contract entered into between the Ministry of Communications and the American Federal Company for the construction of wireless apparatus, an official of the Prime Minister's office today gave the following explanation of the situation:

"Plans were made by the Aeronautic Department of the Government for forty-odd stations of 300 kilowatts each, but the Ministry of Communications disapproved the plan on the ground that their power would be too small for overseas use. For this reason the Department of Communications negotiated with the American firm for a station of more than 1,000 kilowatts and four stations of 600 kilowatts each to be built in Peking, Harbin, Canton and Hankow.

"The purpose of the Aeronautic Department was to build many small stations inside the country, while the object of the Department of Communications was to erect a few stations powerful enough to reach foreign countries. The Aeronautic Department had an understanding with the Marconi Company, and the contract of the Communications Department with the American firm does not entirely supersede it, because in future, when the Aeronautic Department wants to complete its plan, it will still use the Marconi system.

"There also exists an agreement of the Ministry of the Navy with the Japanese for the construction of wireless apparatus, but the Japanese have not performed their part, and, since the Communications Department could not wait indefinitely, while knowing the Japanese have not the material and therefore are not in a position to perform their part, the Communications Department concluded the American contract without hesitation."

LATIN QUARTER CHEF AMONG WAR HEROES

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 11.—There once was a futurist cook who in the days before the war made his name somewhat famous in Paris. He was called Jules Maincave and naturally he kept a restaurant in the Latin Quarter at which his clients were artists with brush and chisel and not as he was with vegetables and meat. What had become of him has been often asked by old habitués of the quarter who have returned since the war to Paris, and in the Figaro today the story is told of his fate.

Three days after the war began he was mobilized and went to the front in the ranks of the Ninetieth Regiment of French Infantry. After some months of hard fighting he was named cook of his company and at once his genius asserted itself.

He was not content to serve out the usual soldier fare of soup and stew. Beside his field kitchen under a rain of shells and bullets he kept intact his artistic soul. With macaroni, lentils and morsels of army beef he created dishes that were the envy of every other company in the line. With wild herbs gathered in the shell-torn woods he flavored his stews so subtly that officers from other companies used to invite themselves to dinner. His beefsteaks "d'attaque" and cheese soup au pinard were the joy of the whole trench.

Maincave's fame spread, and before the battle of the Somme he was summoned to prepare a meal for the Divisional Staff, at the head of which was General Gouraud. The General tasted his soup and expressed satisfaction. When he reached the delicious pastry he sent for the cook and asked him to make more.

"That gives me more pleasure than my Croix de Guerre," he replied as he departed to fulfill his orders.

Alas, his eagerness led to his death. In the great battle of the Somme in 1916 he pushed forward his kitchen further than was wise in order to give his company the benefit of his art. When told to take his kitchen into a dugout he complained that he could not cook there. A few minutes later a shell fell within a yard of where he was working and the artist chef was picked up lifeless and buried with all the honors his company could render him.

DOUGHERTY TO MAKE HURRIED TRIP TO ROME

Archbishop Will Leave Within Ten Days to Receive Insignia of Cardinal.

ROME, Feb. 11.—Pope Benedict today again expressed the desire that, unless a serious reason prevents, the new Cardinals to be created at the next consistory in March come to Rome to receive the Red Hat. The Pontiff is reported to have said:

"In this, the most solemn moment of their lives, we wish to have the joy ourselves of personally welcoming them to the Sacred College, so that they shall not be denied the privilege of receiving the insignia of office from the actual hands of the Vicar of Christ."

It is expected that Archbishop Dennis J. Dougherty of Philadelphia, whose elevation to the Cardinalate at the coming consistory has been forecast, will make a hasty journey to Rome and an equally hasty return home, as the Pope has also expressed a desire that the new Princes of the Church be back in their dioceses at Easter.

With the date for the public Consistory, at which the red hat is to be conferred, set for March 10, Archbishop Dougherty would have a little over a fortnight for the return to Philadelphia for Easter. Thus his departure from Italy in time would only be possible if one of the fastest steamers left Naples immediately after the Consistory.

The insistence on the presence in Rome for the Consistorial ceremony of the prelates to be elevated contrasts markedly with Consistories in the past, when owing to transportation difficulties, some Cardinals did not personally receive the red hat. These included the famous French Premier Cardinals Richelieu, Mazarin, Fleury and Dubois and the Spanish Premier Cardinal Duc le Lera.

Many friends and admirers of Archbishop Dougherty, learning of his probable elevation, have sent him congratulatory messages, announcing that they are looking forward with pleasure to seeing him soon in Rome.

It is evident that Pope Benedict holds the same views as did Pius X., who speaking to the late Cardinal Farley remarked, "The United States may be said to be as near to Rome as is Naples." Pius X. in saying this recalled that Cardinal McCloskey, the first American Cardinal, rushed to Rome for the Conclave at the death of Pope Pius IX., but arrived when Leo XIII. already was elected. At the latter's death, Cardinal Gibbons reached Rome before the first sitting of the Conclave.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 11.—The Associated Press dispatches from Rome stating that Archbishop Dennis J. Dougherty of Philadelphia would be raised to the Cardinalate were confirmed today. The Archbishop will leave for Rome within ten days, the exact date depending upon steamer accommodations.

GREEK PREMIER CALLS FINANCES DESPERATE

Says Only Hope Is That This Government Will Release 1918 Credits.

ATHENS, Feb. 10 (Associated Press).—Economic conditions in Greece are becoming serious. The exportation of tobacco and other products is at a standstill, the army in Smyrna is costing 3,000,000 drachmas per day, and Treasury receipts are dwindling daily. The new Greek Premier has informed Edward Capps, American Minister to Greece, that the financial situation is "desperate," and has declared that only action by the United States in advancing some $33,000,000 on credits created in 1918 can bring relief.

Importations at the present time are more than three times as great as exportations, and hundreds of thousands of tons of shipping are idle. It is recognized that an internal or private loan is impossible, and the Government faces the necessity of increasing its floating debt by issuing more bank notes, but it hesitates to do so without receiving permission from the International Financial Commission.

Food prices are mounting in proportion to the decline of the exchange rate on the drachma, which at present stands at fifteen to the dollar. It is almost impossible to obtain meat, and belief is expressed that it will soon be necessary for the Government to issue bread tickets. In addition, labor troubles appear threatening. The strike of electricians, which was called this week, may become general unless the men's demands for wage increase are granted.

Naval engineers have occupied the electric power station as a result of the electricians' strike, but the current was suddenly cut off at 7 o'clock last evening. The city was plunged into darkness, and Parliament was forced to adjourn its sitting. A meeting of the Labor Party was dispersed by troops.

It was announced today that the Government would mobilize the strikers if they refused the terms offered them.

TRIESTE EDITORS BATTLE WITH MOB

HAD BUILT A FORTRESS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MILAN, Feb. 11.—Astounding scenes of violence, of which the Trieste Socialist daily Il Lavoratore has been the centre for fully six months past, culminated at midnight in the total destruction of its vast three-story palace by fire. Local Nationalist forces organized an assault on the newspaper offices as a reprisal for the murder of a young carabineer, shot through the heart while bawling Arditi songs in the company of his fiancée in the Socialist quarter of the city at 4 o'clock on Wednesday morning.

Two onslaughts on the edifice were easily repelled, for in anticipation of the attacks the place had been transformed into a fortress. Plentiful stores of ammunition had been accumulated and the Red Guard Corps was doubled, while barriers, observation posts and entrenchments were placed over the whole area.

When the newspaper staff abandoned their blue pencils and typing machines to hurl bombs on the besiegers the tragic moment came. A half dozen bodies lay in the square when Sardinian troops surrounded the block and the Chief of Police advanced with a fifteen-minute ultimatum for surrender. At the expiration of the time limit the managing editor tossed a bunch of keys from an upper window. The authorities entered and arrested sixty-nine members of the staff. When the turn of the head editor, Dr. Trentar, and his directors came to be manacled hand and foot they protested, shouting, "It is we who are masters here!" Their acquiescence was only elicited through stunning blows on the head from the butt end of a rifle.

During this procedure a search for revolutionary documents was going on. The captors and captives alike suddenly realized they were in danger of being roasted alive, for the Arditi stalwarts had rushed into the typographical wing, emptied the benzine stores, deluged the floors and drenched the walls, staircases and furniture, setting the place in a mighty blaze, favored by a furious wind and the recurrent explosions of hidden munitions.

Every effort to stay the outbreak was unavailing. For sixteen hours the fire raged, leaving naught but fused metal remnants and the outer walls. The loss is reckoned in millions. A late message announces a general strike in factories and dockyards.

Since the fire the military has had all its work cut out to avert devastation of the Trieste Labor Chamber by maddened hordes of Fascisti incendiaries.

Grave rioting also is reported from Fiume, where a general strike has been paralyzing civic life for several days.

TO EXHIBIT INDUSTRIAL ART.

Society for Its Revival Will Maintain a Permanent Display.

The permanent exhibition of the Society for the Revival of Industrial Art, a non-commercial organization acting as a clearing house for artists, will open tomorrow afternoon at 816 Fifth Avenue. The home of the exhibition will be on the first and second floors of the residence on the corner of Sixty-third Street and Fifth Avenue, which has been leased from the Gary estate by Senor Mauroner, whose wife, the Contessa Mauroner, is a niece of the Pope, and turned over to the society.

The society's purpose is to encourage the highest type of art at home and abroad by bringing the producer and those interested in his work together, and to establish a source of creative supply unhampered by the need of capital and the opportunity to exhibit. In the collection already in place are remarkable specimens of art work from Belgium, France, England, Italy, Morocco, Russia, Japan, Persia and the United States. When the exhibit opens all the allied countries will be represented.

Mrs. William Alexander is President of the society, whose officers and patrons comprise many well-known persons of this country and Europe.

CECIL IN NON-PARTY GROUP.

Will Head Commons Unit Demanding Economy in British Costs.

LONDON, Feb. 11.—Lord Robert Cecil has definitely intimated his decision to cross the floor of the House of Commons and take his seat on the front opposition bench.

The intimation is contained in a letter written to Lord Edmund Talbot, Chief Unionist, in which Lord Robert explains that he is going increasingly at variance with the Government on a number of public questions and that he will be able to express his views more freely and in a more seemly manner from an opposition seat than from his old seat among the Unionists.

NO YALE HEAD IN SIGHT.

Corporation Meets Today, but Without Indication of an Election.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 11.—There is no outward indication today that the Yale Corporation at its meeting tomorrow will elect a President to succeed President Arthur T. Hadley.

Yale men the country over have been expecting the choice to be made not later than tomorrow so that the new President may meet the alumni on Washington's Birthday. The Alumni Weekly today, reviewing the situation, says that no new names are likely to appear and "we hope the election will now be made."

FORDNEY URGES NEED OF TARIFF REVISION

Present Depression, He Contends, Is Due to Insufficient Duty Rates.

CHARGES FREE TRADE PLOT

Asserts This Is No Time for Searching for Excuses to Delay or Defeat Revision.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—Resentment was expressed today by Chairman Fordney of the House Ways and Means Committee, over statements that, despite the wishes of President-elect Harding and many Republican members of the committee, he was pushing aside legislation affecting taxation and trying to supersede this with tariff legislation.

Mr. Fordney charged that opposition to proceeding with tariff legislation at this time was due to "the propaganda of the free trader." He maintained that the tariff preparation was necessary because the present depression of industry was due to an insufficient tariff.

"No Republican members of the committee would father a statement that the importance of tariff legislation is to be judged solely by the amount of revenue it directly produces, for tariff for revenue is a Democratic proposal that was buried last November beyond resurrection," said Mr. Fordney in a statement this afternoon.

"The amount of revenue to be collected from taxes on income and taxes on sales and in fact all internal levies depends directly upon the success of American industries and the earnings and purchasing power of the American people. Failure of our tax laws will be coincident with business depression. At present industries are languishing and unemployment is on the increase and our revenues are shrinking. Existing conditions are the inevitable results of the inadequate tariff law now in force. Without business revival, our revenue laws will be impotent.

"American prosperity in the past has been founded on protection to American products from ruinous foreign competition. The disparity between production costs here and abroad is greater than in the pre-war period. To save our industries and the earning power of the American people no time should be lost in replacing the present tariff law, and if there is to be tariff revision at the coming special session work thereon must proceed without interruption. In the past tariff revision has required about nine months from the date of beginning hearings. We cannot hope to do much better than that this year.

"The discord referred to is unknown to me. Some free trade desire, I would say, is the father of the thought. Work is progressing favorably, and I believe no Republican member will disagree with me when I assert that the time is past for searching for excuses for delaying or defeating tariff revision. The committee is securing satisfactory information from many sources, and if there is any obstacle in the path of tariff revision it is the same obstacle that has existed in the past and will exist in the future, and that is the propaganda of the free trader."

Work on the emergency tariff bill will be resumed tomorrow by the Senate, but the adherents of the bill seem to have given up hope that it will be passed at this session. Senator Penrose, Chairman of the Finance Committee, continues to make optimistic predictions that the opposition will die out and a vote will be taken on the bill, but there are not many who agree with him.

CABLE ALLOCATION DELAYED

French Delegates Seek Fresh Instructions From Paris.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—The International Communications Conference, charged with allocating the former German cables among the five great allied and associated powers, reassembled at the State Department today, and, after a short session, adjourned until next Tuesday in order that the delegations might obtain fresh instructions from their respective Governments, it was stated.

It was understood that the French delegation, headed by Ambassador Jusserand, was desirous of getting in touch with its Government because of the changes in the French Ministry.

Immediately after adjourning Ambassador Jusserand had a conference with Under Secretary of State Davis, who is Chairman of the Communications Conference. It was not disclosed whether the French Government's representatives were prepared today to present a project for the distribution of the cables. At former sessions, while objecting to the American and Italian proposals, the French delegation offered no substitute.

There never has been any serious divergence of opinion on the part of the British delegation from the views of the American Government, and it is known that the Italian delegation has been supporting the American contentions, which coincide with Italy's, from the beginning of the conferences. The Japanese and French delegations have resisted the American plan for cable distribution.

Ambassador Shidehara represented Japan at the conference today; Counselor Giuseppe Brambilla, Italy, and R. Levie Craigie, Secretary of Embassy, Great Britain. Chairman Davis expressed confidence that a satisfactory settlement would be reached by or soon after March 4.

BERNE, Feb. 11.—Continental banks have lately been plagued with counterfeit banknotes, particularly those purporting to come from new European countries like Jugoslavia and Czechoslovakia. Polish thousand-mark notes are worth less than $2, yet numbers of them have been smuggled into Switzerland.

The police have just discovered the existence of a large counterfeiting press at Wiesbaden, with forged notes for 20,000,000 marks. Altogether twelve persons have been arrested at Frankfort, Wiesbaden, Mayence and Ingolstadt, where another counterfeiting press was discovered.

A dispatch received today by the Navy Department gave no further details. Lieutenant Menken's home was at Garden City, Kansas, and that of Lieutenant Wolfer at Lancaster, Pa.

PROVINCES THREATEN TO DESERT VIENNA

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Feb. 11.—Another nasty jar from its component parts has been sustained by the ramshackle Austrian Federal Constitution. A meeting was held yesterday at Salzburg of the finance committees of the eight different provinces constituting the federation and including Vienna, at which drastic demands were drawn up for presentation to the Federal Government. These provinces hitherto had no taxing rights, the revenue being granted to them by the central Government, and now they have petitioned for much increased grants owing to the catastrophic nature of their budgets.

Many proposals are made, such as increased cash payments, surrender of profits on exchange arising from timber export to various provinces, assumption of new burdens by the State and, if need be, the granting of loans without interest. But the jar is contained in the threat that if these demands are not acceeded to within four weeks the various provinces will assume taxing rights and make themselves financially independent of the Viennese Government. Such an act would be both highly unconstitutional and highly dangerous, but it is unlikely that the provinces will go so far as to carry out their threat, although it is symptomatic of the disintegration process proceeding more rapidly among the provinces the longer foreign credits are withheld.

At the same time these impossible demands were being formulated the revised budget estimates were being prepared by the Finance Minister showing the estimated deficit had increased by 12,000,000,000 kronen to 42,000,000,000. By the end of the financial year even this deficit will have been swallowed up in a much larger one.

GIFT TO AMBASSADOR DAVIS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 11.—The Governors of the Sulgrave Institution met today at the American Embassy to make farewell gifts to Ambassador and Mrs. Davis. To the Ambassador Lord Weardale presented a large picture, by Stephen Reid, of the Washington family home, saying that he trusted it would remind Mr. Davis when in America of the beauties of English scenery. The Ambassador, he said, had inspired the Institution, which he found in a somewhat stagnant condition, with new spirit. His tenure of office had been most successful, and no one of the long and distinguished line of his predecessors had surpassed him in the ability and courtesy with which he had fulfilled his duties.

Lord Bryce presented to Mrs. Davis a Georgian silver teapot and an album of views of the interior of the Manor House. Alluding to the date of the teapot (1787), Lord Bryce remarked that it was the year of the famous convention that had won so much admiration in this country.

Dr. John S. Finley was another speaker, welcoming the Ambassador back to the United States.

Dancer's Mother Objects to 1,000,000-Franc Legacy to Harry Pilcer.

PARIS, Feb. 10.—According to a report from Marseilles, suit is to be brought there by the mother of the late Gaby Deslys disputing some legacies left by the famous dancer.

It is stated that the principal legacy which will be disputed is that of 1,000,000 francs left by Gaby to her dancing partner, Harry Pilcer. Part of this sum Pilcer has devoted to buying some of the jewels and personal belongings of his partner. According to her will, all these jewels were to be sold for the benefit of the poor of her native town, Marseilles, and Pilcer, with the double object of obtaining souvenirs of his friend and at the same time benefiting the poor to whom she wished the money to go, was one of the principal bidders at the auction sale of her effects. In all, he spent a considerable part of her legacy to him in this way and became the possessor of many of Gaby's famous strings of pearls.

AID FOR JEWISH EMIGRANTS.

London Conference Called to Unify Work of Existing Organizations.

LONDON, Feb. 11 (Jewish Telegraphic Agency).—Preparations are being made for the holding of a conference here in the near future for the purpose of uniting the various bodies existing in the different countries for aiding Jewish emigrants. Representatives of Jewish organizations from England, France, Belgium, Holland and other countries will attend.

The chief object of the conference will be to create one agency which will cooperate at all points and be able to help and guide the emigrant from the moment he leaves home until he reaches America. Only in this manner, it is believed, can most of the difficulties new facing emigrants in transit be obviated.

Senate Votes $15,000 Salary for Future Vice Presidents.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—The Senate voted unanimously today to increase the salary of the Vice President from $12,000 to $15,000 a year, the increase to become effective, provided it is concurred in by the House and is approved by President Wilson, when Vice President-elect Coolidge assumes office, three weeks from today.

The increase does not apply to the salary of the Speaker of the House, and Senator Smoot suggested the Speaker should be included.

No action was taken on Senator Smoot's suggestion to increase the salary of the Speaker.

Treasury Needs More Room for Gold

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—Congress was asked today to provide more space here for the storing of Government funds. Abolishment of the subtreasuries has resulted in the transfer of all gold to the Federal Treasury here, and has choked the great vault, Assistant Secretary Gilbert told the House Public Buildings Committee. An extra vault should be provided at the earliest possible date, he said.

WON'T KEEP TROOPS AT MATEWAN TRIALS

TESTIMONY STARTS TODAY

Two of the Twenty-one Defendants Are Dismissed on Motion of the Prosecutors.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Feb. 11.—The War Department has refused a request of Governor John J. Cornwell of West Virginia that Federal troops, on coal strike duty at Williamson, be maintained there until the Matewan battle trial is brought to a close. This statement was made here tonight by the Governor, who said the Adjutant General of the Army had notified him that the soldiers would be withdrawn "on scheduled time."

The Adjutant General informed the Governor that Major Gen. Reed, commander of the area, had been instructed to proceed with the withdrawal of troops in conformity with the policy of the War Department.

Governor Cornwell tonight notified Judge E. D. Bailey of the Circuit Court, in which the Matewan trial is in progress, of the answer he received from the Adjutant General.

As soon as the Adjutant General's reply was received the Governor conferred with Colonel Jackson S. Arnold, Superintendent of the State Department of Public Safety. He instructed the Colonel to proceed to Williamson at once, to take charge of the situation, and to "exercise all the authority vested in you by the act creating the department." It was reported here tonight that practically all members of the State police force are already on duty in the Mingo region. They were transferred to that section last month when two companies of Federal troops were removed.

Will Be Withdrawn Feb. 16.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Feb. 11.—Federal troops on strike duty in Williamson, W. Va., will be withdrawn Feb. 16, Major Charles Thompson, Assistant Chief of Staff to Major Gen. Reed, commander of the Fifth Army Corps area, announced tonight.

WILLIAMSON, W. Va., Feb. 11.—Testimony will be taken tomorrow in the Matewan shooting trial. Counsel for both sides and the Court are agreed on that point. Nineteen defendants instead of twenty-one will be tried on charges growing out of the death of Albert C. Felts during a pistol battle in the West Virginia mountain town.

Two of the co-defendants, N. H. Atwood and B. R. Page, were today dismissed on motion of the prosecution.

Judge Baile made good his threat to lock up witnesses if found who failed to appear in court. John Smith Baisden, whose testimony is regarded as very important by the prosecution, was placed in jail after being found by a Deputy Sheriff. Baisden had failed to answer roll call yesterday.

ter of Propaganda, was arrested here tonight. His arrest is considered as probably the most important since Arthur Griffith, founder of the Sinn Fein, was taken into custody.

The official survey of conditions in Ireland during the week ended Feb. 5, issued today, says the feature of the week was the increased frequency of bomb attacks on police and military lorries on the streets of Dublin, "showing a callous disregard of public safety." There were seven such attacks during the week. The casualties of the Crown forces were slight, but one boy was killed and fourteen other persons injured.

The survey states that Sinn Feiners assassinated four civilians during the week. Ninety-seven arrests were made for outrages and political offenses. Eighty-four courts-martial were held for the trial of civilians, resulting in sixty-six convictions and two death sentences, one of which was commuted. The other sentences ranged from ten months to fifteen years imprisonment.

In the seven days 187 persons were interned, making the total of persons under internment 1,855.

The statistics on outrages, as given in the survey, up to Feb. 5, include a total of seventy Court Houses destroyed, 535 police barracks destroyed, and 205 barracks damaged. The raids for arms have numbered 3,932.

MALLOW AFFAIR TO HOUSE.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 11.—After a prolonged sitting today the Executive Committee of the National Union of Railwaymen decided not to join in the threatened strike of locomotive engineers and drivers. Parliamentary action instead of direct action in the matter of the Mallow affair will be the policy of the Union of Railwaymen, and J. H. Thomas, M. P., has been authorized to raise a demand in the House of Commons for a public inquiry not only to investigate the cause of the Mallow tragedy, "but to insure protection for railway men in execution of their duty."

In a statement issued by Thomas giving this decision there was no reference to the possibility of a strike. Bromley of the Engineers and Firemen's Union, when informed of the decision, said it would make no difference in their action, as a strike would be declared unless the Government gave complete satisfaction.

There was a hard struggle in the council chamber before the Executive Committee issued its statement, which is evidently a compromise between two hostile sections, one wishing to join the engineers and firemen in an immediate strike and the other desiring to keep clear of the dispute.

DUBLIN, Feb. 11.—The military inquiry into the shooting of a number of railway men at Mallow on Jan. 31 by the police, in connection with which railway men are threatening to strike, today rendered a verdict of murder "against persons unknown." The inquiry had been adjourned for five days in order to enable witnesses to testify, but no witnesses appeared.

600 ARE ARRESTED IN RAID ON DANCE

DETECTIVES GET IN BY RUSE

Charges of Violating Law Against Indecent Dancing Made Against Six Persons.

One of the biggest raids, in point of numbers, ever attempted by the police of this city was executed late last night, when they seized 600 prisoners attending a smoker and "sociable" of the Majestic Social Club at Odd Fellows Hall, 98 Forsyth St.

The proprietor and five women and two men were arrested on the charge of violating the criminal statute barring indecent dancing and the spectators were locked up on charges of disorderly conduct.

The raid was conducted by Inspector Coleman after the successful strategy of two members of his staff, Detectives Meany and White. The two detectives had heard that the affair was to be of an indecent nature. Gossip in Grand Street, where the club's activities centred, was that it would be the most daring entertainment ever attempted in New York and the Inspector determined, if anything of the sort were attempted, to prevent it.

Meany and White, with much difficulty, got two tickets to the sociable, which, though they were sold for $2 each, were guarded carefully from the general public. When they reached the hall they were accosted by a "bouncer," who demanded to know where they got the tickets.

"Won 'em in a crap game," exclaimed Meany roughly. "Get out of our way; we're going to see this show."

Apparently the man at the door decided Meany and his companion were all right, for he allowed them to pass. Inside the two detectives produced a bottle of tea and proceeded to enjoy their imitation "hootch" to the envy of some less fortunately equipped spectators. No one suspected that they were not "regular fellows."

The performance proceeded. When Meany was satisfied he had enough evidence to justify him in acting, he was seized with a sudden illness. He staggered out. Made contact with Inspector Coleman near by, and a call was sent for the reserves and patrol wagons from a dozen downtown districts.

As soon as the first squad of reserves arrived, every exit from the building was picketed, and White made his way to the platform, where he informed the performers that they were in the hands of the law, and that all those who had lent their presence also were under arrest.

Patrolmen made their way down the aisles and shepherded the spectators out, a few at a time, patrol wagon after patrol wagon being filled and hustled away.

All the prisoners were booked at the Clinton Street Station, after which they were divided among a number of downtown precincts, as no single station house had cells enough to accommodate them.

Many young men from the east side were in the audience, and when word spread among their parents that they had been arrested the station houses were besieged by tearful women and excited men seeking to have them released.

The dancers and performers arrested were SophieTrimmer of 511 Eighth Avenue, Sylvia Wayne of 1,995 Crescent Avenue, the Bronx; Ada Burt of 310 West Fifty-first Street, Alice Treblau, Fifty-seventh Street and Eeighth Avenue; Blanche Meyers of 511 Eighth Avenue, Morris Kaplon of 1,801 Seventh Avenue and Jack Seeden, a camera man, of 279 East Third Street. The man arrested as supervisor of the premises was Samuel Perles. He is charged with permitting an indecent performance.

SAW GIBBONEY'S BODY.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 11.—Evidence that Charles D. Gibboney and three friends were drowned in the Bay of Campeche, Mexico, on Dec. 28 is in the hands of Lawrence P. Sharpless, son of a manufacturer of West Chester, who has just returned from Mexico.

Mr. Sharpless talked with an American who saw the Gibboney party start across the bay in an open canoe during a storm, and also talked with a prominent Mexican merchant, who later saw the bodies of the four Americans lying on the beach near Champotan.

"I have conclusive proof that Mr. Gibboney and the three others lost their lives in the Bay of Campeche," Mr. Sharpless said today at West Chester.

"I returned to New Orleans from Frontera, Mexico, with Edward A. Wood, a chicle buyer for a large Chicago firm," Mr. Sharpless continued. "He sailed from New York for Progreso, Yucatan, on the same boat with Mr. Gibboney and the others of his party.

"Mr. Wood has a description of the whole disaster, written in Spanish, which he got from the Coroner at Champotan. He also has statements from other natives. Mr. Wood expressed his intention of giving this evidence to the Markley family.

"Before leaving Mexico I also talked to Jose Rivas, a reputable mahogany dealer of Carmen, who is our representative in Mexico.

"Mr. Rivas stated that he had viewed the bodies of the four victims and that there was no doubt of their identity. Mr. Rivas also talked to one of the surviving natives who was in the canoe when it was capsized and who stated positively that all of the Americans were lost."

CHILD TALKS A WEEK.

Special to The New York Times.

WAUKEGAN, Ill., Feb. 11.—Miriam, the eight-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Rubin of this city, has been talking constantly since Saturday, Feb. 5, and all efforts by medical specialists and other to stop her have failed.

A week ago today the girl complained of pains in her arms and shoulders. The following night she began talking, sometimes rapidly, sometimes slowly. She has kept up the conversation with members of the family and attendants ever since, going without sleep except for two hours last Monday night. Even during her slumbers she kept on talking.

Her father, one of the proprietors of a department store here, quoted a specialist as saying he never had heard of a similar case or one so puzzling.

The theory was advanced that the malady might be a forerunner of sleeping sickness or pneumonia. The child always has enjoyed normal health, Mr. Rubin says, except that perhaps she has been a trifle nervous at times.

The little girl carries on ordinary conversations and talks in the usual childlike way about dolls, dolls' dresses, playthings, school and all the affairs of childhood.

Brain and other tests made by the specialist indicate her vital organs are functioning normally. Her appetite also is good. With the exception of short periods the girl has been perfectly conscious and she talks rationally.

Early in the week another Chicago specialist was called, but he also was unable to determine the nature of Miriam's illness.

MRS. SHERIDAN'S ART WORK.

Her Sculptures, Including Famous Russian Busts, to Be Exhibited Here

Preparations are now under way in the building of the American Numismatic Society at Broadway and 156th Street for an exhibition of the work of Mrs. Clare Sheridan, the sculptress, including the much talked of Russian busts.

The exhibition will include about twenty-four pieces in all—busts and statuettes in the main. On Feb. 18, 19 and 20 the work will be on private view, and thereafter the public is expected to take full advantage of the opportunity to view the busts of the Soviet chiefs, to model which Mrs. Sheridan went to Soviet Russia.

Yesterday a TIMES reporter had the pleasure of seeing the busts of Tretzky, Krassin, Kameneff, Zinoviev andDsirjinski reposing side by side with those of Winston Churchill, Asquith and with a delightful little head of a child in marble, which will be cataloged simply as "Marble Baby." This head, life size and lifelike, carried with it the same conviction of wonderful softness and fragility which one receives from the head of a small infant. It seemed from a different world as compared with the Russian busts.

A bronze statuette, a seated figure of Lady Randolph Churchill, a Siamese head, also in bronze, and a plaster head of the artist's son, Richard, will also be included in the exhibition, which will continue until March 19.

Referring to the Russian busts, the Secretary of the American Numismatic Society said: "It is not the society's task to assign to Mrs. Sheridan a place in the world of art, but we are extremely glad to be able to offer this exhibition to the public. If it comprised the Russian subjects alone, it would be of importance, as the modeled busts of these people, from a purely historic viewpoint, cannot fail to be of the greatest interest."

BORGLUM DESIGN CHOSEN.

Bronze Figure for Military Monument the Largest in America.

Announcement was made yesterday by Ralph E. Lum, representing the executors of the estate of the late Amos Van Horn of Newark, that Gutzon Borglum had been chosen to make the sailors' and soldiers' monument for which Mr. Van Horn set aside $100,000 in his will. Mr. Borglum's idea of a heroic bronze group was chosen by a committee from among dozens of designs.

"The Mobilization of America" is the title Mr. Borglum suggested for his group. The bronze will be forty to forty-three feet long, eighteen feet high—twenty-four feet with the pedestal—and will contain forty-three figures. The figures in the group will be seven feet eight inches high.

"This is the largest group ever built or proposed in America," Mr. Borglum said. "It tells the complete story of a nation's effort as no other monument has ever attempted to do. The front of the group is composed of several men, fully uniformed and definitely at the edge of the battle in the presence of danger. This is shown by their attitude, by the general structure of the ground, by the agitation of the horses and by the rounding of one of the men engaged in harnessing the horses. Back of the entire group is a soldier bidding good-bye to his wife and children, indicating in a very simple and descriptive manner the motive which induces a peaceful nation to take up arms."

CAPT. F. F. STOLL SUED.

Captain Frederick F. Stoll, formerly President of the United States Photoplay Corporation, who was removed recently by the Directors after he had been missing for some time and had turned up in Los Angeles, Cal., is accused in papers filed in the Supreme Court yesterday of taking nearly all the bank account of the corporation when he went. On the allegations Supreme Court Justice Ford granted an attachment against Stoll's property on the ground that he left the State of New York to avoid paying his creditors.

The corporation sues for $16,166, and alleges that Captain Stoll owed $19,316, but that his automobile has been sold for $3,150, which has been credited on his account. The money is being held by the agent who sold the car and the purpose o the attachment is to get the money before Stoll obtains it from his agent.

Claude E. Miller, Treasurer of the corporation, alleges that Stoll paid himself $14,000, or $500 a week, from June to December as director of the film "Determination," but that he did nothing toward producing the picture and had no skill for that purpose.

STUDENTS DEFEND DANCES.

Carnegie Institute Paper Also Declares Short Skirts "Sensible."

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 11.—The short skirt, as decreed by present-day fashions, is approved, and dances of the day are defended, in an editorial in this week's issue of The Tartan, official student paper of the Carnegie Institute of Technology.

The short skirt gives to women and girls "plenty of freedom to move as nature intended she should," says The Tartan, which terms the fashion "sensible."

"We have attended several dances during the last wee," The Tartan declares, "and no shocking décolletés were noticed, except possibly on matrons who should have known better. The 'shimmy' is spoken of quite heatedly, but we have never seen it carried to the extremes which others rave about, and we have attended a few parties."

DURYEA HOUSEKEEPER WINS

General's Estate Must Pay Miss Anna Lewis $25,000.

Miss Anna Lewis, past fifty years old, obtained a verdict of $25,000 against the estate of the late General Hiram Duryea, Civil War veteran and head of Duryea's Zouaves, from a jury in the Queens County Supreme Court at Long Island City yesterday.

Miss Lewis alleged in her complaint that in 1912 General Duryea engaged her to become housekeeper for him and for his son Chester at their home, 80 Madison Avenue, New York, at $40 a month and give her maintenance for life. She continued as housekeeper until General Duryea was shot and killed by his son, May 5, 1914. The claim was contested by Cornelius Van Brunt and Harry H. Duryea, executors of the General Duryea estate.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 11.—Jacob Skullnick of New York was tried, convicted and sentenced here today to serve from eleven and one-half to twelve years in the Eastern Penitentiary on charges of setting fire to a factory building on Jan. 26.

Skullnick, who was found by firemen hiding in the building which he was charged with attempting to burn, is said to have confessed that he had come here from New York with a stranger, who promised him $1,000 for starting the fire. He retracted the confession, however, and pleaded not guilty.

Says Ford Company Infringes Patent

BOSTON, Feb. 11.—A bill in equity against the Ford Motor Company of Detroit, alleging infringement of a patent by the use of certain starting, generating and ignition apparatus on the cars of the company, was filed in the Federal Court today by William B. Moses of Watertown, who claims to be the exclusive owner of the patent. Lalline & Partridge, Inc., of this city, selling agents, are named as co-defendants in the suit, which seeks to prevent the further making or marketing of the apparatus mentioned, and asks for an accounting of profits and for damages.

$25,000 FOR WOMEN HELD UP BY CRAIG

ITS WORK INVESTIGATED

Office Expenses to Be $10,000 in Spending Remaining $15,000 for Reconstruction, Examiners Say.

The Mayor's Committee of Women on Reconstruction, of which Mrs. W. R. Hearst is Chairman and Mrs. John F. Hylan Honorary Chairman, requested the Board of Estimate yesterday for $25,000 in special revenue bonds to cover the proposed expenses of the committee's work during 1921. Deputy Controller Henry Smith, who represents Controller Craig at Board of Estimate meetings, refused to consent to the resolution, and it went over until next week. It then became known that the matter had been under investigation by the Controller's office.

Examiners from the Controller's office in a report on the Reconstruction and Relief Committee disclosed that $10,000 of the amount requested is to be used as office expenses in the disposal of the remaining $15,000. The expenses are tabulated as follows: Salary of Vice Chairman and Secretary, $3,900; salary of secretary to Treasurer, $1,820; salary of secretary to Committee on Fuel and Milk Distribution, $1,300; salary of stenographer and office assistant, $1,300; office supplies, $1,680.

Of the remaining $15,000 the examiners' report shows that $5,000 is to be used for supplying pure milk to "undernourished mothers and children" and for the distribution of free coal "where necessity is shown"; $5,000 for investigations of tuberculosis and drug addict cases, for all-day water trips around the city, and $5,000 to a subcommittee on Americanization, "which conducts public sessions aiming to a better class of citizenship and teaching aliens how to become citizens." This latter comprises lectures in public schools and community centres.

The Controller is investigating a report that at one of these lectures Corporation Counsel O'Brien made a campaign speech in behalf of the Mayor. The report shows that all the work of the Committee of Women on Reconstruction and Relief is covered by two city departments—the Department of Public Welfare and the Department of Education. The committee has elaborate rooms in the Hall of Records, and Mrs. Nelson H. Henry, social secretary to Mrs. Hearst, is in charge of the work.

The report shows further that the committee spent more than $58,000 last year, the money being used from the fund of the Mayor's Markets Special Surplus Committee. Upward of $300,000 was turned over to the fund by Commissioner Day when he left the Markets Commission. Of the amount, $38,000 was spent for milk and $19,000 for coal.

The Board of Aldermen, on Jan. 11, adopted a resolution to appropriate the $25,000 asked for yesterday, and a week later Mayor Hylan approved it. It was dropped from subsequent Board of Estimate calendars, but yesterday's calendar contained this notice: "The Committee on Finance and Budget directs that this matter be restored to the calendar and recommends its approval." Since Controller Craig resigned as Chairman of the Finance and Budget Committee, the Mayor has taken his place.

It was pointed out yesterday that it is the first time that a committee had "directed" that a matter to come before the board be acted upon. When the matter comes up next week, only twelve votes will be required for passage, but it is expected that the votes of the Controller, the President of the Board of Aldermen and the President of the Borough of Manhattan will defeat it.

PUTS BRITISH RAILWAY CLAIMS AT £150,000,000

Government Committee Criticises War Control—Demands May Reach £400,000,000.

LONDON, Feb. 11.—The British Government may have to pay £150,000,000 in claims as a result of its control of the railroads during the war, according to estimates submitted today by a Government committee which investigated the situation. The claims are divided as follows: £90,000,000 for arrears in maintenance, £40,000,000 for abnormal wear and tear and £20,000,000 for the replacement of stores.

It is understood the railway companies may make other claims, but that the committee is of the opinion that no others will be admissible.

The report of the Government committee, known as the Colwyn Committee, is a voluminous document. It seems to portend serious disputes between the railway companies and the Government when Government control ends. The report reveals that agreements between the Government and the companies were made with "lamentable looseness."

So far as the public is concerned the report indicates that the Government made a bad bargain with the railways, inasmuch as the executives, as experts, had complete advantage over Government officials, who were not experts and who were overwhelmed with the consideration of war measures.

The committee finds that the effects would have been less serious had control ended with the war, but the control "developed into a comprehensive financial transaction entirely divorced from military considerations, and continued long after the circumstances which originally justified it ceased to exist," with the result of a gradual bettering of the bargain in favor of the companies.

The committee makes a number of recommendations with a view to resisting expected excessive claims for maintenance which, it is believed by the committee, the companies intend to make, and which, according to some unofficial estimates, reach as high as £400,000,000.

The report says that as early as 1916 twenty-three railway companies were incurring an expenditure on maintenance at the cost of the Government which appeared to be excessive. The report considers £150,000,000 as an aggregate justifiable claim.

Sir Eric Geddes, the Minister of Transport, refused tonight to comment on the report. He said, however, that it was the Government's intention to deal fairly and justly with the holders of railway securities.

EDUCATORS NEAR DEATH.

Yale Theologians Pinned Under Car at River's Brink.

SEYMOUR, Conn., Feb. 11.—Three occupants of an automobile on its way to Waterbury from New Haven had a narrow escape from death early tonight when the machine went over an embankment hereand came to a stop against a tree, a few yards from the Naugatuck River.

The Rev. Dr. Charles R. Brown, dean of the Yale Divinity School, sustained lacerations on the head from broken glass, and the Rev. Dr. Henry H. Tweedy, Professor of Practical Theology at Yale, suffered a fractured collar bone and lacerations on the face. Harley S. Roberts, an instructor in the Taft School at Watertown, driver of the automobile, was shaken up.

When Roberts turned out for a crowd of factory employes the car got into the trolley tracks, and when he tried to get back to the road the car skidded and plunged down the embankment for a distance of forty feet. When the machine struck a tree it overturned and the three occupants had to be taken from beneath it.

LIVED IN EXHAUST PIPE, GOT FOOD ON STREETS

Man, 50 Years Old, Goes to Workhouse Where Beard Will Not Be Singed.

Policeman Zipf of the Old Slip station saw an emaciated man, poorly garbed searching ash cans for bits of food yesterday at Whitehall and South Streets. The policeman arrested and araigned him on a charge of vagrancy in the Tombs Court. There the prisoner said he was Antonio Bolakoruf, 50 years old, without home, friends or relatives, and that he had been unable to get work or to support himself properly since he came here from Russia several years ago.

"He isn't exactly homeless, but near it," the policeman informed the Magistrate. "He lived in a pipe—"

"In a what?" interrupted Magistrate Cobb. Policeman Zipf explained that Bolakoruf had slept and lived in the open end of an exhaust pipe, four feet in diameter, connected with a building at Greenwich and White Streets. Bolakoruf, he said, nad shown him this retreat, where he had made a bed in the bottom curve of the pipe with pieces of matting and clothing.

"Sometimes hot air and heat sent out of the pipe forced the man from his home," commented the policeman, "and he complained to me that the only fault with it was that heat frequently singed his whiskers and hair."

"Why, he must be a real disciple of Diogenes," remarked the Magistrate. "Did he have a lantern, too?"

Bolakoruf interposed, saying he had never heard of Diogenes, but that it was the only place he could find to get out of the cold and wet at night. The Court sent him to the workhouse for thirty days.

LIVES BY FORMING CLUBS.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Feb. 11.—William Y. Jackman, promoter of the Continental Athletic Club of New York, whose activities the District Attorney of New York is investigating, is in this city promoting the formation of the Syracuse Athletic Club.

Jackman was not in the least perturbed by the news from New York of the investigation. He declared he was able to show audits of his accounts, relieving him of any suspicions or accusations, and that he had nothing to fear.

He has set up offices here, and while, so far, he has been able to interest only a handful of the leading men in his project, he appears to be confident, or did until tonight, that the Syracuse Athletic Club will be a certainty. He has enrolled about fifty men besides the original backers as members.

In an interview, in which he denied every charge and insinuation made against him in New York, Jackman revealed that he is a professional promotor of athletic clubs. He promoted a club in Toledo, one in Detroit, one in New York and others which he did not specify.

According to Jackman, all of these projects have been highly remunerative to him, due to the contracts which he signed before beginning work, but in no case has a clubhouse been built.

The Detroit Club, known as the Tippecanoe A. C., paid him $10,000 in cash to give up his contract and drop his work. The New York Club, known as the Continental A. C., agreed to pay him $15,000 to give up his contract and drop his work, but has actually paid him only $2,000 so far. He got approximately $45,000 for organizing, or starting to organize, the Continental Club. He expects to get $87,000 for organizing the Syracuse Club, working here on a commission of 18 per cent.

Jackman's invariable rule in promoting athletic clubs, or anything else, is that "first money" is his, a detail which explains why his work has been personally fruitful even if the clubs unfortunately fail to get ahead after he has been bought off and his contract surrendered.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—The Pusey & Jones Company, one of the largest shipbuilding concerns on the Atlantic Coast, with shipyards at Wilmington, Del., and Gloucester Point, N. J., which was the beneficiary of an order signed by Justice Frederick L. Siddons of the District of Columbia Supreme Court restraining the Emergency Fleet Corporation from foreclosing a $5,000,000 mortgage on its yards, began today the second stage of the proceedings to compel the Fleet Corporation to pay it immediately $5,396,000.

Justice Siddons took under advisement a petition for a writ of mandamus to force the payment of this money, regardless of the fact that the plaintiff company is now involved in the United States Court of Claims in a proceeding involving a total of $14,000,000 alleged to be due from the Fleet Corporation.

The money is claimed as being lawfully due on a contract to build and deliver thirty-four merchant ships now in control of the Fleet Corporation.

The shipbuilders claimed that the Fleet Corporation awarded it the sum of $7,194,975. The Fleet Corporation explained that the award was made with the understanding that $3,776,787 would be deducted for moneys paid to the Cunard Line on behalf of the plaintiff company.

The Pusey & Jones Company now claims $5,396,000 under the law which directs the Fleet Corporation to pay outright three-fourths of what it considers just compensation in regard to the claims of shipbuilders and allows the balance to be settled in the Court of Claims.

The present proceedings in a law court, it is claimed, do not conflict with proceedings in the Court of Claims involving the $14,000,000.

SENATE BACKS FARM LOANS.

Votes for Purchase of $100,000,000 Bonds to Provide Credits.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—The Appropriation bill rider authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to purchase $100,000,000 Federal Farm Loan bonds to provide credits for farmers, pending decision by the Supreme Court in the litigation testing the constitutionality of the Farm Loan law, was adopted today by the Senate. It now awaits approval by the House.

A substitute by Chairman McLean of the Banking Committee to limit purchase of Farm Loan securities to $8,000,000 annually for ten years was defeated. The Senator said his proposal had the support of Secretary Houston. The Farm Loan Board was said to have endorsed the amendment adopted.

WILSON VISITS NEW HOME.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—President Wilson spent several hours today at the house here he will make his home after his retirement from office on March 4.

It was the President's second visit to the house since he purchased it, and, with Mrs. Wilson, he spent considerable time in going over his belongings which have recently been brought here from Princeton, N. J., and indicating where he desired them to be placed. The President paid particular attention to the books of his library and to their arrangement in the racks.

All of Mr. Wilson's furniture which was in storage in Princeton has been received, and there remains only the moving of the few personal effects of the President and Mrs. Wilson from the White House.

SUICIDE' ARRESTED IN MURDER HUNT

EATH NOTE ON BODY

olice Now Believe Other Man, Claimed by Two Women as Husband, Had Been Slain.

CAMDEN, N. J., Feb. 11.—After an bsence of two weeks, William F. Walker returned to the home of 16-year-ld bride early this morning, only to alk into the arms of detectives who ad been waiting for him ever since oubt was cast on his pretended suicide Wilmington, Del., on Jan. 27.

Walker, who is 36 years old and hose bride, a mission worker, says he on her by threatened to shoot her and er mother unless she consented to the nion, will be held until the authorities f both Delaware and New Jersey have atisfied themselves as to how the man, pon whose body in Wilmington was inned a note indicating that the dead an was Walker and that he had slain imself, actually met his death. The trange case is complicated by the fact hat the Delaware police thus far are atisfied that this really did commit suiide and that his body has been identiied by two women each claiming him s her husband.

Walker's bride was Dorothy McCabe f 243 Kaighn Avenue, when Walker, an nemployed man frequenting the mision, met her. On Jan. 25, according to he story of the bride and her mother, hey were dining in a restaurant with Walker when he declared his love and hreatened to murder both the young girl and her mother unless Miss McCabe married him immediately. The two women were so frightened they yielded to the threat, and Miss McCabe and Walker went to the home of the Rev. Dr. Rum, pastor of the Kaighn Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, who performed the ceremony.

Dr. Walker afterward said there were traces of tears on the girl's face when the couple came to him, but he supposed she had been srying from nervousness and did not suspect there was any reason why he should not perform the marriage ceremony.

Walker disappeared two days after the ceremony. On the third day, Jan. 28, in Brandywine Spring Park in Wilmington, the body of a man who had been shot through the mouth, was found lying on newspapers. A pistol lay beside it and to the clothing was pinned a note signed W. F. Walker. This note was addressed to the police, recited the fact of Walker's marriage to Miss McCabe and gave the name of the clergyman who performed the ceremony. It asked that the bride forgive him for committing suicide.

Mrs. Walker went to Wilmington, viewed the body and declared it was that of a man much older than Walker. A few days later, and after the note pinned to the body had been identified by a brother of Walker in Baltimore as being in the handwriting of the bridegroom, Mrs. Walker received an unsigned letter from Reading, Pa., which she was convinced was written by the husband who had sought to make her believe he had killed himself.

Meantime, the Wilmington authorities had satisfied themselves that the dead man in reality was a suicide, and the body had been identified as that of Charles Smith, 50 years old, who had been living at the Cedars, in Wilmington. The identification was made by the widow, who is said to be wealthy. The police say that Smith disappeared four days after his marriage to the woman who made the identification. Subsequent to her declaration that the body was that of her husband, the Wilmington authorities said, a second woman identified the body as that of her husband.

The second woman said the suicide was George Rigley of Philadelphia.

It was while the Wilmington authorities were trying to learn whether the suicide had been a bigamist that the Camden authorities first learned that Walker apparently had not killed himself.

Following that development and the seizure of Walker today, Attorney General Townsend of Delaware, notified the Camden authorities that he was satisfied the dead man had been murdered. He assumed charge of the investigation and one of his detectives is on the way to Camden to talk with Walker. The Coroner's Jury in Camden rendered a verdict of suicide and, despite the opinion of the Attorney General, Chief of Police Blask of Wilmington was reported still to be convinced the dead man, whatever hi sidentity, was self-slain.

Tonight it was reported that letters belonging to Smith had been found in the possession of Walker when he was searched at Police Headquarters here. No charge has been preferred against Walker pending further investigation.

FIND JAPANESE STOWAWAYS.

HOUSTON, Texas, Feb. 11.—The Japanese steamship Fukuye Maru, from Marseilles, was seized by a Deputy United States Marshal, in Galveston Harbor today on a libel suit filed by D. E. Simmons of Houston, United States District Attorney.

Immigration officials charged that the ship brought eleven Japanese into port as stowaways.

The Japanese, who were held, were cleverly concealed, according to Federal officers. Some were hidden almost under the noses of immigration inspectors. One young Japanese was found under a tarpaulin along with some of the ship's supplies.

as a matter of fact, its only difficulty was in the ability of the private-owned banks and the private banking system to meet its obligations due to such private banks' systems, having extended more loans than they should have, having failed to keep a sufficient amount of reserve and being unable to meet checks drawn on demand deposits made with them."

C. F. Lufthus, State Bank Examiner, has announced that all banks holding redeposits in the Bank of North Dakota have been ordered to pay the drafts of the bank immediately upon their receipt or explain why they should not be forced to suspend.

A group of banking bills introduced by N. C. Grangaard of Rogers, passed by the House, have as their object the guarding of the State depositors' guaranty fund.

Minneapolis bankers today branded as misleading the statements from Bismarck, N. D., that loans by the Twin City banks to North Dakota banks threatened with closing, and money extended by Chambers of Commerce grain firms to the country elevator firms and deposited in the North Dakota banks, amount to five times the deposits in those North Dakota banks by the Bank of North Dakota.

The implied parallel between the credit extensions from the Twin Cities and the Bank of North Dakota's deposits misrepresents the situation, they said.

"The sttements should have made it clear that loans by Twin City banks to North Dakota banks are amply secured by farmers notes, held by the loaning banks," P. J. Leeman, Vice President of the First National Bank, said. "Funds sent to North Dakota by grain firms are principally advances to country elevators with which to buy grain. Some of this might be tied up by closing of the North Dakota bank in which the elevator company had deposited it. But all such advances are fully secured, usually by actual grain."

MOSCOW REPROACHES ITALY

Tchitcherin Asks Explanation of Delay in Resuming Relations.

LONDON, Feb. 11.—A dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph from Rome says that M. Tchitcherin, the Bolshevist Minister of Foreign Affairs, has sent a wireless dispatch to Count Sporza, the Italian Foreign Minister, demanding an explanation of Italy's delay in resuming economic relations with Soviet Russia and admitting a Russian mission to Italy, and asking whether Italy has changed her mind in this respect.

The dispatch adds that in official circles denial is made that there is any obstacle in the way of economic relations between the two countries, except that Italy objected to the sending to Italy of a large Soviet mission, aggregating forty members, with diplomatic rights and unlimited privileges in the employment of couriers between Moscow and Rome. Moscow, it was added, recently agreed to reduce this mission to ten persons.

ACCEPTS CUBAN SUGAR PLAN

Washington Approves Marketing by Board but Warns on Prices.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—Approval of the Cuban Government's plan to market the sugar crop through a commission was given in a communication sent today by the State Department to Major General Crowder at Havana, but coupled with it was a warning that any attempt at the fixing of high prices would be regarded unfavorably.

General Crowder reported the plan of the Cuban Government to the department. It provides that a commission of seven, three Cubans and four Americans, shall handle the crop. General Crowder, who has been in Cuba for several weeks, assisting in the adjustment of economic and political difficulties, said that he believed the plan would go far toward relieving the situation.

BUILDING MEN REJECT CUT.

Jersey Workers Say Refusal Does Not Mean a Strike Next Week.

At a meeting of the Building Trades Council last night in Elizabeth, N. J., attended by representatives of 4,000 workmen employed in the district, it was decided to refuse the proposed wage reduction of $1 per day, which was to come into effect on Monday. The cut was reported by the Master Builders' Association a few days ago. It was said last night that the refusal of the men to accept the proposal did not mean that there would be a strike in the building trades next week.

One hundred out of 300 women cigar makers at the Parodi Cigar Company's factory in Jersey City struck against a 10 per cent. wage reduction yesterday which they had voted three weeks ago to accept. Mrs. Carmalia Calucci, a striker, was held in the First Criminal Court yesterday on a charge of atrocious assault made by Miss Lena Provenzo, who had refused to leave her work.

GIRL SHOT IN B. R. T. OFFICE.

Passenger Agent's Daughter Wounded When Revolver Is Accidentally Discharged.

Miss Eleanor Crowe, an employe in the office of the revenue department of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, 85 Clinton Street, Brooklyn, was accidentally shot yesterday morning in the office of the company. John J. McFeeley, Assistant Supervisor of Revenue Inspectors, was transferring cartridges from a defective revolver to another and in "breaking" the revolver it was accidentally discharged. Miss Crowe was shot in the left side. She was taken to the Brooklyn Hospital, where it was said she was seriously hurt.

McFeeley was arrested and later in the Adams Street Court was held without bail for a hearing on Feb. 18. He was charged with felonious assault. His home is at 268 Liberty Avenue, Brooklyn.

SAY COLUMBIA MAN IS THIEF

Two Students Charge Third Robbed Apartment of $1,000.

On the complaint of John B. Lauricella, a student of Columbia University, living at 35 Claremont Avenue, and David Hertz, a law student of the same institution, living at 419 West 115th Street, Nathan Sandelman, 20 years old, registered as a student of Columbia, was charged with robbery yesterday and a warrant issued for his arrest. Sandelman, according to the police, is in a hospital in Albany, recovering from injuries received when he tried to escape from prison there. He is said to have been arrested in Albany on Feb. 9 last on a charge of grand larceny.

Sandelman, according to the story told by the students, registered last Fall in the medical school. He was never seen in classes, although he fraternized with Lauricella and Hertz and other students. He was charged with having entered the apartment of Lauricella and other students, and disappearing with $1,000 worth of jewelry, clothing and other valuables on Jan. 26.

AGED SISTERS FIGHT FLAMES; ONE DIES

LOCKED IN HOUSE ALONE

The three Fanning sisters, all of them maidens and over 60, had run a rooming house at 157 West Twenty-second Street ever since they came from Ireland nearly twenty years ago.

Miss Catherine, youngest of the trio, preparing supper last evening, found the kitchen sink clogged and, taking a candle, went to the adjoining lavatory to empty a pail. The candle flame touched her apron and instantly it was alight.

Before she could beat out the flames they were licking along her garments. She screamed in fright and Miss Fannie Fanning ran in. Miss Fannie, 62 years old, kept her head and lunged for the sink, where hung a number of kitchen towels. She snatched the towels, doused them in the sink and went to the aid of her sister, by then afire from head to foot.

Miss Elizabeth, the third sister, was absent, none of the roomers was home, and there alone in the kitchen the two women fought their desperate, losing battle. Tongues of fire darted at Miss Fannie's hands, others lapped at her face, but she kept bravely on. It was only a matter of seconds before Miss Catherine was beyond doing anything in her own behalf.

The kitchen was growing stifling with smoke and flame and Miss Fannie's clothes were smoking by the time neighbors discovered the fire. They tried the front door, found it locked and ran excitedly to the Seventh Avenue corner, where Thomas Delaney, who lives in the adjoining house at 153 West Twenty-second Street, returning home, was met by cries of, "Quick, somebody, smash in the door!"

Delaney ran into his house, dashed through a back door into the yard, climbed a fence and smashed in the kitchen window at the Fannings'.

Miss Catherine lay on the floor, still afire, and in mortal agony, and Miss Fannie, hysterical and suffering, still sought vainly to extinguish the fire. Delaney seized the elder woman, smothered the incipient flames in her garments and thrust her through the window into the arms of neighbors. Then he lifted Miss Catherine, climbed through the window with her and just escaped the fire, which spread throughout the kitchen.

Patrolman McGillicuddy of the West Twentieth Street Station, told of the fire, had sent in an alarm and an ambulance call. The firemen confined the blaze to the kitchen, and Dr. Russell of New York Hospital, after finding that Miss Catherine was beyond human help, dressed Miss Fannie's burned hands and left her in the care of friends.

PLOTTED HUSBAND'S DEATH.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 11.—Mrs. Edna Murphy, 19-year-old bride of eight months, was today held in $3,000 bail for court by a police Magistrate on a charge of plotting to have her husband killed. According to witnesses, Mrs. Murphy wanted her husband shot so she could collect $1,500 insurance money. She confided her plan to a young man who notified the police, with the result that a detective posed as a thug to do the job.

According to the witnesses examined, Mrs. Murphy gave the detective $10 on account and a note promising $75 more when the affair was over. It was planned, according to the detective, that he was to shoot the husband last night when the wife left him to go to a drug store to make a purchase.

The plot was carried out up to the point where the shooting was to be done. Mrs. Murphy was arrested in the drug store while her husband was being informed of the plot on the outside.

TO REPAVE CITY'S STREETS.

$5,012,440 Appropriated by Estimate Board in Ten-Year Bonds.

The Board of Estimate yesterday appropriated $5,012,440 in ten-year serial bonds to be used for repaving the streets of the city where necessary. The money is to be apportioned as follows: Manhattan, $1,836,616; Brooklyn, $1,532,500; the Bronx, $782,430; Queens, $576,300; Richmond, $321,800, a total of $5,049,646, the difference to be supplied by tax notes.

Deputy Controller Smith and Borough President Curran wanted the appropriation made in tax notes, which would be taken care of in next year's budget. The Borough President declared that the budget for next year would not be as large as was expected. Money saved on snow removal so far this year, he said, would help considerably.

"Knock wood, Henry, knock wood," said the Mayor, and all the members solemnly rapped three times on the wooden table.

Chief Says They Are Lagging and Will Be Cleaned Out.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Feb. 11.—Chicago's Police Department is facing the biggest shake-up of its history. Chief of Police Fitzmorris declared in an ultimatum today that there are 500 good-for-nothing policemen on the force, and announced in emphatic terms his intention of ridding the force of every one of them.

The Council Finance Committee has approved a contingent fund of $50,000 for the chief's use. If the Captains, Lieutenants and Sergeants are unable to find the 500 laggards, who, the chief declares, are "pulling the wrong way," evidence gathered by special investigators will be presented to a trial board against the "higher ups."

The chief's ultimatum, which came just three months after his appointment, in part says:

"In these three months I have found that there are 500 policemen on the force who will not work. I'm through playing ball with them. They had better begin to look around for new jobs, for they are going to leave the police force.

"Out of the 5,100 on the force we have about 4,600 who will work and are working. I'm going to fight like hell to keep them on the force, to get their pay increased, to see that their work is recognized through promotion.

"The remaining 500 of the 5,100 I'm going to give the gate, and I'm going to do it quickly. I'm not going to hold the bag for them any longer.

"These 500 men are fighting me, trying to make my work as chief a failure, trying to prevent me from carrying out the Mayor's orders to me to clean up Chicago. They are out of luck.

"Mayor Thompson has given me a job to perform, and I'm going to do it. If I can't do it through the present police system I'll create a system of my own."

MAY FEED HUNGER STRIKER.

Los Angeles Prisoner Weak on 18th Day of Fasting.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 11.—The police considered today the advisability of forcibly feeding Health Engmark, chiropractor, who entered the eighteenth day of the hunger strike he started as a protest against a ninety-day sentence for violation of State medical laws.

Attachés at the jail said Engmark was considerably weaker than yesterday and passed most of the time in bed.

M'GANNON INNOCENT, SHE NOW TESTIFIES

CLEVELAND, Feb. 11.—Miss Mary E. Neely, counted on as a witness for the State in the second trial of Judge William P. McGannon, charged with second degree murder in the slaying of Harold C. Kagy on May 7 last, caused consternation when she took the witness stand today and declared that Judge McGannon was innocent of the killing of Kagy.

After answering a few formal questions from the County Prosecutor, Edward C. Stanton, Miss Neely startled the courtroom when, replying to one question, "Did you see Judge McGannon on or about May 7?" she said.

"I refuse to answer because in so doing I might disgrace or incriminate myself. Judge McGannon is not guilty of the murder of Harold C. Kagy."

Miss Neely was one of the principal witnesses for the State in the first McGannon trial. At that time she testified she followed Judge McGannon's automobile to the scene of the shooting on the night Kagy was shot, and "saw McGannon take something from his pocket. Simultaneously," she said, "there was the flash of a shot and Kagy fell forward."

Today she could not remember incidents she described at great length at the first trial. She refused to answer practically every question that touched on testimony she gave at that trial that might involve Judge McGannon.

When Prosecutor Stanton appealed to Judge Homer G. Powell that the witness be compelled to answer questions the Court upheld Miss Neely's plea that to answer "might tend to disgrace or incriminate" her.

A second surprise came as a climax to the Neely testimony when Mrs. Ella E. Webb, sister of Miss Neely, took the stand and again told of overhearing a conversation in her sister's apartment on the night of Nov. 21 in which McGannon offered Miss Neely $500 "to go down to the prosecutor and say she was mistaken."

THREE INDICTMENTS FOR LIQUOR FRAUDS

MEN FIGHT REMOVAL HERE

Bribery Charges Against Two Brooklyn Prohibition Agents Are Dismissed.

Two Pittsburgh wholesale liquor dealers were linked with a former clerk in the office of Federal Prohibition Director Charles R. O'Connor, in a conspiracy to defraud the Government and turn loose thousands of gallons of whisky for "bootlegging" purposes in an indictment returned yesterday by the Federal Grand Jury to Judge W. H. S. Thompson in the Criminal Branch of the United States Court. The defendants are Mrs. Mary A. Parkins, formerly employed in Mr. O'Connor's office, and Ben L. Moses and Herman Sattler.

Mrs. Parkins was arrested six weeks ago in her apartment at the Hotel McAlpin, and has been out on $50,000 bail. Arrested with her were two men and one woman, the latter also having been a clerk in Mr. O'Connor's office. Moses and Sattler were arrested in Pittsburgh several days ago. They are contesting removal to this city. A copy of the indictment was sent to Pittsburgh to be used at a hearing there today on the question of the removal of the men to this city.

In the indictment, which contains four counts, it is alleged that on Dec. 15 last a number of letterheads and liquor withdrawal permit blanks were stolen from the office of Director O'Connor. These stolen blanks were turned over by Mrs. Parkins to Moses, it is alleged. The defendants, in correspondence on the stolen letter paper, assumed to act for the United States, it is alleged, thereby leading the persons they communicated with to believe that the letters were official. The name of Charles R. O'Connor was afterward forged on the stolen withdrawal permits, it is charged, to obtain the withdrawal of liquors from warehouses.

When arraigned before Commissioner Barmore in Brooklyn yesterday, complaints against Prohibition Agent John J. Dunn of 354 East Nineteenth Street and Prohibition Agent Louis Eilprin of 590 Second Street, both of Brooklyn, charged with bribery, were dismissed, on motion of Assistant United States Attorney Rupert N. Gilmore. It was charged by George E. Golding of the Department of Justice that the agents accepted a bribe of $500.

A complaint against Patrick Quinn, a saloonkeeper of 370 East 138th Street, the Bronx, was quashed by Federal Judge George W. English yesterday. Policeman Patrick Bray of the Sixth Inspection District alleged that Quinn gave him a bottle of whisky. Bray and Quinn were old friends who had a legal disagreement, according to Assistant District Attorney Edward H. Reynold. Bray, it is said, obtained the bottle of whisky on the plea that his wife was ill. In dismissing the action Judge English said: "Hereafter policemen will not be able to use the Federal courts in furtherance of their spite work or to satisfy personal grudge."

Six Italian women caught smuggling thirty-one bottles of bitters from the Italian steamship Giuseppe Verdi docked at Pier 25, North River, Thursday night, appeared yesterday in the Law Department at the Custom House and paid fines of $5 a bottle for the stuff they did not succeed in taking from the pier. The women said that they had gone aboard the ship to visit friends and relatives among the crew, the customs guards said. The women were from the Italian quarter near the steamship pier.

Albert A. Shoudy of Saddle River, near Ridgewood, N. J., reported to the police of Ridgewood Thursday night that while he was walking on the Franklin Turnpike, near his home, half an hour before, two robbers, each wearing shell-rimmed glasses, held him up and robbed him of $40. Shoudy said he alighted from an Erie train at the Hohokus station, in the outskirts of Ridgewood, a few minutes before, and that the bandits rode up beside him in a black touring car.

One of the bandits, he said, alighted from the vehicle and pressed a pistol against his cheek and ordered him to throw up his hands.

Chief of Police War, with several policemen, went in quest of the bandits, but they had made good their escape. They are believed to be members of a band of six highwaymen who during the last six months robbed scores of automobilists and pedestrians in that part of New Jersey.

3 BANDITS CAUGHT BY A POLICE AUTO

Within an hour after they were alleged to have held up fourteen patrons of Warshauer's restaurant at 114 Suffolk Street at 3 o'clock yesterday morning Joseph Ballatone of 8,157 New Utrecht Avenue, Brooklyn; Salvatore Peovengano of 8 Spring Street and Joseph Gorga of 52 Spring Street were arrested by three detectives in one of Police Commissioner Enright's cruising automobiles. It was the first arrest made by detectives assigned to patrol the city in cars when the crime wave was at its height several weeks ago, and the detectives said a good part of the $5,000 in loot obtained by the bandits from their victims was recovered on one of them.

The men were arraigned before Magistrate Thomas F. Nolan in the Essex Market Court after several of the victims of the hold-up had positively identified them, and they were held in $10,000 bail for an examination Monday.

According to the stories told the police, at about 3 o'clock in the morning three men masked and armed with pistols jumped out of a taxicab in front of the restaurant and one of the bandits shouted, "Everybody stand and throw his hands in the air!"

The man who did the talking remained on guard at the door, which he closed behind him, and his companions ordered the fourteen patrons to line up against the wall on one side of the restaurant.

Then the second bandit stood in the centre of the restaurant floor with his pistol pointed at the terror-stricken victims, and the third man walked down the line with a bag and took all the money and jewelry found on the patrons and dropped them into the bag. It took more than forty-five minutes for the men to complete the hold-up, and then the bandits backed up to the door with their pistols pointed at the others in the room and warned them that if any attempt at pursuit was made they would begin to shoot.

Shortly afterward Detectives Carter, Vandergrift and Greer, in one of the Police Department's automobiles, saw a taxicab containing three men proceeding through Broome Street at Broadway. The detectives gave chase, and as the taxicab came to the corner of Thompson Street the three occupants jumped out. The detectives, armed with rifles and pistols, lined the men up against a wall and searched them. Ballatone had a platinum ring set with diamonds and sapphires, a gold ring set with a diamond and three rubies, a gold watch worth about $500, a platinum chain set with six diamonds and $1,247. The men were taken to the Beach Street station and identified by several victims.

BAILED, REHELD FOR THEFT.

Prisoner, With Two Others, Now Accused of Stealing $20,000 Furs.

Out on bail awaiting trial for two other crimes, Samuel Sonnenberg of 321 Livonia Avenue, Brooklyn, was arrested last night with two other men on a charge of entering the fur store of Samuel Zaretzky at 59 East Broadway and removing fur coats and skins valued at $20,000 to a near-by coal celar, presumably for the purpose of carrying them away later. Sonnenberg, who is 25 years old, according to the police, has been arrested twelve times and convicted six times for similar crimes.

The two other prisoners were Joseph Greenberg, 23 years old, a salesman, of 189 East Fourth Street, and Frank Honig, a driver, 21 years old, who gave his adress as 209 Forsyth Street. The prisoners were taken to the Ooak Street Station and questioned by the police. They will be araigned today on a charge of burglary.

POST OFFICE BARS BANDITS.

Heavy Steel Screens Put Up in Money Order and Bank Divisions.

Hold-ups in prominent places in the city have become so frequent recently that the Post fOfice officials yesterday began the installation of heavy steel screens in the windows of the Money Order Department on the second floor of the Federal Building.

Screens also are to be placed in the windows of the Postal Savings Bank on the same floor, it was said, as Postmaster Thomas C. Patten has decided not to take any chances of a hold-up in the old Post Office Building, which is now known as the City Hall Station.

BOY'S SHIRT HID $10,000 IN DRUGS

Father and Son Are Arrested and Morphine Is Found on Lad.

CAUGHT LEAVING A SHIP

Morphine valued at $10,000 was found under a boy's shirt yesterday after Customs officials and narcotic squad detectives arrested Salvatore Rufino, 9 years old, and his father, Lewis Rufino, as the two were leaving the steamship Giuseppe Verdi, at Pier 25, North River. According to the detectives, two packages of the drug were discovered in Salvatore's shirt.

After the father had been arraigned in the Tombs Court before Magistrate Cobb on suspicion of having drugs in his possession his son was turned over to agents of the Children's Society and the father will be charged in the Children's Court with improper guardianship.

A drug distribution centre was discovered yesterday morning by detectives from Deputy Police Commissioner Simon's office yesterday at Washington and Tenth Streets, in Greenwich Village. After watching the ground floor of a house there for a few days the officers entered it, seized a pound of heroin and arrested three men. They also found a hypodermic syringe, some empty bottles, and letters and telegrams from persons in Pennsylvania asking that drugs be sent to them.

The prisoners gave their names as James Coleman of 8 Hague Street, Manhattan; James McCann of 322 West Twenty-first Street, and Stephen Baldwin of 348 Baldwin Avenue, Jersey City. They are charged with illegally having and selling narcotics.

GIRL ACCUSED IN HOLD-UP.

Charged With Luring Victim to Spot Where He Was Robbed.

Magistrate Miller in the Long Island City Court yesterday held Beatrice Dorsey, 18 years old, of 564 Boulevard, Long Island City, in $10,000 bail for the Grand Jury on a charge of devising the hold-up Thursday night of Joseph Zickla, 24 years old, of 516 East Eighty-seventh Street, while he was walking with the girl in the Boulevard, near Elm Street. At the same time the Magistrate held Joseph Macio, 18 years old, of 592 Boulevard, and John Perno, 18 years old, of 356 Hamilton Street, in similar bail on the same charge, and added $1,000 in bail for each youth on a charge of carrying pistols during the hold-up.

Zickla, who is the nephew of the owner of Zickla Marble Works at 813 Vernon Avenue, Long Island City, told the Magistrate that the girl invited him to accompany her on a walk through the Boulevard, and that when they reached a lonely spot Macio and Perno jumped in front of them with pistols and robbed him while the girl made no protest.

TAILOR'S DEATH UNSOLVED.

The police of the West 135th Street station yesterday tried to find out how Isaac Goldenberg, 65 years old, received a fracture of the skull in his little tailoring shop at 2,582 Eighth Avenue, that resulted last night in his death in the Harlem Hospital. A policeman found the old man lying under the counter in his store soon after midnight yesterday morning.

The policeman first was inclined to think the tailor was the victim of a hold-up, but examination revealed that a gold watch and chain and $38 in money had not been disturbed. Nor was there any evidence of a struggle in the shop. Goldenberg lived alone in the rear of the store, and detectives yesterday found that the rear window of the store had the appearance of having been forced open.

SAYS SLAIN BANDIT WAS 'STOOL PIGEON'

then rang off, leaving him puzzled whether the man at the other end of the wire was a friend or a foe.

"I have caused an investigation to be started into Walsh's death," said Mr. Whitman yesterday. "He was a very important link in the automobile graft cases."

Policemen Robert A. O'Brien and Cornelius J. Flood, who were indicted on Thursday for murder in the first degree for the killing of James Cushing, a boy, will be arraigned on Monday. Eugene F. McGee, their counsel, said yesterday that he would demand an immediate trial.

"The indictment of these two men is the greatest outrage ever perpetrated," he said. "They were freed two years and a half ago by a Grand Jury which heard the very same testimony. They were tried and acquitted at Police Headquarters.

"If the bullet which killed the boy came from either officer's gun it was an accident, but in all probability he was shot and killed by some one else. The boy was found dead on the roof 250 feet from where Flood and O'Brien fired their revolvers into the air. They did not know that he had been shot.

The statement that no automobiles had been reported stolen in Manhattan during the first week in February was disputed yesterday by automobile insurance agents. H. M. Shedd, Director of the Automobile Conference Detective Bureau, who was quoted as the original authority for the statement, refused to discuss the matter.

When he was told that other insurance men had declared the statement to be ridiculous and that some even declared there had been no improvement since the Whitman investigation began, he said:

"We are co-operating in every way with Mr. Whitman. We expect good results from this, but I can't say anything in the meantime."

Louis Fridiger, counsel for Detective Sergeants Owens and Horan, yesterday made public figures obtained at Police Headquarters, indicating that automobile thieving has been flourishing since the Whitman investigation started and since the auto squad was reorganized by Commissioner Enright.

"The truth is," said Mr. Fridiger, "that the activities of the automobile thief have increased during the last month and since the indictments to such an extent that more cars have been stolen during that period than at any other in the history of the city.

"In January of this year 420 cars were stolen and 150 recovered. From Feb. 1 to Feb. 7 over 110 cars were stolen and 25 recovered.

"It is doubtful if more than fifteen automobiles were ever stolen in any one day prior to the time of these indictments. Last Sunday alone there were thirty-five automobiles stolen."

"The truth is," he said, "that about 5,150 automobiles were stolen in New York during 1920 and that 2,575 automobiles were recovered by the Police Department. Of the 2,575 automobiles recovered 725 were found and returned to their owners by the auto squad alone, which consisted of sixteen men. The value of the cars so recovered by the auto squad and returned to their owners during 1920 amounts to more $1,250,000."

WHISKY BANDIT SLAIN BY RIVAL GANG

In their investigation of the killing Thursday night of two men as a result of the hold-up of a motor truck loaded with twenty-five barrels of whisky on the Lincoln Highway, near Franklin Park, N. J., detectives yesterday discovered that Frank Walsh, leader of the bandits, was shot to death by members of another bandit band whom he encountered while conveying the truck load of loot to Newark. Walsh, it was believed, met his death about two miles from the scene of the hold-up, after he and other members of his band had shot to death Leo Salamandra, 41 years old, a wholesale liquor dealer of Trenton, and the owner of the truck-load of whisky, after he had offered the band $500 to spare his life.

Details of the double shooting and hold-up were gathered piecemeal yesterday by the police of New Brunswick and Newark after questioning Pedro Salamandra, brother of the slain liquor dealer; Edward Rint of 151 Broome Street, Newark, driver of the motor truck, and Samuel Perkins, a negro, 35 years old, of 2,460 Seventh Avenue, this city, who was acting as guard on the truck when it was held up by Walsh and his band of robbers.

Although Pedro Salamandra admitted that he was within a few feet of his brother when he was shot to death by one of the bandits, Ring and Perkins said they did not witness any shooting, having been driven off by the bandits before the killing of Salamandra. Perkins was arrested late yesterday afternoon by Lieutenant John Harris and Sergeant James Bell of the Newark Detective Bureau, after he had been induced to return to Newark from his home in this city. He was locked up in Newark Police Headquarters on a charge of being a material witness in the hold-up and killings and will be taken to New Brunswick this morning and turned over to the police there, who are in charge of the investigation of the triple crime.

Tells of Murder of His Brother.

Pedro Salamandra, brother of the slain man and the only witness of the killing, as far as the police have been able to gather, said that none of the bandits was shot before or immediately following the killing of his brother.

He explained that Ring, chauffeur of the truck, which was conveying twenty-five barrels of whisky to Marchese & Marchese, wholesale liquor dealers at 200 Eighth Avenue, Newark, and Perkins, the negro, fled from the scene of the hold-up before Walsh and the seven other bandits ordered his brother, Dominic Oisi, Charles Barnabea of Trenton, who was acting as guard on the rear of the motor truck, and himself into their touring car.

Ring and the negro were sitting on the front of the truck when the eight bandits drew up beside them on the Lincoln Highway, while he, his brother Leo and Oisi were trailing in rear in a sedan automobile acting as a convoy for the liquor.

"We saw one of the bandits get on the truck after the hold-up," explained Pedro Salamandra, "and start off with it. Just then the touring car started in another direction, and the seven other bandits rode us around the surrounding country for about an hour.

"My brother, who had sold the whisky to Marchese & Marchese, in Newark, attempted to dicker with the bandits for the return of the whisky, but they chided him when they heard te price he was willing to pay for the return of the liquor. Eventually we landed back on the spot where the bandits overtook us with their touring car, and then they ordered my brother out of the car.

"They walked off with him into a clump of bushes, but because of the darkness I could not see what was going on. The other man with us in the meantime had got out of the touring car, and the bandit at the wheel didn't seem to care whether he left or not.

Offered $500 for His Life.

"In a few minues the leader of the robbers, who, I since was informed, was named Walsh, returned and ordered me to get out of the car, too, and, while we were standing on the road I heard my brother offering the bandits $500—all he had—not to kill him. I heard them laugh at him, and the next second there was a shot.

"Then I heard my brother call out, 'I'm shot,' and then all of the bandits came out from behind the clump of bushes and ordered the other man, Barnabea, and myself to beat it.

Police authorities hold to the belief that more than one band of robbers had learned that Salamandra had arranged with Abe Posnak of 21 Jacob Street, owner of the motor truck, to transport the twenty-five barrels of whisky from Salamandra's place of business at 736 Greenwood Avenue, Trenton, to the establishment of Marchese & Marchese, at 200 Eighth Avenue, Newark.

Prohibition enforcement officials and the police of Newark several months ago heard that former associates of Walsh and Eckert in hold-ups and automobile thefts in the eastern counties of New Jersey were at loggerheads, and it was said that the trouble was due to the murder of Eckert in an automobile in Staten Island.

The name of a Western criminal known to the police as "Dick" Whalen frequently was mentioned as the leader of the band of hold-up men opposing Walsh and his confederates, and Whalen had been reported as having declared that he and his band were out to "get" Walsh.

The theory which most of the detectives investigating the triple crime held to yesterday was that the rival band missed Salamandra and his whisky transport party Thursday night, and that Walsh, who had better information on the plans laid down by Salamandra for the removal of the whisky to Newark, lay in wait near the stretch of the Lincoln Highway in the Franklin Park section of New Brunswick for the appearance of the wealthy liquor dealer and his party.

After the hold-up of the party and the murder of Salamandra, it was the belief of the police, the second band of bandits encountered Walsh and his party of robbers as they were convoying the truck load of whisky to Newark. It is believed that Walsh and his confederates engaged in a pistol battle with the second band of bandits, who, after shooting and killing Walsh, as he sat in his touring car, put the rest of his band to flight and made off with the truck load of whisky.

According to the story told Prosecuting Attorney Strickler of Middlesex County, by Pedro Salamandra, his brother, Leo, carried a .45 calibre automatic pistol in the pocket of the sedan car in which they were following the whisky laden truck, but did not use this. The pistol, he said, was taken by the bandits. An autopsy will be performed on the body of Walsh, the dead bandit, tomorrow, to determine upon the calibre of the bullet from which he died.

The body of Walsh, the bandit chief, was identified through a bill for damages due to an automobile accident found in the inner pocket of his coat. It was made out to a man named O'Reilly, living in Newark, who told the detectives that when he sold an automobile to Walsh the later assumed the obligation to pay the $10 asked for.

There is a patch of property on the uptown side of Forty-ninth Street a little west of Seventh Avenue which was just a hole in the ground sixteen weeks ago and now it is a wide and wealthy-looking theatre with more red plush to the square foot than any theatre in the Western Hemisphere. It is called the Ambassador and its doors were thrown wide for the first time last evening for the New York premiere of a musical comedy called "The Rose Girl," which is about as wide a departure from type as its name would indicate.

Such entertainments as this one are concoctions most easily summarized by enumerating the ingredients. Those working in favor of "The Rose Girl" are the pleasing and infectious score, the chorus, which is uncommonly comely and daintily caparisoned, and several dancers of varying fame and agility. Pulling grimly in the other direction is the book, which may be crushingly described as of rather lower calibre than the run of musical comedy libretti during the last ten years.

This score is the work of Anselm Goetzl and it is blessed with many engaging melodies, most of which are quite well sung. Since he began writing it five or more years ago, all manner of things seem to have happened to it, including a number called "The Rose Girl Blues," but most of the score is far more Viennese than that would suggest and much of it is pretty.

The book, however, is credited to William Cary Duncan. Musical comedy libretti may be roughly divided into two classes, those which do not refer to "The Tales of Hoffman," as "The Shirt-tails of Hoffman," and those which do. The vein of comedy running through "The Rose Girl" places it in the latter class. The high spirits of the fun reach their zenith when a portly farceuse swoons in the arms of a little farceur and bears him crashing to earth, although some of the older playgoers last evening seemed to derive more amusement from the earnest efforts of one of the show-girls to pronounce the word Monsieur.

There was a friendly welcome for the agreeable Charles Purcell last evening, and the most enthusiastic and spontaneous approval went to an uncommonly spirited dancer named Rose Rolando, who looks like Mme. Rachel and treads her measures delightfully.

The much-heralded ballet with which the second act opens lasts only six or seven minutes, and does not matter much. It is probable that if it did not enlist the services of Lydia Lopokova, and did not brandish the name of Michel Fokine as having "conceived and staged" it, it would not arrest attention at all. Many of the prettiest members of an extraordinarily decorative chorus have been drafted for it, probably on short notice, and it is the kind of ballet in which the groups of fays are hoisted on to the stage by a species of elevator working through a trapdoor.

When Lopokova was shining here with the Russian Ballet, five years ago, she seemed the most enchanting ingenue ballerina of her day, and if, in "The Rose Girl," she seems rather less than that, it is probably no sign that her art is waning, but just that it does not thrive apart from the ballet amid alien surroundings. It was just the rosy memory of her last appearances at the Metropolitan which aroused expectations higher than any workaday musical comedy could be expected to fulfill.

PEGGY MARSH'S CLAIM UP.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Feb. 11.—Arguments were heard in the State Supreme Court at Springfield today in the case filed by Peggy Marsh against the estate of the late Marshall Field, in an effort to secure a part of it for her son, Henry Anthony Marsh, illegitimate child of the late Henry Field.

In behalf of the Field estate, it was argued that the will of Marshall Field left the estate in trust for his children and their heirs, and that Henry Anthony Marsh, being an illegitimate son of Henry Field, was not in any sense under the law an heir of Marshall Field, and in consequence was not entitled to any share of the estate.

The mother of the child was married a short time ago in New York to Albert Johnson of Cleveland, a soldier, whom she met abroad, and a nephew of former Mayor Tom Johnson of Cleveland.

The case was taken under advisement by the Court and probably will be decided in April.

RUSSIAN NOBLE TENDS COWS

Baron Rolf Heyking, a Russian nobleman in distress, arrived yesterday from England on the Atlantic transport freighter Welshman, as a cattleman, looking after a shipment of fine Jersey cows. He told the immigration officials at Ellis Island that his uncle had been Consul General for Russia for many years under the old régime and that he was on his way to California to become a fruit farmer. He had a little money, he added, not much, but it was good money.

He had been born in Courland in the Baltic provinces of old Russia, which was the reason that he speaks German better than he does French. He is tall and well built, about 35 years old and single.

FREED FROM CRUEL WIFE.

HARTFORD, Conn., Feb. 11.—Intolerable cruelty was adjudged proved today by Judge William H. Maltbie, who granted a decree of absolute divorce to William Howesberger in an action against his wife, Nora F. Macomber Howesberger, on the ground of desertion, because she left him in Boston eight months after their marriage, Sept. 1, 1907.

On the witness stand Howesberger accused his wife of having drunk his very best hootch, smoked his cigarettes and stayed out o' nights at cafés and dances, and not in his company, either. He said she scratched his face when she was drunk; smashed his best pipe, leaving the ambre stem hanging in his teeth; threw his hot supper in his face, and hit him with an alarm clock because the alarm went off one morning at 8 o'clock, just as she was getting comfortably to sleep.

WHY MANAGERS VOTED AGAINST EQUITY SHOP

Emerson Says They Were Obliged to Keep Pledge to Fidelity —Invites Co-operation.

John Emerson, President of the Actors' Equity Association, declared yesterday that "approximately one-third" of the membership of the Producing Managers' Association are not opposed to the Equity shop, despite the unanimous vote against the proposition at the managers' meeting on Tuesday.

"As a matter of fact," said Mr. Emerson, in a statement, "they were obliged to vote against it to keep the faith pledged to the Fidelity League, when they started that organization in August, 1919, as an instrument with which they hoped to break the actors' strike. Of course the effort failed, but the pledge remained to torment the managers and to compel them to pass unanimous resolutions.

"On behalf of the Equity Council, I wish to ask members of the Producing Managers' Association to suggest to us any means by which we can preserve to the actor the benefits which have been gained for him, without the institution of the Equity shop. The council has studied the situation for months and has been unable to discover any other way. If the managers have any constructive suggestions they will be received in a spirit of utmost sincerity and seriousness, and given every possible consideration. The Equity Council feels that the time has come when all bitterness and hatred should be buried, and we are willing and glad, if only met half way, to work together with all the elements in the theatre for the improvement of conditions of actors and managers alike, in order to put our entire profession on a better, more solid and stable foundation than it has ever known before."

'THE CHEAT' GIVEN AS OPERA

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 10.—Tonight occurred the first performance at the Opéra Comique of an opera adapted from the well-known film drama "The Cheat," which, under the name of "La Forfaiture," is one of the greatest favorites of the French motion-picture public and is now being shown in a big hall on the Boulevard.

The critics say that the action of the piece, which has five episodes and follows the film drama closely, is rather inferior to that of the film.

The music and interpretation are pretty well spoken of, and the Japanese decorative effects in Tori's house in the second act won general approval. The difficult part of Tori was effectively sung by Vanni Marcoux. Marguerite Carré also scored in the part of the heroine. The music was by Camille Erlanger and the adaptation by Paul Milliet and Delorde.

One critic remarks that the figures of the check on which the plot hinges are increased from 50,000 francs in the film to 100,000 in the musical version, "doubtless," he observes, "to keep pace with the rise in the cost of living."

GALLI-CURCI SINGS ROSINA.

Mme. Galli-Curci sang to a house sold out at the Manhattan last evening, when the prima donna returned to the rôle of Rosina, in "The Barber of Seville," a favorite one with her audiences during four seasons of the Chicago Opera Company's visits to New York.

The same opera with other singers occurs tonight at the Metropolitan, where Galli-Curci has announced she will sing next year. As if by way of further contrast, she introduced in the "lesson scene" last night the Shadow Song from "Dinorah," with which she had first won New York at her Lexington début, and added for encore "Home, Sweet Home," twice over.

Tito Schipa sang a light-hearted Almaviva, hero of Rossini's musical comedy. Galeffi was a capital Figaro, factotum and barber, while Trevisan and Lazzari were respectively Dr. Bartolo and Basilio, the music master. Others in the cast were Miss Falco, Messrs. Alfieri, Oliviero and Cavai, and Mr. Marinuzzi conducted a spirited performance, with much of the true pointlace delicacy of concerted numbers and comic ensembles.

ERIKA MORINI HEARD AGAIN.

Erika Morini, whose début as violinist with the Metropolitan Orchestra under Bodanzky fairly captured a Carnegie Hall audience of professional musicians lately, gave the first of a series of recitals arranged for her by influential sponsors yesterday afternoon in Aeolian Hall. She is a young artist of rare quality, playing already with a woman's sensibility and often a man's strength of tone.

She gave yesterday, with her sister at the piano, both Paganini's D major concerto and the rondo of Saint-Saëns, Bach's air for the G string, Beethoven's G major romance and Mozart's adagio in E were among classic lesser pieces, while Tartini's variations on a Corelli theme, with cadenza by Kreisler, was most applauded.

Repeats Liszt's "Dante" Symphony.

The Philharmonic Society repeated in Carnegie Hall yesterday afternoon a performance of Liszt's "Dante" symphony, with which Mr. Stransky had opened its season last November, again assisted by the St. Cecilia Club, of which Victor Harris is director. Of special interest in the program was also Strauss's "Don Juan." In the evening there followed Mr. Damrosch and the Symphony Society in a repetition of the previous day's modern composers of France.

Mme. Farrar Again Sings Louise.

Charpentier's "Louise" was sung for the fourth time at the Metropolitan last night by the large cast concerned in this Parisian spectacle's recent brilliant production by the resident company under Gatti-Casazza. Mmes. Farrar, Berat, Delaunois, Perini, Ellis and others, with Messrs. Harrold, Rothier, Diaz, Ananian and d'Angelo, reappeared, and Mr. Wolff conducted. There was a large as well as enthusiastic house.

Dan Jones, Welsh Pianist, Plays.

Dan Jones, a Welsh pianist, who has before now appeared in New York, gave a recital last evening at Aeolian Hall. He was heard by a considerable audience in four works alone, Brahms's variations on a Handel theme, Beethoven's sonata Op. 57, Schumann's "Kreisleriana" and Liszt's fantasy in sonata form, "After a Reading From Dante."

Made Chautauqua Musical Director.

Professor H. Augustine Smith of Boston University has accepted appointment as musical director of Chatauqua Institution for the coming Summer, it was announced yesterday. He is nationally known as a musical editor, pageant author and choral director, and directed the music last year at the World's Sunday School Convention in Tokio, Japan.

Mme. Nellie Melba Has the Grip.

NICE, France, Feb. 11.—Inquiry here tonight developed the fact that Mme. Nellie Melba, the opera singer, is keeping to her rooms because of a slight attack of the grip. Her condition is said not to be serious.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

The Columbia University Alumni Association bought out the Central Theatre last night for the performance of "Afgar." Those present included Nicholas Murray Butler, Herbert L. Satterlee, Archibald Douglas and Frederick Kirkendall.

"Erminie" will end its run at the Park on Feb. 26. It will be seen next in Philadelphia.

The third annual dinner of the New York Drama League will be held at the Hotel McAlpin on Sunday evening, March 6, at 7 o'clock. The guests of honor will be the people who have contributed the ten most significant things to the present theatrical season.

Third Cort Theatre Lecture

John Armstrong Chaloner will lecture on Advanced Experimental Psychology and the Occult, 2:30 P. M., last Sunday in this month at "Cort" Theatre, 48th St., East of Broadway; free. First half of lecture shows how he became a Medium. Second half purports to lift the veil from the Beyond and to give picture of the Future Life from alleged report of a departed spirit. What women experience shown by alleged spirit of his grandaunt, Mrs. Julia Ward Howe.

What men go through by that of P. T. Barnum. Barnum will afford, so to speak, "comic relief." Also being most spectacular showman on record, can pass upon pageants seen Beyond the Grave. That of Marion Crawford, novelist, Mrs. Ward's nephew, follows Barnum. All will use automatic writing as vehicle of communication, done on the stage. Free.

GOVERNOR MILLER'S PLAN.

"Story? God bless you, sir, I have none to tell." That is not the Governor's reply to the critics—some of them friendly—of his plan for the regulation of the State's public utilities. He has a story to tell, and tells it this morning, very different from the story the critics have been telling for him about his plan. The ambuscade into which the Governor's critics fell was of their own making, and the Governor is well pleased with its working. "I "believe no attempt will be made in "the proposed bill to tie the commission down to any plan, or to go "further than to prescribe a general "course of procedure," says the Governor. In other words, when the plan appears it will be on other authority than the Governor's. Moreover, it will be based on findings of facts which it will not be open to reasonable men to doubt.

Even so late as yesterday afternoon Albany dispatches were saying that the Governor might pick "up-State" Commissioners in violation of this city's home rule rights, and that the Governor favored city operation of the unified tractions. Over his own signature the Governor says that "of course" the city should have a majority of the transit commission of three to control the situation in cities of one million inhabitants or more, and that there should be at least two city members on the commission of five to regulate all public utilities throughout the State. Also, the city should not have power of operation of transit facilities, but they should be unified and leased to a new corporation after an entire revision of the capitalization of all traction companies. The market has so thoroughly dried out whatever water there originally was in the tractions that the security owners have more to hope than to fear if the commissions should work out the plan which the Governor says he proposes only for constructive criticism.

No doubt there will be plenty of it, much more than the four lines which suffice for the Governor to dispose of the bus remedy for the suffering of billions of riders. Many millions of new capital are essential even for the bus plan, and the city cannot provide them, having exhausted its capacity of both credit and taxation. The home-rulers' vagaries suggest that they doubt the intelligence of the electorate to which they would carry their happy thoughts for realization. The fact that they cannot move without State authority restores confidence in electorates when they vote on politics rather than on interests. There is a minority which can be demoralized by demagogy and nickel bribes, but the State will save the city from the misrule which some confuse with home rule.

The Governor outlines the plan which he hopes will result from the inquiry. He starts at the beginning with a new valuation of the physical property used in the public service. The present capitalization represents the mistakes which commonly are made in the course of progress. Money had to be found for each step in the rise from the horse cars, through the cable cars, to the electric cars and the subways. At each step there was liberal "scrapping" of values. Just now, when it is necessary to make a fresh appeal to new investors, it is desirable to inspire confidence in those who may be terrified by fears of what valuation may do to them. Certainly the subways could not be replaced for their cost. It is even doubtful whether the surface cars could. There is no telling what the valuation may disclose, and the emphasis which the Governor puts on negotiations between the parties in interest suggests that negotiations may be completed before the valuation. The Governor does not think it worth while to refer to the fare bugaboo in the fifteen points which he suggests for the discussion, which will gain in interest from now on. But the fare question may yet be a source of strength to the plan which may become the Governor's. All possible combinations of fares have not yet been suggested. The subways were possible because they were based on the idea of giving a dime ride for a nickel. They enriched some and impoverished others by doing it. When the Governor's negotiators get to work they may make values for the city by giving more for a nickel than nickels could procure under any other plan.

THE INCOMPARABLE MASTERPIECE.

In a letter to THE TIMES the other day, Mr. BLISS CARMAN deplored "the growing depravity of American speech." If such depravity exists, it is not for want of noble American models of perfection. The Gettysburg Address is the supreme example of language felicitously used, adapted to its subject, clear in thought, touched with imagination, concise, measured, ordered and arranged with the best economy of method and effect, restrained, musical, haunting the memory, offering with each repetition or remembrance a new invitation to explore the secret of its charm and power. Its superior is not in English, not in Greek, with all reverence to PERICLES and THUCYDIDES. If all other records of ABRAHAM LINCOLN were lost, this speech would assure him a high place in literature.

Upon the anniversary of his birthday especially this work of consummate artistry should be reprinted:

> Fourscore and seven years ago our fathers brought forth upon this continent a new nation, conceived in liberty, and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal.
> Now we are engaged in a great civil war, testing whether that nation, or any nation so conceived and so dedicated, can long endure. We are met on a great battlefield of that war. We have come to dedicate a portion of that field as a final resting-place for those who here gave their lives that that nation might live. It is altogether fitting and proper that we should do this.
> But in a larger sense, we cannot dedicate—we cannot consecrate—we cannot hallow this ground. The brave men, living and dead, who struggled here, have consecrated it far above our poor power to add or detract. The world will little note, nor long remember, what we say here, but it can never forget what they did here. It is for us, the living, rather, to be dedicated here to the unfinished work which they who fought here thus far so nobly advanced. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us—that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion—that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain—that this nation, under GOD, shall have a new birth of freedom, and that government of the people, by the people, and for the people shall not perish from the earth.

This is a good remedy for "depravity" of American speech. It might have been supposed that LINCOLN's earlier associations would have tended to coarsen and deprave his language. Yet altogether too much has been made of his supposed "educational disadvantages." A man's education depends upon himself. He can get it from nobody else. He must have the capability and the will to make the best use of what comes in his way. Young LINCOLN had "Aesop's Fables," "Robinson Crusoe," the "Pilgrim's Progress," the Bible. It was enough. But doubtless thousands of other boys have had as good or a better library, and yet grown up inarticulate, commonplace, dull, substantially illiterate. Throughout his life LINCOLN managed to read a great deal of good literature. His memory retained the best. Consciously and unconsciously he was training himself, putting an edge on his thought, acquiring, modifying, polishing and perfecting his style.

Not by rushing through a multitude of books, not by swift reading and forgetting, but by remembering and pondering "the best that has been thought and said," is excellence of speech to be attained.

ON THE WRONG SIDE.

Field Marshal VON HINDENBURG has joined the large number of his countrymen who believe what they wish to believe—and, in point of fact, "know" it. "To my own knowledge," he says, "there has been a "change in public opinion in Amer"ica. I have seen letters by Amer"ican soldiers who wrote their folks "at home: 'We fought on the "wrong side.'" There are Americans who have seen such letters; but they differ from the Mazurian Marshal in having seen them with the twinkling eyes of the men who wrote them.

The once famous jest comes, in fact, like a breath from a happier world. Our men had been thrown into a desperate conflict, waged on the desolate fields of France. They had died in twice and thrice the numbers of the hostile dead, and those who survived had lived on scant rations or none, had slept beneath the stars. When victory came and they marched into the enemy's land they found order and quiet and plenty—roofs intact, shops in which luxuries were sold and German maidens who, at the bidding of State policy, fed them with chicken and fried potatoes.

Of the same racial stock was the levity of the "Contemptibles" in 1914. When the hordes of the Hun marched through Belgium, singing hymns as they violated its art treasures and its population, the little British Army hurled itself against the irresistible tide singing a music hall song. The Germans were morally shocked—in all probability have not yet recovered a sober respect for that enemy. Such conduct could only result from frivolity, decadence.

That may be so, or it may not. The point is that to the true German mind a certain order of fun will forever be unknowable. And a difference in the sense of humor is as great a strain upon international understanding as GEORGE ELIOT found it in domestic relations. With VON HINDENBURG, evidently, we must put that astonishing German Ambassador to Italy who has created a sensation in Rome by saying that he hopes soon to be in a position to announce officially the conclusion of a treaty of alliance between Germany and the United States.

TAMMANY PUBLICITY.

The active spirits in Tammany Hall have seen a great light. They have discovered the reason for its slight unpopularity. Its good works have not been sufficiently advertised. The Wigwam would not be so sadly misunderstood if it had a hustling press agent. Hence the resolve to adopt modern methods of publicity. Only so can the true nature of Tammany as primarily a charitable organization, and only incidentally a band of patriots struggling to make the city purer and better, be impressed upon the distrustful voters.

The idea, we take it, is to "sell" Tammany to the public after the manner of Chairman HAYS, last Summer, and his engaging staff of efficiency experts, who "sold" the Republican Party to the electorate. No resource of the wide-awake publicity man is to be neglected. There will be, no doubt, moving pictures of Mr. MURPHY, at Good Ground, Hot Springs and Mount Clemens, his face radiating benevolence and disinterested zeal for the public good. Exhibit B would surely be Mayor HYLAN standing on one of his beloved buses in a pose of Ajax-like defiance of the traction companies. As for catalogues of all the Tammany virtues and portrait galleries of the Hall's statesmen and reformers, the only embarrassment would be the riches of material. Tammany taking the people into its confidence would comfort all invincible believers in progress. What an advance since the day of the grim and silent and secretive CROKER!

A TARIFF ON VIOLINS.

Is there anything produced in America which should not have tariff protection? The question is prompted by the demand of the American violin makers that they shall have a Schedule K. Columbus, Ohio, would vie with Cremona, with the help of an import tax. To prove that their products had the true Stradivarius tone, or the modern Italian substitute for it, American manufacturers regaled the Ways and Means Committee of the House with a violin concert, instruments of varying ages and prices being played by their virtuosos. There were plain fiddles cheap at $10, and the cost ran up to $1,800 in the case of a violin of hoary but uncertain antecedents. Classical selections were tried upon Chairman FORDNEY and his associates. Could their ears detect any difference in the sweetness long drawn out? Was not the tone of the Democratic Columbus as exquisite as that of the instrument corresponding in value to a second farm mortgage and which might have passed for a Stradivarius centuries old?

What the classical selections were does not appear in the newspaper report. Was BACH's Air in G tried on the Hon. JOSEPH W. FORDNEY, or the "Caprice Basque" of PABLO SARASATE, or the Melodie from GLUCK's "Orfeo," or the Nocturne in D flat of CHOPIN-WILHELMJ? It may never be known, but what is known is that the Chairman called for "The Arkansaw Traveller," some one else for "Yankee Doodle," and a sentimental Southerner for "Dixie." After that who could tell the excellence of a Cremona from the audacity of a Columbus? Imagine KREISLER or ELMAN or HEIFETZ rendering "Dixie," with eyes closed in rapture, upon his prized and priceless violin!

A committee of artists should sit on the question of the musical claim of the American-made violin in competition with the best makes of Italy and France. By calling for "Yankee Doodle" and "Dixie" the Ways and Means Committee disqualified itself. We have in this country the maple and the pine which enter so largely into the sixty or more parts of which the real violin consists, and we have several kinds of varnish with which to finish off. In the old Italian violins the varnish was supposed to improve the tone. As a matter of fact, almost anything made anywhere can be made in this country, but not always as well. The divine mystery of the old Cremonas is still a mystery. Modern Italians cannot reproduce the Stradivarius of the seventeenth century. They cannot acquire the art. The acoustics of the violin has always been complex. No secret was more jealously guarded than the knowledge of how to make the ancient models discourse ravishing music. If Columbus has found it, let the tariff be imposed. Such a home industry might be worth protecting. At the same time, the man who made the best mousetrap deep in the woods, and had all the work he could do, never asked for a tariff upon his masterpiece—it was not needed.

Do our imported artists, who are as superior to the native players as their instruments are to the native article, use by choice an American violin? If not, is it to be supposed that a tariff would ever convert them? Furthermore, if the moderate priced imported instruments are finer, will our native players be satisfied with the home instrument, tariff or no tariff? From any point of view, the demand for an impost on the European violin does not seem important enough to engage much of the time of the Ways and Means Committee.

FLOWER OF INDIANA.

Since 1913 the carnation has been the State Flower of Indiana. That is not original nor descriptive enough for one of the most original and literary of Commonwealths. In a sense, too, the carnation is specially dedicated to Mr. MCKINLEY in the United States, as the primrose is to DISRAELI in Great Britain. Indiana wants something more appropriate and a bill has been introduced into the Senate to supplant the carnation by the Liriodendron tulipifera, the concise and lovely name of the tulip tree, which loves to grow in the Lower Wabash Valley. A deserving tree, no doubt, which sometimes extends into space 100 feet or more; but in the native State of the Tall Sycamore of the Wabash, why should the greenery-yallery blossoms of this tall bully of the Wabash nestle in Indiana's bosom? They faintly resemble tulips, much as coleslaw resembles a chrysanthemum.

The early Hoosiers sensibly called this lovely Liriodendron tulipifera a saddle tree. Narrow-browed folks now call it a yellow poplar. Is it worthy of Indiana? Can we think of JIM WATSON or WILL HAYS with a sprig of Liriodendron tulipifera in his button-hole? Possibly former Senator BEVERIDGE might carry it off, but the heart of the people will never be kind to such a dictionary-pressed flower. The obvious, the inevitable, flower for Indiana is the symbolic violet that forsaken grows, but bears bravely transportation to Washington.

THREATS TO GOVERNMENTS.

Mr. LLOYD GEORGE met as becometh a Prime Minister the threat of a general railway strike in England unless there were instant redress for the killing of an Irish railroad employé in an affray with soldiers. He stated that the complaint would be forwarded to the proper authorities in Ireland. Then he added that the Government could not be intimidated by any such menace from a labor union, or a group of unions, and that if an attempt were made to carry it out it would encounter the firmest resistance. In no other spirit could a responsible and self-respecting Government make answer.

This particular affair was of no great importance and will probably drop out of sight. But the same issue in a larger and more formidable shape will soon come up. The Labor Party has formulated plans for dealing with unemployment in England, which it is pressing upon the Government. It has given the Government until the end of February to accept or reject them. Some of them are wholly impossible, yet the demand is that they be agreed to in toto. What is the alternative? It was stated by Mr. ARTHUR HENDERSON in The Daily Herald of London. He said that if the Government did not comply with the Labor ultimatum there would be "def"inite action of an unprecedented "character."

What does he mean by this? Unless it is a bit of empty bluster, he implies that there will be "direct action," in the Russian manner, to terrorize or seize the Government. Mr. HENDERSON is a member of Parliament. He is also a Privy Councilor. In either capacity he ought to be called upon to explain his dark threat. Whatever it may mean, LLOYD GEORGE has made it certain that he will not take it lying down.

THE TYPHUS MENACE.

There need be no epidemic of typhus, but only on one condition—that the requisite precautions be taken immediately. If the disease gains headway, it may, in the opinion of Dr. COPELAND, "take away five or ten millions of our people"; but its carrier is as well known as it is repugnant and requires only time and energy to combat it. As yet it exists exclusively on the persons of immigrants from certain European ports. That the disease has appeared here at all is one of the many scandals of our supervision of immigration.

"I am not going to permit a ship to tie up to the docks in this city," said Dr. COPELAND lately, "unless I "am convinced that the people aboard "are clean. If I have to keep every "ship anchored out in the bay until "it rusts out and sinks, that is what "I purpose to do." The words may sound extreme, but only to those who regard property values as more important than human life and health. Sixteen cases arrived lately in one steamer from a South European port and twenty cases in another. Most of these have been quarantined on Hoffman and Swinburne Islands; but a few have been taken to hospitals on the mainland. It is too early to be sure that the disease is under perfect control. The authorities at Ellis Island have of late been inexplicably remiss in such matters. Out of 536 immigrants certified as affected with "dangerous or loathsome diseases," according to Surgeon General CUMMING, 167, or almost a third, have been admitted. How many have slipped through who are in the early stage of typhus and bring with them the carrier louse can only be conjectured.

When any foreign port threatens us with an epidemic, the law specifically empowers the President "to prohibit, "in whole or in part, the introduction "of persons or property" from it. The only possible alternative remedy is to transport the entire body of passengers from any infected ship to a concentration camp, such as Camp Dix, there to be thoroughly deloused and otherwise cleansed. With prompt action the menace will fade in a few weeks; but without prompt action the situation may very soon get out of hand.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Why Bonuses Encounter Opposition. A peculiar and significant sensitiveness is displayed by the fraction of participants in the recent war who are demanding the payment of bonuses, State and Federal. Just how large this fraction is nobody seems to know, but it is a highly articulate fraction, and the members of it are fiercely resentful of any expressed antagonism to the granting of their demands. Their almost invariable complaint against those who oppose the bonus plan is that the opponents are inappreciative of magnificent services rendered at terrible cost, and not infrequently there are intimations or open assertions that opposition to the payment of bonuses comes from "slackers."

That charge, of course, is practically always untrue, the real "slackers" having very little to say, audibly, about anything, and being desirous of passing unnoticed, as well they may be.

Among the strongest opponents of bonuses as proposed—equal allotments, that is, to all who were in the war in any capacity, here or on the other side—are many soldiers of high achievement in the fighting lines, and the assumption that civilians who take the same position do not realize what they owe to the men who bore arms is both false and unjust. It is not repudiation of a debt to prefer that its payment should be in a right way, instead of a wrong one, which the indiscriminating payment of bonuses certainly is. And to the recognition of this wrongness is largely due the inadequacy of the provision that has been made, as yet, for disabled soldiers. To it can be ascribed, also, the fact that this inadequacy has not been more sternly denounced.

That this should be so is reprehensible and illogical, but the explanation is real.

Heroism and Money Are Unrelated. Deeper investigation of the feeling against the bonus system as proposed probably would reveal that its basis is an instinctive realization that such services as the soldiers rendered to their country and to the world are incommensurable with money. The pay of soldiers, unless they were out-and-out mercenary troops, never has been regarded as wages in the ordinary sense of that word—as sufficient or even related reward for what they did and what was expected of them.

Men cannot be hired to be heroes and they cannot be paid for having been heroes—not in money, that is. Their remuneration is in glory and gratitude, and the glory is dimmed, the gratitude chilled, when the heroes turn in a bill, as it were, for work that is entirely unlike the form of work for which money payment properly can be demanded.

Another element in the psychology of the opponents of bonuses for soldiers is the firmly implanted belief in all minds that the earner of praise should let the praising be done by others, and that when he tells his own achievements he steps down from the hero's pedestal. When he does this, invariably the general estimate of his merit decreases.

It is notable that in no country have military pensions been of a size proportioned to the public appreciation of military service. Rarely, if ever, have the pensions been more than large enough to keep out of the poorhouse the veteran dependent on them. Does that prove this to be a world of ingrates? To say so would be more than rash, as is, always, the condemnation of a universal "folk-way."

The truth is that honor and money do not go together, not at all because money is usually or necessarily dishonorable, but simply because the two are incommensurables—cannot be balanced one against the other.

Meeting High Expectation. By far the severest test to which the members of the New York State Constabulary as yet have been subjected is the one which they are now enduring in Troy and Albany, and they are meeting it in a way highly encouraging to the friends of this organization.

The strikers there are of the sort that naturally and promptly turn to violence as the means of attaining their ends, and they do so, not because there is anything in the history of such "troubles" to show that street car strikes thus can be won, but because without violence any street car strike would be an almost instant failure. The only expectation of the more intelligent strikers must be the inspiring of the company managers with reluctance to bring on contests sure to be expensive.

The arrival of the troopers on the scene has restored order, or something like it, and this has been done without resort to any of the measures that would justify those who like to call them "Cossacks." There has been some talk about orders to "shoot to kill," but no shooting of that or any sort has been done.

The number of the troopers has been larger than it is customary to employ in Pennsylvania on similar service, but the Pennsylvania force has had much longer training, its efficiency is better known, and therefore it can attain its commendable ends with a smaller display of strength. The record of the New York men is good, though still short, and they now are adding a fine page to it.

His Delay Only Is a Mystery. Of course, a "communication" already has come from the THOMAS LYNN BRADFORD who committed suicide the other day. He did it for the reason, according to widely published report, that he wanted to test for himself the possibility of an exchange of messages between the living and the dead. Naturally every "medium" noted this item of news, and it is surprising, not that through one in Detroit Mr. BRADFORD has called his name to a "lifelong student of theosophy and spiritualism" in that city, but that he has not done as much or more through dozens of others. Perhaps, or rather probably, he has done so, but the "press" of the other "mediums" has not been as good as that of Detroit's exploiter of human credulity in its most pathetic form.

It is not necessary to assume that the exploitation is always dishonest. Of all deceptions, self-deception is about the easiest and most frequent, and, as "mediums" and their clients carefully abstain from the acquisition of the available knowledge as to the workings of the subconscious, both sincerely can believe in the authenticity of messages from the other world.

And for those who like that sort of thing, that is just the sort of thing they like.

PROHIBITION AND MEDICINE.

The Physician Hampered and Driven to Petty Violations of the Laws.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

There has been a good deal said about criminality and the Federal Prohibition law, and something about criminality and the narcotic drug laws. May I say a word in favor of the criminal? I have been practicing medicine for over thirty years and have held, and still hold, positions of honor and responsibility in the medical and educational world.

I am not really criminal in my instincts or habits, but I cannot practice my profession without doing perhaps petty but really criminal things.

I have a good many elderly patients, men and women with more or less senile hearts, susceptible to colds, infections and fatigue. I find it a physical or mental help to give these people occasionally an alcoholic stimulus or sedative. Some of these patients live out of town, and though I prescribe for them they cannot get my medicine without breaking the law. Though I can prescribe for others, I cannot prescribe for myself without some semi-criminal subterfuge.

I have tried now for nearly nine months to get a permit to have pure ethyl alcohol for surgically external use in my office. I have been visited by two inspectors, who examined my professional outfit and asked about my professional career. I have signed and sworn to various documents testifying to my correctness of life, &c., but I have no permit and must infer I am unfit.

I loathe drunkenness and drunken men, and feel that the one good thing in Bolshevism was that they shot their drunkards. I am glad the saloons are gone, that the use of alcohol is restricted, but the country is paying the price of harsh, unnecessary and arbitrary methods. The loss of personal liberty is deeply resented, and a widespread indifference to the law and to the idea of criminality has resulted. This is not only true of New York, but I have found it still more so in rural States where temperate users of alcohol are more shut off from any degree of indulgence than here.

People over 30 or 40 are practically immune to intemperance, and alcohol may be of social and medicinal value in the later years of life. Cornaro, who praised "divine sobriety, pleasing to God, the friend of nature, the daughter of reason," lived to be 100 years old, and wine was part of his sobriety and of his diet. Dr. Hufeland, the leading physician of Europe 100 years ago, writing on longevity, said, "Wine is milk to the aged." This is not quite true, but it is true that it is helpful and a real remedy in many emergencies and distressing conditions, as well as a valuable food in diabetes.

This letter is written as the expression of resentment against the Prohibition law, because it makes us at least near-criminals and hampers us in our professional work. Perhaps my years and the peculiarities of my experience make me especially disturbed. But I certainly represent a large element in my profession in expressing myself as I am doing.

In this connection I would like to call attention to the experiments made by Dr. H. M. Vernon for the Central Control Board of Liquor Traffic of the British Government:

Dr. Vernon found that the toxic effects of alcohol were relatively very much decreased when alcohol was diluted, and he states that 3 per cent. beer is a non-intoxicating liquid, practically speaking. Dr. Vernon calculates that more than ten pints of beer, which would take him over four hours to drink, would be needed to intoxicate. His experiments were conducted by laboratory methods and for the Government, not for the brewers. I think that intelligent people should resent the fact that a question which is medical and physiological has been settled in this country by politicians, clergymen and lawyers.

To the troubles we have with the Prohibition law there are added the two sets of laws and the sixteen regulations concerning narcotic drugs. One cannot prescribe a cough mixture or a headache powder or give a hypodermic without going through hampering technicalities. If the laws were all strictly enforced, only a retired physician would be safe from jail. M. D.

LINCOLN'S SPIRIT.

I dreamed that Lincoln's spirit rose and passed
Through city streets to smite the hearts of men,
So that their souls might stir to nobler deeds,
And cleansed be of their petty schemes, and small Ambitions, e'er in jealous moods conceived; and as
He glanced, and saw the aftermath of war—
The starving hosts by pestilence harassed,
Despairing hearts, because of broken faith,
The naked child to wind and frost a prey,
Suspicions rife, and songs of hate yet sung!
Then slowly turned he to the Gate Beyond,
And, in my dream, I saw the Great Man weep . . .

O Lincoln, you who know the way of brotherhood,
Awake and teach us how the wound to heal—
How minister to suffering and weak,
And pave the way to lasting harmony.
Awake and lead us as you led of yore,
A world by hatred torn, and weary of the strife.
Into the heart of every man implant the song—
"With malice unto none, and charity
For all." . . . O Lincoln, wake, and smite the hearts of men,
So that our souls might stir to nobler deeds.
Scourge us with fire, or with gentle tongue,
But rouse our souls that we may keep your faith.

MEXICO UNDER THE NEW REGIME

Dr. Vasconcelos and Educational Regeneration—A Great Field for American Assistance to Mexico.

By FRANK BOHN.

(Fifth Article.)

In approaching the subject of education in Mexico, the first question to be answered is one of racial psychology. Approximately, of every five persons in Mexico, two are native Indians, two are mixed native and Spanish and only one is of pure Spanish descent. The question concerns the mentality of the native and mixed elements compared with that of the whites. Can they learn as rapidly? Can they be really interested in the things of the mind? In how far is education of use to them, and what sort of education?

I discussed this question with three men particularly—Professor Maillefert of the National Bureau of Archaeology, Dr. Neguera, sometime graduate student at Harvard and now instructor in the National University of Mexico, and Dr. Vasconcelos, Director of the National University and Chief of the Bureau of Education in the National Government. Each replied, without the slightest hesitancy, that the mind of the native Indian of Mexico, provided body and mind were alike properly nourished and trained, is in every way the equivalent of that of his white fellow-citizen. This is proved in their everyday experience as educators. Always having been doubtful, I felt much reassured by their statements. The relentless trend of population, indeed the very basic geographical and biographical foundations of life, have decreed that not only Mexico, but also enlarging portions of our American border States, are to be populated, eventually, by a race of mixed white and Indian blood.

We Nordics killed the natives or hurried them out of the land. The kindlier Latins, after the first rude conquests, preserved and protected the natives and dwelt among them as friends and brethren. Shame, if nothing else, should drive us to help the white minority in Mexico in its task of civilizing and educating the aborigines.

The problem of the education of the Mexican masses, like every other problem we are discussing in these articles, is enormously difficult. Educational conditions at present resemble those in Russia or the rural parts of our own South. Only men and women who are rendered enthusiastic by the idealism inherent in the great transformation can have the courage to set about the execution of the plans which have been formed. I met and talked to Dr. Vasconcelos at the university four times. I saw something of his teachers and students. I was present at the dedication of an evening school for the working people, Dr. Vasconcelos presiding at the ceremonies. These experiences permitted me not only to study the problem, but also to sense the spirit which obtains.

Once Dr. Vasconcelos became historical in his conversations. "These university buildings," he said, "which you say are very good, were erected in the eighteenth century. At that time we were the first country of the Americas, and this city was the most populous and advanced centre of civilization in the hemisphere. Indeed, the university was founded shortly after the Spanish conquest. But the last hundred years," he added, sadly, "have seen so little progress and so often deterioration."

Just as the hope of Mexico in the field of land reform rests with the National Congress and the Land bill now placed before it, so the forces of the new education in Mexico have rallied around the Education bill, which probably will be accepted almost exactly as presented. (For translation of this bill see The Nation, issue of Feb. 9.) It is impossible to summarize this document in a few words. It provides for the establishment of a Federal Department of Public Education. (It is expected by some of his friends that Dr. Vasconcelos will perhaps enter the Cabinet as Minister of Education.) The department will supervise:

1. The four national universities and the State colleges of industry, agriculture and pedagogy.
2. The establishment and management of all public libraries.
3. The development of general primary and secondary education in all parts of the republic.
4. The civilization and education of such native Indians (some 3,000,000 in number) who are still living under primitive conditions without the use of the Spanish language.
5. Museums, historical and artistic monuments, theatres and theatrical productions, moving pictures, conservatories of music and all similar institutions.

The bill, as proposed, develops each one of these features at considerable length. Education shall be free, secular and compulsory in the primary grades. Religious societies are not permitted to conduct schools. It is interesting to note that the Government, under the provisions of the bill, must feed, clothe and educate all children of the republic under 14 years of age who are orphans or whose parents for any good reason cannot support them.

As Dr. Vasconcelos handed me a copy of the bill he said:

"We wish to appeal to all the educational forces in your country to assist us in our great task. Let me be specific. We know exactly what manner of help we most need. First, we are sending 200 selected students to be placed in the engineering and agricultural schools of the United States. We are going to pay all their expenses. Will you help us designate the schools and apportion the students? Cannot also a number, I hope a great number, of supporting fellowships be established by your universities and technical schools and by private donors? I do not wish to seem visionary or mention figures which seem inordinately large. Perhaps my hopes outrun realities. But I wish to see, as soon as possible, a thousand Mexican students in your universities and technical schools, being trained for positions of leadership in our country. We shall be happy to receive exchange students, not a large number at first, but as many as we can take care of. A mutual service in these things will bind us together by the strongest possible ties."

As was my custom in conversing with these men of the new Mexico, I here put to him the questions which inevitably came to mind: "What have you already done? What are you doing right now? What financial means have you at your disposal? What means will you certainly have in the immediate future?"

"Our regular budget," was the reply, "carries about 8,000,000 pesos (about $4,000,000) for the Federal education service. The bill now to be placed before the Chamber, and sure of becoming law, increases this appropriation to 23,000,000 pesos. I am insistent upon one point—that we concentrate upon elementary schools and free public libraries. If help in considerable degree can come from the educational forces of the United Sates and from some of your farseeing philanthropists who can be made to understand how great is our need, that help should be given to the universities and the State colleges. About twenty so-called universities, scattered throughout as many States, are now to be turned into colleges restricted to the preparation of students in pedagogy, agriculture and industry. If we could get help for these—a modicum of help—at once, it would mean so much to us."

Dr. Vasconcelos went on to describe the Mexican system of education, which has been based upon that of the French. The boy or girl ordinarily leaves the secondary school at the age of 14 or 15. He then spends four years at a preparatory college, after which he enters a technical or professional school of the university. The National University in the City of Mexico now has 2,000 students in grades above the preparatory college.

I left the university that particular day with my mind obsessed by two ideas: First, we Americans who have spent so many millions of dollars upon every conceivable sort of educational and missionary task in the remotest recesses of the world, have consistently and almost entirely neglected to give the slightest help to our most immediate southern neighbor. Second, this neighbor, starving for what we can do for her in an educational way, is yet prepared to give measure for measure. Educated Mexico is possessed of the finest Latin culture. An evening spent at a café with leaders of her intellectual and artistic life is quite as delightful as an evening amid similar circles in Paris or Geneva. Her intellectual classes quite generally use the French language. Many of them have studied and travelled in Europe. With no patronizing air may we proffer our assistance. The gulf which separates our cultures is both wide and deep. We are possessed of colossal wealth and the mighty strength of our technical efficiency. These we have applied with much noise and haste to education. Much as Mexico needs our assistance in these things, we are just as much in need of what she has to offer to us out of her peculiar heritage and achievement.

FOR PEACE AND DEMOCRACY.

Conference on Industrial Reconstruction Program to Be Held.

A conference on a proposed industrial reconstruction program for peace and democracy, involving the representation of employes in the management of industrial plants, the formation of a league of industries which have adopted industrial democracy, and the organization of an International Exposition and Congress for Peace and Democracy in Washington in 1926, will be held by the National Efficiency Society beginning at 9 o'clock on the morning of Feb. 26 at the Hotel Astor.

Representatives are being invited to the conference from those national, civic, industrial, technical, professional and religious organizations that are interested in the establishment of peace and democracy in the world. The proposed exposition would be held in celebration of the sesqui-centennial anniversary of the birth of democracy in the United States, and further for the purpose of reviewing the development of industry during the fifty years since the centennial exposition which inaugurated the present industrial system.

The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad has also agreed to transport all grain tendered in trainload lots without charge, according to Farm Bureau officials.

Top Price for "The Beauty," by Kaigetsudo at Schraubstadter Sale.

"The Beauty," No. 243, brought the top price at the Carl Schraubstadter sale of Japanese prints at the American Art Galleries yesterday, going to a buyer giving the name of E. E. Miller, for $2,100. It was a very large print 24 inches high, by 12½ wide, black and white, by Kaigetsudo. It showed a tall young woman, her hair done in the olden style, wearing a kimono richly decorated with iris and paulownia flowers, her right hand hidden in her sleeve and the left holding the folds of her kimono.

There were afternoon and evening sales yesterday, the four figure price coming in the afternoon. At that sale Mrs. J. Takamine was a purchaser, paying $165 for No. 293, Kiyonaga's big print, 16¼ by 27½, of the largest department store in Japan, the "Echigoya Emporeium on Suruga Street," a successor of the original owner still doing business there. It shows a wide street scene, the shop on either side, many people of all classes in the street, and at the end of the view, in which there is a European perspective, Mt. Fuji rises its snowy head.

"In the River Tea House," No. 304, from the "Latest Tea House Beauties" series, by Kiyonaga, three men entertained by a party of Geishas, went to K. Oshima for $140; "The Mist," No. 366, a deep ravine, with mists rising, said to be Kunisada's finest landscape, went to Howard Mansfield for $60.

A very unusual big theatre scene, No. 520, by Toyokuni, a double triptich, showing the annual performance in Tokio of the star actors, the occasion when the new actors are introduced, the exterior and the interior of the theatre, with the crowds of theatregoers being shown, sold to G. E. Fuller of Boston for $150 in the evening sale. J. T. Spaulding, who was a large buyer, paid $90 for No. 509, "Cherry Viewing," by Eishi; $190 for No. 532, a night scene by Toyokuni, an actor, as a woman, with a lantern, against a velvety black background; $85 for No. 534, "Danjuro," by the same artist, the fiercely painted head of an actor; $90 for No. 536, "Actor's Bust," by the same artist; $130 for No. 543, by Kunimasa, "Danjuro and Two Other Actors," and $70 for No. 544, "A Player," by Kunimasa, a powerful picture with Mount Fuji for a background.

Returns for the afternoon sale were $5,922, and for the evening $3,185, making a grand total to date of $12,655. There will be fine Utamaro mica prints among others in the closing sale this afternoon.

AMBASSADOR RICCI HERE FROM ITALY

HE PRAISES AMERICA

Will Maintain the Steadfast Friendship Between the Two Nations, He Tells Delegation.

Senator Vittorio Rolandi-Ricci, the newly appointed Ambassador from Italy to the United States, arrived yesterday from Genoa on the Italian liner Ducca d'Aosta, accompanied by his son, a Captain in the army, and Guido Sabetta, former Consul General for Italy in Chicago, who is to be the counsellor of the Embassy in Washington.

The Ambassador was met at Quarantine by Victorio Faresi, Secretary of the Embassy, and Consul General Bernardi of New York. The ship was decorated with flags as she came up the harbor to her pier at the foot of West Fifty-fifth Street, where there were more flags and a crowd of enthusiastic members of the Italian colony in New York waiting to greet the representative of their native land.

After he had met the delegation on the pier Ambassador Ricci said he had already made his program public in several speeches in Rome, Milan and Genoa before sailing for this country.

"I am proud to have the honor and privilege this day," he said, "of setting foot upon this soil where generous hospitality and the highest opportunities were ever accorded to so many of my countrymen, and to greet, in the name of Italy, the noble American nation. I beg the American press to grant me its invaluable assistance in maintaining unshaken the ties of mutual affection which ever united this great country to ours."

The new Ambassador was born in 1860 and took his degree as Doctor of Law at the University of Genoa in 1890. In 1912 he was appointed to a seat in the Italian Senate. He was Vice President of the International Chamber of Commerce in Paris and went to Brussels as Italian representative to the International Finance Conference.

Another passenger on the Duca d'Aosta traveling with Ambassador Ricci was F. Quattrone, during the war Acting High Commissioner of Italy in the United States.

The liner brought 59 first, 124 second and 1,340 steerage passengers from Italian ports, and as she had no sickness on board the Quarantine officials permitted her to go to her pier. She had a very stormy passage from Gibraltar, without a single day's calm. Captain Giovanni Schiaffino, the commander, said that the worst was at 3 P. M. on Monday, Feb. 7, when the wind blew from the west with hurricane force and was accompanied by what he termed mountainous seas.

SUED ON SUGAR CONTRACT.

Thompson, Restaurant Owner, in Action for $364,000.

Suit has been instituted in the Federal Court in Chicago by the American Sugar Refining Company against John R. Thompson, owner of restaurants in Illinois and elsewhere, for approximately $364,000, alleged to be due for sugar bought last Summer. Last night Ralph Crews, counsel for the complainant, said that Mr. Thompson had contracted for 8,000 barrels of sugar at 22½ cents a pound, that about 1,800 barrels had been delivered to him and that he had refused to complete the contract by accepting the remainder.

Mr. Crews explained that after a good deal of the sugar had been delivered the price began to decline, and that thereupon Mr. Thompson refused to accept any more shipments or to pay for what he had received.

CONDEMNS BANQUET DRINKS

Special to The New York Times.

UTICA, N. Y., Feb. 11.—Prominent business men of New York and other cities of the State who are alleged to have attended banquets recently in leading hotels at which liquors flowed freely were rebuked by Charles R. O'Connor, Federal Prohibition Director for New York State, speaking here today before the twelfth annual conference of the New York State Association of Magistrates.

"How can you expect the least intelligent and the criminally inclined of our citizens to obey the laws," Mr. O'Connor inquired, "if some of our alleged best citizens and men who are held in high regard in the community hold them in contempt or treat the violations lightly? The respect in which the law is held in the mind of some bootlegger before the court for a sentence is lessened when he knows that some of the liquor which he has diverted from its legal use was used by prominent and respected citizens at some public banquet.

"I have been informed that at banquets held by groups of leading business men throughout the State, including bankers, who are extremely interested in strict enforcement of all laws, men whose position in the community as prominent and respected citizens is unassailable, have at banquets brought liquor which was consumed publicly, all of which is in violation of law, aside from the fact that undoubtedly a part of such liquor so used had been secured by bootlegging or by diverting it from legitimate channels.

"The part that local magistrates will play in prohibition matters," Mr. O'Connor continued, "will be more prominent and active if the legislation now recommended to the State Legislature by Governor Miller for assisting in the enforcement of the Volstead act is enacted into law. This is a most desirable and helpful piece of legislation. The help of the police officials of the State and the local magistrates and judges will greatly assist in bringing about a more reasonable enforcement of the law."

WANTS BILLION FOR ROADS.

Builders' Congress Told It Would Give Work to 3,500,000.

CHICAGO, Feb. 11.—A $1,000,000,000 program of highway improvement was urged in a resolution before the American Road Builders' Congress today. Safer highways and elimination of grade crossings were also urged. Immediate action on the program, it was declared, would give employment to 3,500,000 idle men.

H. C. Sylvester, Vice President of the National City Company of New York, in an address discussed the financing of road building by bond issues. He said the first principle in financing highway construction was that money borrowed should be repaid as soon as the principal and interest could be raised by taxation, without budrening the taxpayer.

Other features of successful financing were creation of an attractive and marketable security on the cheapest and lowest terms possible.

ECONOMIC LEAGUE BACKS INCOME TAX

AGAINST EXCESS PROFITS TAX

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Feb. 11.—Officials of the National Economic League in a statement made public today say that the sentiment of the country is overwhelmly in favor of retaining the income tax as one of the principal sources of Federal revenue. This decision was reached thought and affairs, on a questionnaire after a poll of the membership, 2,000 men prominent in American public covering eleven subjects relating to income taxes. Of the 2,000 members questioned 530 returned ballots.

In the Council of the League are such men as ex-President William Howard Taft, President-elect Warren G. Harding, Governor James M. Cox of Ohio, Democratic nominee for President; Charles W. Eliot, former President of Harvard University, and Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia University. Although 90 per cent. of the 530 members who returned ballots voted in favor of retaining the income tax, about 75 per cent. voted against the excess profits tax, which has been characterized by leading thinkers of America as vicious, in that it serves to paralyze legitimate business and to keep commodity prices out of proportion to what they would be with more reasonable taxation on business or industry.

About one-half of the voters expressed themselves as favoring the retention of the present minima of taxation; of those voting in the negative, two-thirds favored lowering the minima. A majority were opposed to the present rates of the surtax on incomes in excess of $5,000, all but 10 per cent. favoring diminishing the present rate. About 70 per cent. voted as favoring the retention of the inheritance tax.

The questions asked, and the results obtained follow:

	Vote. Yes.	No.
1—Should the income tax be retained as one of the principal sources of Federal revenue	435	45
2—Should the present minima of taxable income be retained?	237	234
If the answer is "No," should the present minima be:
3—Should the present rates on surtax upon income in excess of $5,000 be retained?	182	277
If the answer is "No," should the present rates of surtax be:
(a) Increased?	17	0
(b) Diminished?	178	0
4—Should the excess profits tax be retained as a source of Federal revenue?	130	368
5—Should the Federal estate (commonly called inheritance) tax be retained?	362	138
6—Should a direct tax be levied by the United States upon the site value of land; the portion of the value of land due to the presence and activities of the community and to natural advantages, mineral deposits, harbor frontage and the like?	162	317
7—If your answer is "Yes" to the preceding question, should the Federal Constitution be amended so that such a tax could be levied at a uniform rate throughout the United States instead of being apportioned among the States in proportion to population as at present required?	117	28
8—Should the policy of the United States with respect to a tariff on imports be:
(a) A tariff for the protection of home industries?	260	0
(b) A tariff for revenue only?	185	0
(c) Free trade, no tariff whatever?	54	0
9—Should Congress undertake a survey of the ultimate effect of various kinds of taxes to determine:
(a) What taxes involve administrative expenses disproportionate to the revenue collected?
(b) What taxes, if any, directly or indirectly increase the cost of living by an amount materially in excess of the revenue collected?
(c) What taxes, if any, could be levied that would directly or indirectly reduce the cost of living?	441	51
10—Is it advisable for the United States to pay off its bonded indebtedness as rapidly as the bonds mature?	206	242

LINCOLN MEMORY HONORED IN SCHOOLS

The 112th anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln will be observed in this city today by patriotic societies and by special programs in many private schools and institutions. The anniversary was observed yesterday with special programs in most of the public schools.

The thirty-fifth Lincoln Day dinner of the National Republican Club will be held in the Waldorf tonight, with several prominent speakers to eulogize the martyred President. Henry Theodore Thomas, who was a friend of President Lincoln, will be the speaker tonight at the dinner of the Wayne County (Pennsylvania) Society in the Commodore.

A memorial service of the Union Society of the Civil War will be held in Grace Church, at Broadway and Tenth Street, at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. The service will be conducted by the Right Rev. Cortlandt Whitehead, Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of Pittsburgh, and the Rev. Dr. Charles L. Slattery. Bishop Whitehead will have as the topic of his sermon "True National Idealism," in which he will extol Lincoln.

The National Guard parade today has been postponed because of the illness of Governor Miller, according to an announcement from the headquarters of Major Gen. John F. O'Ryan. If the Governor had been able to make the trip to the city, the regiments of the guard would have returned their war colors to the State, after a parade and review in Fifth Avenue.

Whether Lincoln was a Republican or a Democrat in principles will be debated at the Vanderbilt Hotel this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The meeting is under the auspices of the Women's Democratic Political League, and the Democratic side will be taken by William Harman Black.

REV. CARL JULIUS RENZ DIES

The Rev. Carl Julius Renz, founder and for more than fifty years pastor of the Immanuel Lutheran Church, at Lexington Avenue and Eighty-eighth Street, died yesterday in his eighty-second year at his home, 321 Ocean Parkway, Brooklyn. He was born in Germany in 1838, came here as a boy, and got his religious education at Concordia Seminary in St. Louis, accepting his first charge at College Point, N. Y.

In 1862 he came to Yorkville and held in the Court House there services that a year later led to the establishment of the church over which he presided until a year ago.

Asks That She and Richard H. Clarke Be Appointed Temporary Administrators.

The first action in the contest over the will of Joseph H. Ryan, son of Thomas Fortune Ryan, was begun yesterday in the Surrogates' Court when the widow, Nannie Morse Ryan, and Richard H. Clarke, as trustee under an agreement of separation between Ryan and his wife, petitioned the court that they be appointed temporary administrators of the estate of Joseph J. Ryan.

Mrs. Ryan states that her home is at Valley View Farm, Ridge Road, Washington, D. C., and that she has two children, Eleanor M. and Joseph J. Ryan, Jr. The petition then recites that on May 6, 1915, "owing to divers disputes and unhappy differences which have arisen and now exist," an agreement of separation and deed of trust were executed between Ryan and his wife in which he named the latter and Clarke as trustees. The petition states that the agreement provided the wife should receive $350 a month for the maintenance of herself and the children and after the latter attained eight years of age, Ryan agreed to pay for their education.

In his will Ryan left his wife $100, saying he had made ample provision previously for her support. He left his two children $5,000 each and after some minor bequests to friends made a specific bequest of $10,000 and the residue of his estate to a friend, Miss Dorothy Lucille Whiteford, of 172 West Seventy-ninth Street. Mrs. Ryan is to contest her husband's will on the ground that he was unduly influenced. She declared that the value of her husband's estate does not exceed $50,000 in real estate and that $40,000 will cover the value of his personal effects.

DINES WITH EX-CONVICTS.

Former Warden Osborne Is Guest of Welfare League Members.

Former inmates of Sing Sing Prison, members of the outside branch here of the Mutual Welfare League, were hosts at a testimonial dinner last night at the Park Avenue Hotel to the founder of the League, Thomas Mott Osborne, former Warden. Ex-prisoners praised the work of the League and declared that it was responsible for directing them into "straight" lives, industry, thrift and success.

Mr. Osborne told of recent adoption of the league methods in other prisons, including the establishment of a league in the Deer Island Prison in Boston Harbor. He said conditions formerly in this institution were of the most hopeless and discouraging nature for starting reform, and yet the seeming impossible had been accomplished.

George W. Kirchwey, former Dean of the Law School at Columbia University, who acted as Warden at Sing Sing for a brief period, said that many prison managers dislike and fear the league principles and its work because they, in their ignorance, consider this reform as a reflection on their own methods and practices in penal management.

George Hudson, manager of the league employment bureau here, said his statistics showed that where one wrongdoer out of twelve may go astray again when he has a chance to reform through the league's help, eleven others "make good."

VILLARD WILL LECTURE.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Feb. 11.—Protest against "the unfairness and un-Americanism" of various hotels and public halls that have barred Oswald Garrison Villard from delivering a lecture here is made in a statement issued jointly by the City Club and the Woman's City Club.

Mr. Villard will lecture in the quarters of the Woman's City Club Saturday. The meeting place was decided on after protests against Mr. Villard's alleged pacifist attitude in the war had developed opposition which resulted in the cancellation of arrangements for numerous other quarters.

"It is peculiarly harmful to the City of Cincinnati, in this period of reconstruction, when the problems are so difficult and need the most free and intelligent discussion, that our city should be made the victim of the latest manifestation of czarism," the club's statement says in part.

This committee, of which Representative Slemp of Virginia is Chairman, is expected to report to the full National Committee at its meeting here on March 3. Other members of the subcommittee are Earl S. Kingsley of Vermont and R. P. Howell of Nebraska, while Chairman Will H. Hays and Secretary Miller of the National Committee are ex-officio members.

EDISON DISCUSSES HIS PHILOSOPHY

"THERE IS NOTHING WRONG"

He Will Retire "Only When the Doctor Brings the Oxygen Cylinder"—Predicts Strides in Chemistry.

Special to The New York Times.

ORANGE, N. J., Feb. 11.—Great strides are just ahead in chemistry, said Thomas A. Edison, today celebrating his seventy-fourth birthday with an impromptu reception in his home, Glenmont, Llewellyn Park, West Orange. And, he added, unemployment is largely non-existent—it is merely a psychological state of mind.

He is apparently as hale and jovial as ever, betraying none of the "over seventy" manifestations. Down at Glenmont a group of those who worked in the days when his phonograph and other inventions were merely dreams participated in the celebration. They organized the "Edison Pioneers," gave the inventor a watch fob made from one of the original phonographic steel disks and elected him a "pioneer of the pioneers."

Seated in a big armchair, Mr. Edison directed the reporters to "fire away," and in response to their questions on various topics he said:

"The future of the world? It appears to me to be fine and interesting, but somewhat complicated. The world is progressing and is moving along faster than ever. We have foreknowledge and the tools, so we can go ahead on new inventions. It is hard to say what the new inventions will be. We need more men of imagination."

Then the question of "when are you going to retire?" came along.

"I don't want to retire," he said, "but when the doctor brings in the oxygen cylinder I shall know that I am through. Not until then. If a man retires from active business after he reaches 70 he probably dies in three years."

What were the chances of jitneys replacing the electric trolley?" he was asked.

"I think the trolley beats them all," he answered, "and it will stay if the people will allow them to live and not go into bankruptcy," and then, when somebody referred to Henry Ford's recent statement about the passing of the cow and the arrival of synthetic milk, he said:

"It is possible to make synthetic milk, and it would probably be more pure than the milk we now have. I see great advances just ahead in the field of chemistry. There are enormous opportunities."

His viewpoint on the unemployment situation was:

"We are running through a cycle, and it will have to take its course. I think it is psychological, and I don't know how long it will last. But there is absolutely nothing the matter."

A final question was on the alleged collapse of morals, and he said:

"If the people would occupy themselves with other things there would be no cause to run toward immorality."

After the reception the members of the "Edison Pioneers" elected their officers for the ensuing years. Fred A. Scheffler was chosen President; the Historian was found in William H. Meadowcroft, while the Executive Committee was Alfred W. Kiddle, John W. Lieb and William J. Hammer.

Plans were discussed for the establishment of a Summer camp for the organization, but this was put over for further debate, as was a suggestion that Mr. Edison be invited to spend two weeks of his leisure with the pioneers every year.

BLAMES THE BANK FOR TELLER'S THEFT

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Feb. 11.—Francis J. Carey, 19 years old, receiving teller of the National City Bank at Ottawa, stood beside his widowed mother today and told Judge Landis why he stole $96,000 from his employers on the evening of Nov. 10. The Judge seemed astonished as the boy told of trying to support his mother and two sisters on $90 a month.

"I was troubled about the folks," Carey said. "I gave my mother money every month. I bought things for my two sisters, and to keep up the house it took all I made. At night when I was working overtime I got to wishing I had more money. Suddenly I thought how easy it would be to open the safe and escape before the bank officials arrived the following morning.

"I began to get scared as soon as I had opened the safe. The sight of so much money frightened me. Finally, I picked up all I could and wrote a note telling the officials I would not have taken the money if I had been better paid. Next day I realized what I had done and what it meant to my mother. I gave myself up."

Judge Landis turned to James P. Catlin, President of the bank, and said:

"You should have been in a position to pay this man more. I frankly criticise the bank. It placed temptation in this boy's path. Much of the responsibility is on the bank Directors. I don't wish to send this boy to Leavenworth. I could not send him there today."

ITALY'S BREAD PROBLEM.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Feb. 10.—The question of raising the price of bread is still absorbing public attention. The refusal of the Government to accept the Socialists' amendments to the project now before the Chamber has met with general approval. The Government holds that it cannot possibly consent that the chief object of its scheme should be frustrated, namely, to provide some way to cover the frightful deficit in the budget caused chiefly by the fixing of the price of bread at a low figure for political effect.

If the price is not increased to such a figure as will meet the deficit, the only other solution seems to be to abolish Government control of cereals, which will bring the cost of bread to three lire fifty or four lire per kilo. Such a measure would bring with it new agitations and strikes of many categories of citizens to obtain higher salaries.

The amendments proposed by the Socialists are seen to be absurd, when one takes into account that their plan is to make a workman who earns as much as 30 or 50 lire a day pay 1 lira per kilo for his bread, while poor clerks, with wages on which they can hardly live, are to pay 4 lire. The Socialists' evident aim is to follow a policy which favors the proletariat, even if it harms the middle classes, which suffer most.

The press generally calls upon the Government to stand by its guns and not be intimidated by the Socialists.

UPSETS ARE FEW IN GARDEN DOG SHOW

Fifty Breeds Expected to Be Represented in Special for W. K. C. Championship.

A record day of judging at the exhibition of the Westminster Kennel Club in Madison Square Garden yesterday, which eliminated several hundred canine aristocrats from the race for titular honors, left the fanciers and thousands of onlookers with a fairly good idea of what dogs will file into the ring this afternoon to compete for best of the show, the winner to be crowned king of dogdom.

Not all the contenders were known even after the officials had retired from a day of ceaseless judging, but enough have been identified to insure one of the strongest competitions for the highest honors that has been seen in years. A dozen or so of winners in the various breeds were winners at many shows and have come through thus far in such fine shape that the meeting today will be a test of judges as well as dogs. There are sixty breeds in the show and it is expected that nearly fifty of these will be represented in the special for best of the show.

The judges were forced to put in an unusually busy day because of the fact that this year's show was limited to three days instead of four, as in previous years, while there are as many dogs and classes as ever and, in numerous instances, larger classes than usual. Starting promptly at 10:30 in the morning, the officials were kept on the go until closing time last night, when they found that they had not kept up with their schedule and that many classes down for judging yesterday would have to come up this morning. They expect, however, to be up with their schedule by noon, as there were not many classes regularly scheduled for today.

Few Upsets Recorded.

The day was marked by few upsets of any note and champions came through according to expectations in most cases. It was notable that almost all of the dogs which had championship possibilities were set down in excellent form. This was true even among the toy dogs, which had withstood a trying opening day in cramped quarters and were in danger of suffering a setback before the final tests came.

Speculation became particularly keen as to the chances of the wire-haired fox terriers when C. L. Gilliland's Aberfoyle Trevelac Tit Bit scored a triumph over her recent conquerer, Frilford Felix, also owned by Mr. Gilliland. This was one of the reversals of the day, for at the recent specialty show, Frilford Felix swept everything before him and defeated Tit Bit.

Tit Bit has, however, improved since then, as was evident yesterday. She has been in this country only about four months, having been a winner on the other side, and appears to have just reached her best. Frilford Felix could not get even the reserve. This went to Sabine Fernlike, which has been a winner no less than twenty-five times in the course of his show career.

Since it is quite certain that the wire-haired fox terriers will once more make a strong bid for the championship of the show, experts who saw yesterday's winner regard this representative as a very strong contender against the other breeds. Aberfoyle Trevelac Tit Bit not only has good conformation but displayed fine spirit. Another of this breed that will try for the title is Mrs. Roy A. Rainey's Conejo Perfection. It was Mrs. Rainey's Wycollar Boy which took best of show last year.

Irish Terriers Popular.

Irish terriers held much attention while they were in the ring. There is an exceptionally fine gathering of these dogs this year, and it is felt that they will make a very good showing against the other canines. The Irish terrier classes were judged by Jeremiah J. O'Callaghan, and, while some of the fanciers appeared to take exception to his selections, the decisions appeared to be well founded throughout his stay in the ring.

Competition in the Irish terrier classes was keen and the judging was especially close in the winners' classes. Winners, dogs, was won by the Holmehill Kennels' Brentmoor Blinker, which defeated John G. Gates's Blarney Moorlough Manus. This contest was close and the decision was one of those which some fanciers took exception to. Mr. O'Callaghan spent considerable time in making up his mind and his decision seemed to be quite properly made.

Mr. Gates has some of the finest Irish terriers in this country, and so it was something of a surprise that he should meet with two defeats in succession. This was his fate, however, for in the class for winning bitches, Roughan Na Flaw, owned by E. Sayres and J. Keating, triumphed over Mr. Gates's Blarney Wonderful Biddy.

Mr. Gates is still in a very good position to contest for the best of the show, for he has in reserve Blarney Beckside Begorra, winner at the specialty show a few days ago and a dog that promises to command respect. He has been entered only for the special class in which the highest award will be made, and it remains to be seen if he can make up for the losses sustained yesterday by his owner.

Wins in Four Classes.

Quite the most sensational showing made in the Irish terrier classes was that of J. R. Thorndike's Thorncroft Mark Time, a puppy that gives great promise. He started out like a champion and won in four classes in succession, taking first in the puppy class, and going on from that to victories in the novice, American bred and junior classes.

The Airedales provided some of the most interesting classes of the day. Not only are they strong in numbers, but they are of excellent quality this year. This is particularly true of American-breds. They were judged by Russell Johnson of Chester Hill, Pa., who has an excellent knowledeg of this breed, and his awards were popular.

From this breed came another of the really strong contenders for the big honors. This was the Doreda Kennels' Doreda Craigmiller Prince, which defeated the noted champion, Polam Maxim, owned by Norman McKenzie. The latter was held in reserve for winners, dogs, but though he made his usually fine showing, he was no match for the victor. The Doreda Kennels scored a double triumph by winning in the class for winners, bitches, with Doreda Warland Strategy, which conquered Frederic C. Hood's Becwood Bashful. Warland Strategy was particularly well shown, and, while the judging was very close, the victory was quite decisive.

There was a surprise among the Yorkshire terriers, those tiny dogs with a silken coat that look more like something painted than alive. This was accounted for by Mrs. Mae Fletcher's Laddie, a puppy which went through from the puppy class to winners, and threatened for a time to emerge the leader of his kind. By the time he had reached winners, dogs, he was being much talked about, for he appeared to be a stronger candidate each time he was sent into the ring.

Has Wonderful Coat.

The tiny dog has a coat of wonderful texture, which is one of the strong scoring points with the Yorkshires. In addition, its conformation is almost perfect, and it showed fine action when sent around the ring. There was a touch of smudge on the face, but it was not enough to have any effect in the judging.

Laddie did wonderfully well until he met Mrs. Anna Radcliffe's champion, Little Babs. The latter is one of the most remarkable of the breed, and she suddenly brought to an end the thrilling streak of success of Laddie. She emerged with the honors. Laddie's showing was more of a surprise because little was known about him, though he had been shown a few times. He gives promise of making it very interesting for his rivals in future shows.

Colonel Ruppert Abandons St. Bernards for Beagles

Colonel Jacob Ruppert, half-owner of the Yankees, who for more than a quarter of a century has been successfully showing St. Bernards from one of the finest kennels in the country, has finally decided to abandon the breed with which he has so long been identified. It was announced in his behalf yesterday that hereafter Colonel Ruppert will show beagles, a bred in which he has taken a great interest, and that he will seek to gain the same measure of success with these as he did with the larger dogs. The decision to make the change was in no wise prompted by the defeat of his St. Bernards on the opening day of the Westminster Kennel Club show, but is the working out of a plan he has had for some time to take up another breed.

BOXING OFFICIALS BAR MOUTHPIECE

Boxers in future bouts conducted under the Walker law will not be permitted to use the rubber mouth protector. The contrivance was banned yesterday by an edict of the Boxing Commision, which declared the mouthpiece in violation of the law, and, accordingly, notified all clubs, boxers and referees to prohibit its use in the future. The action of the governing officials came as a direct result of the unfortunate disorder produced in the recent welterweight championship battle between Jack Britton and Ted Kid Lewis. In this encounter Britton, after the bell had sounded at the end of the second round, accompanied Lewis to the latter's corner, protesting volubly against the mouthpiece which Lewis was using. In Lewis's corner Britton punched one of the English boxer's seconds.

The case was the subject of a hearing at the Boxing Commission headquarters yesterday. It was after this session that the commission issued its statement against the mouthpiece. The statement follows:

"The New York State Boxing Commission interprets Rule V. of the official boxing rules incorporated in the Walker Boxing law, to prohibit the use of any rubber mouthpiece or other device. The referees, boxers and all clubs are accordingly notified that only those articles of apparel and protection as particularly specified in Section V. will be permitted at boxing contests held under the jurisdiction of the commission."

PAULIST BOXERS WIN AGAIN.

Some clever amateur boxers from the Paulist A. C. invaded the domicile of the New York Athletic Club last night and carried off a fine bronze cup. It was designated as the Point Trophy Cup and the winners took title thereto with a score of 19 points.

TITLE TO FENCERS' CLUB.

One of the most interesting bouts of the fencing season was staged last night at the French Y. M. C. A. Only two clubs participated, the Fencers' Club and the New York A. C., but what made the interest in the match was the fact that three weapons were used—foils, epée and sabre. The match, which was for the three-weapon championship of the Amateur Fencers' League of America, was won by Fencers' Club, two bouts to one. The winners took both the epée bout and the sabre encounter. New York A. C. won with the foils.

The summaries:

F. B. O'Connor, New York A. C., defeated H. Twyeffort, Fencers' Club, with foils, 5—3; G. H. Breed, Fencers' Club, defeated J. C. Schaeffler, N. Y. A. C., with epee; L. H. Schoonmaker, Fencers' Club, defeated L. Nunes, N. Y. A. C., with sabre.

Rumblings from the interior workings of golfing bodies in this immediate sector broke out yesterday in considerable volume. No less than six tournaments were identified as to time and place.

The Metropolitan Golf Association submitted for members of the clan in this district the following: Amateur championship, June 8 to 11, at the Garden City Golf Club; open championship, at the Siwanoy Country Club, July 26 to 28; junior championship, at the Belleclaire Golf and Country Club, June 28 and 29.

About the same time the Westchester County Golf Association announced the following: The last week in May, between the 25th and 28th, the New Jersey-Westchester annual team matches at the Century Country Club; June 2 to 4, amateur championship at the Hudson River Country Club; June 21 and 22, junior championship at the Mount Vernon Country Club. The open championship has been proferred the Pelham Country Club for a date late in August, but the matter has not yet been definitely closed. The Victory Cup tournament was not definitely placed, but announcement is expected within a short time.

ORMOND BEACH, Fla., Feb. 11.—On a golf course composed entirely of such bunkers and other hazards as nature provided—ocean on one side, sand hills on the other—a field of eleven hardy golfers, pioneers in a way, took part in a match on the Daytona-Ormond Beach this afternoon. The distance was four and a half miles from Sea Breeze to the eighteenth green at Ormond. Robert Reilly of Rochester and Dr. A. M. Scott of Evansville, Ind., tied for first prize, each having 44 strokes. The drives were helped in distance by the smooth hard beach which gave a long run to the ball. A fleet of automobiles followed the players, the first gallery on wheels a golf match ever had. Dr. Charles Schoff, Spring Haven, came up in 48 strokes; G. C. Nimmons, Chicago, in 52, and Francis Morrison, La Porte, in 53.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Feb. 11.—Edgar Appleby is looming up as a strong contender for Percy Collins's crown in the national amateur Class A 18.2 billiard championship. In the afternoon game today Appleby defeated Robert M. Lord, 300 to 88, in sixteen innings. In his opening attempt Appleby gathered a run of 58. He missed in his second inning, but in the third came back strong with a run of 75. In the fourth he played a splendid 49, clinching the game.

Lord was palpably off form, his highest run being a 15 in his first inning. Lord had few scoreless innings, but was unable to keep the balls together.

The scores:

Appleby—58 0 75 49 3 7 3 6 6 1 3 27 16 19 7 20—300. Average, 18 12-16; high run, 75.

Charles Heddon took the second game of the afternoon from Emil Renner, 300 to 255, in 31 innings. Heddon made a run of 60 in the sixth inning and in the eleventh frame ran 56. In the thirtieth inning Heddon broke after a run of 28, lacking only one point of the necessary 300.

Renner's best run came in the last two innings, when he ran 28 and 21 points.

Tonight Percy Collins defeated Dr. A. L. Brown, 300 to 141, in twenty innings. This makes Collins's fourth victory in the contest. Missing his first shot, Collins compiled a 40 run, and in the fifth inning made a 56, and his crowning effort came in the seventh inning when he ran a beautiful 92. Brown made a better showing than in any of his previous games, making runs of 45, 32 and 22, but he was overmatched in such an opponent as Collins.

The scores:

COCHRAN WINS TWO MORE.

Billiard playing of unusual brilliancy marked the continuation of the 18.2 balkline tournament between Welker Cochran and Jake Schaefer at Daly's Academy yesterday. Rarely if ever have the averages of two players been so close as they were between the two experts in the two sessions yesterday. Cochran averaged 75 in the afternoon block, while Schaefer's average was 74, and in the evening game Cochran ran out in two innings, which gave him an average of 150, while his adversary made 293 in two trips to the table, and that made his average 146½. Cochran won in the afternoon, 300 to 296, and in the evening 300 to 293.

The score by innings:

AFTERNOON GAME.

CANADIAN SKATER TIES WORLD'S MARK

MOORE LEADS IN POINTS

Manhattan Speedster Has 60 Tallies in International Title Meet—Also Wins Two-Mile Event.

Special to The New York Times.

LAKE PLACID, N. Y., Feb. 11.—Charles Gorman of St. John, N. B., sprang the surprise of the day when he equaled the world's indoor record in the 440-yard dash in the international speed skating championships held here today. The time was 37 3-5 seconds. Gorman's performance was all the more remarkable since the race was skated with snow falling steadily. This would have a tendency to slow the track up.

Five of the fastest skaters in the United States and Canada faced the starter's gun in this event—McWhirter of Chicago, Leitch and Jewtraw of Lake Placid, Wheeler of Montreal and Gorman. With the crack of the gun Jewtraw sprang into the lead, Leitch followed by Gorman and Roy McWhirter. Gorman chased Jewtraw, around the first and second turns and down the homestretch past the judges' stand.

As the men entered the backstretch a second time Gorman sprinted desperately and passed Jewtraw on the third turn. He held his lead from there on. Jewtraw, sprinting with all his might and main, was not able to overtake the flying Canadian. At this point McWhirter shot forward almost to the shoulder of Jewtraw. Down the stretch the three men sped with scarcely a hair separating them, Gorman getting the decision from Jewtraw by less than a foot. McWhirter was third.

Moore Wins Two-Mile Title.

New York City's speed merchant, Joe Moore, carrying the colors of the 181st Street Ice Palace, won the two-mile race in the excellent time of 5:53 4-5. Richard Donovan, the St. Paul flier, was second, and Roy McWhirter of Chicago third. The lap prize in this event went to Oscar Lungoot of Chicago.

At the end of the day's races Moore led the field in the point score of the international championship, with 60 to his credit. Jewstraw and Gorman are tied for second with 50 each. McWhirter is third with 30. William Steinmetz of Chicago and Richard Donovan of St. Paul, with 20, are tied for fourth place, while Al Leitch, a Lake Placid boy, is fifth, with 10 points.

The two-mile championship was skated in four heats of one mile each, five men in each heat, to qualify for the finals. As the twenty men who qualified lined up it was announced that the lap prize would be given to the man leading the greatest number of laps. Oscar Lungoot of Chicago, E. Stevenson of Toronto and Leslie Boyd of New York went out in the effort to capture the lap prize. These three men opened up a gap of almost a quarter of a lap on the remaining seventeen starters, who loafed along for half the distance.

At this point they increased the pace, slowly overhauling the leaders, and at the tenth lap, Joe Moore, who was in fourth position, suddenly jumped the field as the men rounded into the back stretch. Moore set a dizzy pace, with Donovan and McWhirter hanging on grimly, and as they entered the head of the stretch for the final dash for the wire it was seen that young Donovan was closing in on Moore. Moore seemed to feel the impending danger, and, gathering his last remaining strength, he hurled himself across the finish line, the winner by a scant two feet, with Donovan second and McWhirter third.

GOLDSTEIN CLAIMS ANOTHER

The name of Patsy Wallace, sturdy little Philadelphia bantamweight, was added last night to the list of Abe Goldstein's victims. The two ring midgets clashed in the stellar bout, scheduled for fifteen rounds, at the Pioneer Sporting Club, but after taking enough punishment to vanquish any other boxer less sturdy than himself, Wallace succumbed to his hard-hitting rival in the seventh session.

Navy to Play Penn State Eleven on Franklin Field

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 11.—The joint request of the United States Naval Academy Athletic Association and Pennsylvania State College for the use of Franklin Field on which to play their football game next Fall was granted today by the Athletic Council of the University of Pennsylvania. The game will be played on Nov. 12.

"Both the Navy and Pennsylvania State," said Edward R. Bushnell, acting graduate manager, "made application for places on Pennsylvania's 1921 football schedule, but it was impossible to find a date for either. So Pennsylvania is pleased to be of assistance to these two institutions in this emergency."

WILLIAMS DEFEATS COLUMBIA ON ICE

Hockey teams representing Columbia and Williams met last night on the ice at the 181st Street Ice Palace, and after three periods of strenuous play the sextet from the Massachusetts college had the better of it by a score of 5 goals to 1.

The Blue and White players started off with a dash, and at the end of the first period of fifteen minutes the score was 1 to 0 in favor of the local sextet, that solitary goal having been made by Anderson. When the second period started the Williams players started to show what they could do, and during the fifteen minutes of play rolled up five goals to their credit, while their adversaries failed to add to the single tally they recorded in the first period.

Neither team succeeded in scoring in the third and last period, in which the Columbia aggregation made a valiant attempt at the start to at least cut down the lead of the Williams team, but could not, and had to be content with keeping them from adding to what they already had.

Richmond	G.	Kopper
Irwin	P.	Squires
Buell	C.P.	Anderson
Becket	C.	Rollins
Stephenson	L.W.	Rivet
Rawse	R.W.	Walker

Referee—F. H. Peacock, Williams. Umpire—George Nornon, Fordham. Time—Three periods of 15 minutes each.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 11.—The Montreal and Metropolitan ice hockey teams played here tonight to a 1-to-1 tie. The Canadians expressed a willingness to play an extra period, but the New Yorkers, who had only two substitutes with them, declined.

Walter Kinsella, squash tennis instructor at the Squash Club and the professional champion, was the victor yesterday afternoon in a special match at the Yale Club over Frank Lafforgue, the Yale Club's professional. Conceding Lafforgue seven aces handicap in each game, Kinsella won by scores of 15—11, 17—16, 15—12. The entire match sparkled with fast play. Lafforgue played a smooth, well-rounded game, and make it interesting for his opponent all the way. His shots had plenty of pace and his gets were marvelously keen. But always Kinsella gave the impression of having a great deal in reserve. When the points seemed to be mounting dangerously on Lafforgue's side of the ledger, the Squash Club man unleashed an extra burst of speed for a kill or inserted a clever change of pace to turn the Yale Club pro. back.

OWNERS DISCUSS RULES.

CLEVELAND, Feb. 11.—Complete harmony marked the annual meeting of the American League here today, all of the clubs being represented except New York.

The American League owners voted down the rule recommended by the new National Baseball Council that 25 per cent. of the clubs' shares of receipts in post-season series be paid into the league treasury, and adopted a rule that 15 per cent. go to the funds of the new commission, instead of 10 per cent. as formerly.

The rule governing the sending of first year players to the minor leagues was Such first year men, however, cannot be "selected" or drafted players. Formerly the limit was four. The limit also was removed from the number of players to farm out, the previous limit being eight.

Another rule amended permits players who have been in the major leagues for ten consecutive seasons to demand an unconditional release after waivers have been served on them. Under the former rule a club could claim within ten days after the waiver period.

The matter of umpires' salaries was not discussed, this having been adjusted at the Chicago meeting. League officials decided to limit requests for World Series tickets for newspaper prizes in contests to newspapers in cities having major league teams. The officials also authorized payment of $100 each for buttons to be awarded to players on winning teams of World's Series.

President Ban Johnson, Clark Griffith of Washington and Thomas Shibe of Philadelphia were named a committee to contract for telegraph service for the season.

RECORDS BROKEN IN POWER BOAT RACES

Gar Jr. II. and Orlo II. Set Four New Marks in Miami Regatta.

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 11.—Four world's records were established here today by power boats competing in the annual motorboat regatta conducted according to American power boat rules. Two were made by Gar Jr. II., owned and driven by G. A. Wood of Detroit, Mich., and two by Orlo II., with the owner, George Leary Jr. of New York, at the wheel.

The first event was a ten-mile race for express cruisers for the Star Island trophy. It was won by Gar Jr. II., in 18:36 4-5, an average of 32 2-10 miles an hour. Gar Jr. II. also broke the existing record for two miles during this event by covering the two-mile lap in 3 minutes and 39 seconds. Cigarette, owned and driven by Gordon Hammersley of New York, finished second, with Shadow V., driven by Carl G. Fisher of Indianapolis, the owner, third.

In the 50-mile race for open displacement boats, Orlo II., with Leary driving, was victorious over Adieu, owned by Webb Jay of Chicago, and Rainbow, the Canadian speed boat, driven and owned by H. B. Greening of Hamilton, Ontario. Orlo II. covered the fifty miles in 1 hour 17 minutes and 35 seconds, an average speed of 38 8-10 miles an hour. In this race Orlo II. covered the twenty-first lap of two miles in three minutes flat, or forty miles an hour, thereby establishing a world's record of the distance for boats of this type.

MOTOR GASOLINE

A Common Cause of Battery Strain

Gasoline that does not vaporize readily at low temperature accounts for much battery trouble and expense in winter. Spinning a cold motor for several minutes before you can get started puts a big strain on the battery. This is not necessary if you are careful to select gasoline of suitable composition for winter use.

Why You Should Use Straight-Distilled Socony Gasoline

For satisfactory and economical operation, gasoline with a low boiling point—gasoline that vaporizes freely at low temperature—is absolutely necessary. Furthermore, it should contain a complete, continuous chain of boiling points, since that alone can insure quick, complete, powerful combustion.

Socony Meets the Tests

Socony gasoline meets all these requirements. With Socony you get quick starts, even in the coldest weather. This, combined with its absolute uniformity at all times and in all places, partly explains why experienced car owners and motor transport executives specify Socony.

Other and important considerations are complete combustion, maximum power and mileage, freedom from excessive carbon accumulation and from heavy and offensive exhaust odors.

The Quality Gasoline

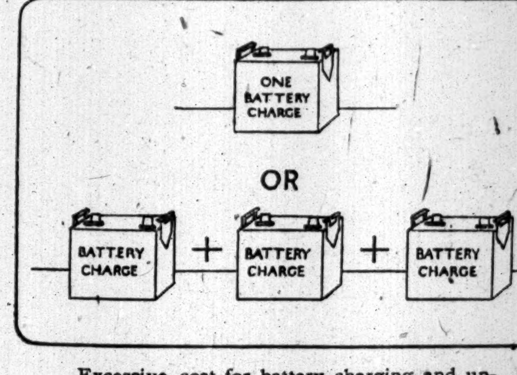
Our manufacturing plants are operated under the most skillful and critical supervision. Back of the materials, equipment and methods of refining there are fifty years of practical experience and improvement.

Reliable, Obliging Dealers

Socony dealers constitute the last link in the great chain of Socony service. They are always dependable, competent and obliging—glad to render the little courtesies that make motor service complete. Look for the red, white and blue Socony sign.

STANDARD OIL CO. OF NEW YORK



Excessive cost for battery charging and upkeep is not always due to grounds and short circuits. Gasoline that fails to vaporize freely at low temperature may easily be a principal cause. With Socony Motor Gasoline in the tank you can be sure of minimum battery strain—quick pick-up even when the motor is cold.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Partly because of the impending double holiday, but partly also because the initiative to financial activity had apparently reached the low point of the month, yesterday's stock market drifted aimlessly. Movement of prices was irregular, unimportant and unmistakably the result of minor professional activities. So far as any actual tendency was shown, railway shares were inclined to weakness and industrial shares to strength, but few of the movements were sustained up to the closing.

In the money market there was no change; the 7 per cent. rate on call loans continuing all day, with a lower rate on occasional loans reported outside the Stock Exchange. At London, on the other hand, while day-to-day money lost its advance of yesterday, discounts for short periods rose to 6¾ per cent., which is the high rate that prevailed during the December settlements, and compares with 5⅞ in the first week of January. Sterling exchange advanced in the early trading yesterday and Continental rates strengthened with it, but the market was not active and the changes were unimportant.

The weekly statement of the Associated Banks, published after the close of business, was interesting chiefly because of the $72,900,000 reduction of loans, which is the largest since the second week of January. The result, notwithstanding $1,283,000 reduction in reserve credits at the Federal Bank, was a substantial gain in surplus. But the private bank returns have been of little importance lately for throwing light on the general money situation. The New York Federal Reserve Bank's weekly showing, which tells the actual story of any change in the position, will be given out this afternoon. The reduction in member banks' reserve deposits will at least help toward a stronger showing.

The week-end reviews of the mercantile agencies describe the business situation as so marked by cross-currents and contradictory movements that a general characterization is impossible. This is what always happens when the momentum of industrial readjustment has spent its force. Exactly a year ago, although average prices of commodities were at the high point of the period, weekly reports of the commercial agencies indicated the same variation of trend as between different industries. The only unmistakable thing was the fact that the uniform upward tendency, which had prevailed in all markets during the preceding months, no longer existed. Some commodities, such as steel, iron and cotton, were still advancing while leather and textile goods were falling, but it was soon evident that the situation regarding prices had entered a new phase.

This month's irregular trend, as contrasted with the uniform downward movement of prices in December and during most of January, probably indicates a similar condition as regards the general movement of prices. It does not follow that a decided reversal of the recent decline is at hand; not even the stock market has reflected any such expectation. But the season's partial paralysis of trade has resulted in very great measure from the mere fact of rapidly changing values, and stability of prices, even at a lower level and even for a season only, would be a matter of importance to all the markets.

MONEY.

Call money loaned at 7 per cent. on the Stock Exchange all day. In the "outside market" 6 per cent. was the quoted rate. The range for the week for demand funds was a high of 8 per cent. on Monday and Tuesday, with a low of 7 per cent. on the latter day, this 7 per cent. rate then ruling for the rest of the week. In time money, mixed collateral, the market opened 6½@7 per cent., which ruled until Thursday, when the rate was advanced to 7 per cent. On all industrials the range was ½ of 1 per cent. higher. The market for fixed period funds ruled quiet all week. With the easing in call funds there was an accompanying decline in rates on prime eligible acceptances, bills of this character closing 6⅛@6 per cent., ⅛ of 1 per cent. under the high of the week. Commercial paper, choice names, however, ruled 7½@7¾ per cent. for the best part of the week.

According to the records of the Insurance Department of the Pennsylvania System, just compiled for last year, 223 fires were extinguished by fire brigades organized among employes and the fire fighting apparatus installed in the company's buildings and properties. The loss caused by the fires was only $28,726, while the efforts of the employe brigades in extinguishing them probably saved property with an insurance valuation of about $23,000,000.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

There was a minimum of activity in yesterday's foreign exchange market, but, notwithstanding the dullness, most of the European rates were notably strong, sterling advancing to a parity with Tuesday's high, while French francs, Italian and most of the other Continental rates moved forward to the best prices recorded during the week. German marks were in fairly good demand and rose 3½ points on the day.

The Scandinavians, which, in company with the rest of the market, were considerably less acttive than on some other recent days, also moved up, all of them continuing the recovery which started on Wednesday. Other exchanges were dull. The Far Easterns were changed only nominally, while the South Americans were slightly lower than on the preceding day.

HAVANA RAIL CREDIT HERE.

$6,000,000 Gold Certificates Offered at 99 and Interest.

An issue of $6,000,000 in United Railways of Havana fifteen-year 7½ per cent. equipment trust gold certificates is being offered by Dillon, Read & Co. at 99 and interest.

This financing is another indication of the shifting of financial burdens from London to New York, for the United Railways of Havana is owned by British interests and all financing has been done in the London market. The certificates will be issued under the Philadelphia plan and the equipment trust will follow the same general rule as the equipment trusts created by the Canadian National Railways and Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, whose equipment issues were sold by the same bankers. This plan will provide that the company must purchase and retire $200,000 certificates each six months if available in the market at or below 103, for the first ten years and thereafter at or below 102½ until maturity. To the extent that certificates are not so obtainable the company may pay cash to the trustee to be invested in United States Government securities maturing not later than the maturity of the issue.

The certificates will be issued for approximately only 55 per cent. of the cost of the equipment, all of which was purchased in the United States.

Dividend Changes Announced.

Several dividend changes were announced yesterday. Directors of the Superior Oil Company passed the regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents per share, while the Directors of the Peerless Truck and Motor Car Company reduced the annual dividend from a rate of $3 per year to $2. Action on the Savannah Sugar Refining Company preferred dividend was postponed for thirty days, according to an announcement by the Directors.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Although yesterday's stock market was of the sort which is generally always witnessed previous to a holiday, especially a double holiday, it was at the same time no different from the markets witnessed throughout the week. Trading was again on a very much reduced scale, and mostly of professional origin. There were fairly sharp advances in some specialties during the early dealings, but in most instances the gains were canceled later. The majority of the net changes were lower, but those stocks which ended the day with a decline were only fractionally lower, while those which advanced in numerous cases registered gains of more than a point.

No Immediate Change Looked For.

In speculative quarters no immediate change from current conditions is expected in the stock market, the opinion being that the current movement of prices and prevailing stagnation are typical of this period of the year and that it is not unlikely that no change will be witnessed until later in the month. In the meantime the movement of prices will be governed mainly by the professional element, depending upon technical conditions. It is possible, however, that some new developments may bring about either an advance or a decline in prices, but in view of the belief that the market appears to be fairly well liquidated, no sharp reaction is looked for. On the other hand, it is possible that the market will soon begin to discount developments at Washington in view of the change in the Administration next month. Advices received indicate that some favorable news can be expected soon of the constructive measures which the new régime will propose as affecting the nation's problems, both financial and economic.

A Dormant Stock.

A transaction on the New York Stock Exchange which attracted attention yesterday was the sale of 100 shares of Hackensack Water Company preferred stock which changed hands at $25 per share. This transaction, it was stated, was the first to appear on the tape in the twenty-eight years since the stock was first listed. Another inactive stock which changed hands yesterday was Atlantic Refining, ten shares of which changed hands at 975, a gain of 40 points over the last previous sale.

More Contraction.

The Clearing House statement, published last night instead of today because of the holiday, showed further contraction in both loans and deposits. The former were down $72,943,000 on the week while the latter were down only $1,570,000. Since the end of last year loans have contracted $253,085,000 and demand deposits $216,488,000, while from the peak of last Fall, reached on Oct. 16, the loan contraction has been $474,499,000, and that of demand deposits has amounted to $455,476,000.

Greater Savings.

Some of the savings bank managers say that there has recently been a notable increase in savings bank deposits and attribute this to the fact that a great many persons who do not have checking accounts and who, for the last two or three years, have become accustomed to carrying around with them large sums in currency, have become alarmed over the "crime wave" and are now putting their money in a safe place before some bandit can get it. The increase of depositors has been especially notable among some of the foreign classes.

Professionals Attack Reading.

Following the publication of what purported to be the Reading plan for segregation of properties yesterday the professional element sold Reading shares freely, the movement receiving added impetus from those who follow any active issues regardless of their movement. Officially there was no comment either confirming or denying the supposed plan, Directors and officers of the company maintaining the discreet silence they have kept since the dissolution decree was handed down. That part of the rumor stating that protective committees for the various groups of security holders had been talked over was not considered as surprising, although it was denied that any definite action had been taken. It was also said that the plan if completed now might undergo radical change on the eve of its presentation and that any outlines offered before it is filed with the court will necessarily be premature.

Ready for C., B. & Q. Hearing.

There was a conference between Louis W. Hill, Chairman of the Great Northern; Ralph Budd, President, and bankers yesterday, and while no formal announcement was made it was assumed that preparations were being completed for the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy hearing before the full Interstate Commerce Commission in Washington on Monday. There has been considerable speculation as to how the Burlington joint 4s which mature next July will be taken care of by Great Northern and Northern Pacific even though the plan before the commission will provide both companies with sufficient funds to be well started in that direction.

Pennsylvania Earnings Improve.

The earnings statement of the Pennsylvania Railroad as submitted to the Interstate Commerce Commission for December shows marked improvement over the corresponding period in the preceding year. December gross was $52,596,067, which was more than $10,000,000 better than in December, 1919, and while there was an increase in operating and other expenses from $44,863,112 to $52,903,589, net operating deficit for the month was only $307,522, as compared with $3,478,165 in the preceding December. This would indicate that the company has benefited materially as the result of the increased rates which went into effect last September. The figures for the full twelve months of the year, on the other hand, could not be considered as promising, for they showed a net operating deficit of $48,229,428, as compared with income in the preceding year of $13,908,663. This poor showing was due, among other things, to the fact that the company had to pay increased wages to its employes from May 1 until Sept. 1 without enjoying the offset of increased rates. In addition, January and February returns were taken from Federal accounts, so that the year's showing is not a true reflection of the earning power of the company now that the new rates are in effect.

SYNDICATE TO AID COFFEE IMPORTERS

Bankers Organize to Liquidate Debts of Five Firms Engaged in Colombian Trade.

A banking syndicate has been formed here to aid in liquidation of the indebtedness of five commission houses engaged in the Colombian coffee trade which were forced to suspend payment because of the financial crisis in Colombia last year.

The bankers comprising this syndicate are the Equitable Trust Company of New York, the Chemical National Bank, the National Park Bank, the Battery Park National Bank, Huth & Co., the Bankers Trust Company, the Bank of New York, the Commercial Bank of Spanish America, William Schall & Co., and Schultz & Ruckgaber.

The New York merchants to be aided by the plan are Vasquez Correas & Co., Inc., placed in the hands of Lawrence Berenson and Justus Ruperti, receivers, on Oct. 20, 1920; Heilbron, Wolff & Co., Inc., who filed a voluntary petition of bankruptcy on Oct. 25, 1920; Alejandro Angel & Co., Inc., de Lima, Correa & Cortissoz, Inc., and the Antioquia Commercial Corporation. The latter three corporations were placed in the hands of committees representing their creditors under agreements to refrain from suit for specified periods to enable the corporations involved to collect their accounts receivable in Colombia.

In a statement issued in behalf of the syndicate managers it was said:

"It is the hope of the syndicate managers that the result of the operation of the syndicate will be to lessen the probability of the diversion of coffee from the New York houses in difficulties or from the holders of the dishonored paper of these houses. Any holder of the dishonored paper of any one of these corporations who is not already a member of the syndicate will be received by the managers as a syndicate subscriber in order that he may obtain the benefits from the operation of the plan."

The indebtedness involved in the transactions is said to be about $5,000,000, and it is planned to liquidate this by diverting the excess receipts from coffee marketed for the account of Colombian coffee growers who are indebted to the New York houses now in difficulties.

EDISON CO.'S 1920 PROFITS.

Brooklyn Business Exceeds Previous Years—$9.75 a Share Earned.

The report of the Brooklyn Edison Company for last year shows a surplus, after charges and taxes, amounting to $1,662,617. This is equal to $9.57 a share earned on the $17,355,000 capital stock, and compares with $10.43 a share earned on the $17,306,300 outstanding stock. Gross revenue for the year was $13,308,050, as compared with $10,850,114 and expenses, taxes and like were $10,225,919, as compared with $7,499,102 in 1919. The report to shareholders said in part:

"The new business obtained in 1920 exceeds that of any previous year of the company's existence. New 'power contracts' were secured for an aggregate of 92,000 horse power. Included also was a contract for the supply of 2,000 kilowatts of 'break-down service' to another public utility corporation. Many customers, secured prior to this year, materially increased their installations and thereby their demand for additional electricity.

"These developments, together with the fact that many large industrial concerns found it more economical and advantageous to take our service rather than operate their own plants, indicate that the rates charged by our company are fair and reasonable and the service efficient and reliable."

TYPEWRITER SALES DROP.

The statement of carnings of the Underwood Typewriter Company for the year ended Dec. 31, 1920, as made public yesterday, shows that net profits amounted to $2,246,238, which, after deductions for Federal taxes and other charges, amounted to $21.92 per share on the $9,000,000 outstanding capital stock. In the previous year the stock earned $25.85 per share.

The detailed statement shows that total earnings from sales amounted to $3,141,000, as against $4,121,000 in 1919. The amount set aside for depreciation was virtually the same as the year before, but the amount paid to employes for bonuses was considerably less, due to the smaller profits and changing conditions. The amount set aside for Federal taxes was also smaller, being only $665,000, as compared with $1,250,000 the year before.

PRICE CUTS IN DRY GOODS.

CHICAGO, Feb. 11.—In their weekly review of the wholesale dry goods trade today, Marshall Field & Co., say:

"Current wholesale distribution of dry goods compares very favorably, in bulk and yardage, with the corresponding week of last year, although, owing to the present lower level of prices, it represents a smaller volume of sales.

"Orders from salesmen on the road for merchandise for immediate delivery are substantially the same in volume as for the same period of 1920. There were many more customers in the house than during this period last year. Most of them are purchasing seasonable merchandise at this time, in anticipation of the Easter trade.

$24.08 ON TANK CAR STOCK.

Union Company Reports Its 1920 Net as $3,393,000.

The Union Tank Car Company's net for 1920 was $3,393,000, after reserves for depreciation and Federal taxes. This amount after payment of preferred dividends was equal to $24.08 per share on the common stock, as compared with $30.15 per share earned in 1919, when the surplus earnings amounted to $3,618,000. The amount of common stock outstanding was $12,000,000 in both years.

The amount set aside for depreciation and amortization last year was $2,545,438, while tax deductions amounted to $1,286,400 for the 1919 Federal tax paid out of last year's earnings. Last year's taxes payable in 1921 will be deducted from this year's earnings.

COMMODITY PRICES BREAK.

Butter and Eggs Down, Hogs Lower Than in Five Years.

The commodity price movement this week is less one-sided than in the first week of February, but the trend is still downward, as shown by the further lowering of the weekly food index, due largely to breaks in butter and eggs and by the fact that one-fourth of all products moved lower. Sheep are at the lowest price for nine years, hogs for five years and cattle for four years.

This week's food index number, based on the prices per pound of thirty-one articles used for food, is $3.06, which compares with $3.18 last week and $5.03 for the week ending Feb. 12, 1920. This week's number shows a loss of 3.7 per cent. from last week and of 39.1 per cent. from the like week of last year.

ASSERTS RUSSIA HAS NOTHING TO EXPORT

State Department Expert Says Soviet Has Made It an Economic Vacuum.

OUTLINES THE DEVASTATION

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—The futility of trying to develop trade with Russia under the Soviet régime was urged before the House Committee on Foreign Affairs today in testimony given by A. E. Kliefoth, regional economist on Russia in the office of the Foreign Trade Adviser of the State Department.

The testimony given by the State Department's expert marked the beginning of an attempt on the part of members of the House committee to ascertain the facts relative to the Russian trade situation. The committee will call a number of witnesses and has already summoned Washington D. Vanderlip of California, who recently returned from Russia with a plan for dealing with Russia in terms running into billions.

Mr. Kliefoth told the committee that Russia represents "a gigantic economic vacuum, with no prospects of alleviation under the present political and economic conditions." He said that, while trade with Russia is obviously highly desirable for the United States as well as for the rest of the world, "at the present time it cannot be established in any appreciable degree because the industries and consequent purchasing power of the Russian people have collapsed."

No Restriction on Trade.

He declared that the United States Government at present is imposing no restrictions on trade and communication with Russia except in the case of export to Russia of materials susceptible of immediate use for war purposes, and that no trade has developed since this country removed its restrictions.

"It can be stated categorically," said Mr. Kliefoth, "that, inasmuch as individual trading is considered criminal, all private individuals caught trading are brought before the extraordinary commission and are liable to execution, that all private goods are considered contraband and that all industries have been nationalized and largely ruined. There is at present no positive business in Russia.

"The communistic management has reduced the population to a state of poverty and inanition.

"With reference to the amounts of commodities now on hand and being produced in Russia, it is evident that after six years of war, during which normal industries ceased and all accumulated stocks were consumed, followed by three years of total collapse of industry under the present authorities of Russia, there are now no commodities on hand for export which Russia could economically spare or which are sufficient in amount to effect any trade condition between the United States and Russia.

"To illustrate: Grain, which was the principal commodity of export, was largely produced on the large estates, which have now been divided, the implements destroyed and the cattle consumed. There is now famine not only in the cities, but in the villages. The peasants are producing the minimum supply of grain for their own immediate needs, as there is no economic reason why they should produce surplus stocks.

No Timber for Export.

"The second commodity for export is timber and forest stocks. Production of timber is contingent upon two factors—1, labor, and 2, transportation. Labor in turn is dependent upon foodstuffs, but the famine in the timber forest regions, where foodstuffs cannot be produced, is greater than in other parts of Russia. Timber, moreover, is more bulky for transport than grain and, inasmuch as grain is not available, or cannot obtain means of transportation if available, we cannot expect exports of timber until after the export of grain is restored. Notwithstanding Russia's enormous forests and extensive beds of peat, the population suffers for want of fuel.

"The third article of importance as an export is hides and skins. It is well known that the supply of cattle was largely consumed as food during the war period. The peasant, moreover, is incapable of conserving the skins, and the small stocks accumulated here and there have decayed.

"Flax, which is the next in importance, was actively cultivated during the war and extensively exported. This business was mainly controlled by the co-operatives, which succeeded in reaching the most distant sources of supply, and exported the available stocks.

"Furs, ranking next in importance, were similarly exported by the co-operatives during the war. However, at the commencement of the civil war, the trappers possessing firearms were persecuted. This has crippled the fur industry almost completely.

"The last article of importance is platinum. During the war the Allies thoroughly combed Russia for every scrap of platinum, and no stocks are now known to exist. The platinum mining industry is a most intricate and delicate process, which under the catastrophic spoliation of industry in Russia is now almost non-existent.

Says Devastation Is Terrific.

"The devastation of industry in Russia is so terrific, the economic poverty of the country is so complete, the people are so hungry and the demand for commodities so great, that at present Russia represents a gigantic economic vacuum, with no prospects of alleviation under present political and economic conditions.

"Trade with Russia is obviously highly desirable for the United States as well as for the rest of the world, but at the present time it cannot be established in any appreciable degree because the industries and consequent purchasing power of the Russian people have collapsed.

"The greatness of a future Russian trade is undisputed and the share obtainable by the United States, from a selfish commercial point of view, depends much upon our future relations with the future Russian Government. Our potentially favorable position can be impaired by an unwise relation with the present authorities. In gratitude for America's friendly attitude toward a future national Government, it is to be expected that our opportunities will be unparalleled. The upbuilding of the industries of Russia will not only be a great humanitarian work, but will render a patriotic service to the United States. To foreign investors, Russia will be found a very attractive field. The vast opportunities there will especially grip the imagination of Americans conversant with the development of our own great West; for the physical geography of many parts of Russia and Siberia bears a striking resemblance to that of Western America.

"The problems presented in the industrial development of Russia, the construction of systems of transportation, the opening up of mines, the erection of grain elevators, the introduction of improved methods of agriculture, of a system of refrigeration to move the perishable products, all these and other complementary problems to be solved in the development of the great natural resources of Russia will not be new to the American captain of industry.

"The Government of the United States at present imposes no restrictions on trade and communication with Russia except in the case of the export to Russia of materials susceptible of immediate use for war purposes, including locomotives, railway material, rolling stock, motor cars and their component parts. When the exportation to Russia of such restricted commodities is intended it is necessary to obtain special export licenses from the War Trade Board section of the Department of State, and each application for such a special permit will be considered on its own merits.

"There are no legal restrictions on the physical importation of gold into the United States, although no assurances can be given that Russian gold, and in particular Bolshevist gold, could be disposed of in the United States if imported to the Federal Reserve Board, the Mint or otherwise. There are no restrictions on imports from Russia.

"By the Soviet decree of March 20, 1919, the Consumers' Co-operative Societies and their unions, including the All-Russian Central Union of Consumers' Societies, were converted from a free, independent co-operative organization with a private status into a compulsory State institution and forming a part of the machinery of the Soviet authority in Russia. All foreign trade in Russia is an absolute monopoly of the Soviet authorities."

TRADE MARKS TIME, ORDERS STILL SMALL

Although there has been little change in general trade conditions during the last week, reports show that the volume of business continues in fair volume. Of the important branches it is said that the apparel trade is doing the best of any, with silks and cottons taking the lead. This no doubt is a result of the showing of new Spring fabrics, which are the chief centre of interest. There is almost no further buying.

In the basic industries such as iron, steel, coal and building materials, stagnation continues and prices are inclined to sag. In the copper metal market there is a stronger tone as a result of the pooling operations to hold copper for export. There has been neither a decrease or an increase of unemployment, and distress is limited by the mild weather. Crude oil prices continue their downward swing, but on the whole prices are more stable than in the last eight months.

"Cross currents and irregularity feature the general commercial and industrial situation, and broad general characterization is difficult—indeed, well-nigh impossible," says Bradstreet's. "For over a month past, the so-called apparel trades turn in the best reports, whereas the iron, steel, coal and lumber and other lines of building supplies offer the least satisfactory advices. Of the former, it may be said that while markedly favorable changes or gains are not shown as compared with recent weeks, few backward steps are visible, and the contrast with the reports made two or three months ago is much in favor of current distribution.

"General distributive trade is, perhaps better, and while small-and-often buying rules, there is more life and hope in trade and industries catering to these lines. Especially is cotton manufacturing more active than it was two months ago, and kindred and related trades, such as mill supplies, are more optimistic. Wool buying is nearer normal than for months past."

Dun's Review says: "The irregularities which still characterize the business situation are a natural accompaniment of the process of economic readjustment. With conflicting forces in operation, commercial revival has not come in all quarters simultaneously, and a definite turning point is yet to be reached in some leading trades and industries."

TO IGNORE TAX DECISION.

Officials Will Continue to Levy on Capital Sales Profits.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—Collection of income taxes on profits realized from the sale of capital assets will continue, Internal Revenue Commissioner Williams announced today, until the constitutionality of that provision of the law has been determined by the Supreme Court, notwithstadning the recent decision to the contrary by a Connecticut court in what was known as the Brewster case.

"The same question," the Commissioner declared, "is involved in the Eldorado and Ryerson cases, which were argued in the Supreme Court some weeks ago. A decision in these cases undoubtedly will settle the general question. In view of the severe penalties provided by law for false or fraudulent income tax returns, taxpayers are warned not to omit from their returns for the year 1920 such gains and profits."

RECEIVERS NAMED FOR HANNEVIG & CO.

Shipping Firm Has Debts of $8,000,000 and $500,000 in Assets.

HAS CLAIM FOR $14,000,000

Government Award of $7,000,000 for Pusey & Jones Item Refused and Suit Begun.

An involuntary petition in bankruptcy was filed in the Federal Court yesterday against Hannevig & Co., a banking, foreign exchange and shipping concern with offices at 139 Broadway, and Christoffer Hannevig, individually. The liabilities were said to amount to $8,000,000 and the free assets to about $500,000.

The appointment of receivers was agreed to by the alleged bankrupt, and the proceeding, it was explained, was due largely to the desire to conserve the assets. Among these is a claim against the United States Shipping Board for $14,000,000 by the Pusey & Jones Company, a subsidiary of Hannevig & Co.

The petitioning creditors are Osler Wade, as liquidator of the Dominion Shipbuilding and Repair Company, Ltd., who claims $887,105; A. S. Reid, assignee of George F. Pawling, a judgment creditor, $7,000, and the Equitable Trust Company, $250,000 due on a note indorsed by Mr. Hannevig.

According to the papers the large amount due the Dominion Company arises out of a contract made in 1919 for the purchase of two vessels on which is still due amounts aggregating $807,548, that there is also due the Dominion Company $67,104 for disbursements and about $12,462 which it is said the company had on deposit with Hennevig & Co.

It is stated that the alleged bankrupt has assets and liabilities in Norway and that a receivership is necessary to prevent the dissipation of assets of Hannevig & Co. as well as those of the Pusey & Jones Company which is said to be indebted to the Baltimore Drydock Company for $750,000, which is secured, it was stated, by the capital stock of the former company.

The petition filed by Osler Wade asked for the appointment of receivers and Federal Judge Knox appointed Henry A. [illegible]ise and Thomas P. Hanagan to take temporary charge of the assets. It was announced that the receivers had retained as their counsel Saul S. Myers and James N. Rosenberg of the law firm of Rosenberg, Ball & Marvin.

A statement by Mr. Myers was to the effect that the cause of the trouble in which Hannevig & Co. found themselves was the delay in collecting just compensation from the United States Shipping Board for the Pusey & Jones Co.

Last night the receivers issued a statement saying that the Shipping Board had made an award of $7,100,000 to the Pusey & Jones Company for vessels taken over during the war and that it had been refused. A suit has been instituted in the District of Columbia for the full amount claimed, $14,000,000, it was said, and that Charles E. Hughes, counsel for the company, had been instructed to have the suit tried as speedily as possible.

"I consented to the bankruptcy proceedings and to the appointment of receivers because I wanted to fully protect my American creditors.

"The United States Shipping Board has been prejudiced against me personally for years and has wilfully and deliberately held up claims of the Pusey & Jones Coompany, which I own and control. I have personally financed the Pusey & Jones Company. I put in $6,000,000 of my own money. The plants of this company at Gloucester, N. J., and Wilmington, Del., cost over $12,000,000.

"During the war and since this company delivered to the Government of the United States thirty-four steel cargo vessels. Some of these were the best cargo vessels turned out by any shipyard in the United States during the war period.

"The Pusey & Jones Company holds the record for delivering to the Government cargo vessels at the lowest cost per ton of any yard in the United States.

"The Shipping Board held up the claims of the Pusey & Jones Company for three years, and finally awarded that company $7,100,000, and then unlawfully deducted $3,400,000. The Pusey & Jones Company has sued the Shipping Board in the Court of Claims for $14,000,000, and has brought suit in the District of Columbia to restrain the Shipping Board from carrying out is award.

"As soon as the Shipping Board makes a proper settlement all my creditors will be paid in full."

Bankers Here Admit Negotiations, but Not for Railways.

SANTIAGO, Chile, Feb. 11.—The Ministry of Finance announced today that it had contracted a loan of $24,500,000 through the Guaranty Trust Company of New York on behalf of the Chilean State Railways. The negotiations are said to have been completed Thursday through the Bank of Chile.

No loan to the Chilean State Railways is being negotiated by the Guaranty Trust Company nor is there such a loan under consideration by any bankers in this city, so far as can be learned. The so-called South American group of local bankers, headed by J. P. Morgan & Co. and including the Guaranty Trust Company, is known to be negotiating with the Chilean Government for the flotation here of a loan, and it is expected that formal announcement will be made early next week, probably on Monday afternoon.

The loan to the Chilean Government, if it is consummated, it expected to be for approximately $24,000,000. The Chilean Government recently obtained legislation authorizing a loan of £5,000,000, and this, translated at parity, would amount to substantially $24,000,000, in round figures, for the American market.

If the Chilean Government flotation is a success it is believed that the Argentine Government and Brazil, in that order, will receive large loans here in the near future.

EMPIRE OIL RECEIVERS.

May Be Necessary to Reorganize Concern to Supply Protective Funds.

In connection with the receivership at Richmond, Va., for the Empire Transportation and Oil Corporation, operating in Mexico, Henry L. Doherty & Co. state that the application for receiver was made by the Cities Fuel and Power Company, a subsidiary of Cities Service Company, in order to protect moneys advanced to the Empire Transportation and Oil Corporation, which is not a subsidiary of Cities Service Company.

Holton H. Scott, General Manager of the Doherty Operating Company, in charge of the operation of all Cities Service Company subsidiaries, was appointed receiver by the Federal Court with E. L. Bemiss, President of the Richmond Trust Company, as joint receiver. Cities Fuel and Power Company is the only creditor of the Empire Transportation and Oil Corporation, and it may be necessary to reorganize the latter to supply funds for the protection and development of the properties.

NOVEMBER PHONE FIGURES.

Major Companies Report Increase in Operating Revenue and Expense.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—The operating income of sixty-five of the major telephone companies of the country during last November was $6,828,297, as compared with $6,469,111 in November, 1919, according to statistics announced today by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Operating revenues last November were $42,082,467 as compared with $36,728,941 during the same month of 1919. Operating expenses totaled $32,713,456, as compared with $27,729,735 during November, 1919.

The taxes of the companies were virtually the same last November as in November, 1919.

Unless Demand Increases Mid-Continent Product Must Be Stored or Cost Lowered.

The downward swing in crude oil prices continues at a rapid pace, and it appears that the movement is gaining momentum as it progresses. The most important cut in prices announced yesterday was a reduction of 50 cents a barrel in price of Pennsylvania crude, which is quoted at $4.25. This compares with $6.10, reached at the peak of crude oil prices last year. It is down to within 25 cents a barrel of the level quoted at the beginning of 1919, and in the opinion of some producers it is expected to reach or go below that level, which was $4.

Other important reductions in crude oil prices yesterday were in Cabell, quoted at $2.96; Somerset light, at $2.50; Somerset at $2.25, and Ragland $1.25, these prices representing reductions of from 25 to 50 cents a barrel. Gulf Coast crude oil was reduced, the new price being $1.25, a reduction of 25 cents a barrel. This grade includes oil produced in the fields of South Texas and Louisiana.

Earlier in the week when it was reported that one of the leading independents had reduced the price of Mid-Continent crude 25 cents to $1.75 a barrel it was believed in some quarters that the downward movement had about spent its force, as that price was only a few cents above the figure quoted in the early part of 1917.

It was said that further reductions in the price of Mid-Continent crude may be unlikely, but so far as other grades were concerned additional reductions were imminent, as prices quoted were far above normal levels. But it was pointed out that although Mid-Continent prices were down to the level of the early part of 1917, further reductions are not out of the question. The greater part of the country's output comes from that field, and if the demand continues at the present level, most of that section's output must be run into storage, increasing the supply.

Numerous oil men still are of the opinion that the downward movement of prices is only temporary, and that before long they will begin to rebound. Especially is this expected in the Spring, when the demand for all grades of oil expands.

	Present Price.	High, 1920.	Jan. 1, 1920.	Jan. 1, 1917.
Pennsylvania	$4.25	$6.10	$5.00	$2.95
Corning	3.00	4.25	3.50	2.30
Cabell	2.96	4.46	3.42	2.10
Somerset, light	2.50	4.50	3.25	2.05
Ragland	1.25	2.60	1.75	.95
Lima	2.73	3.73	2.98	1.63
Illinois	2.77	3.77	3.02	1.67
Midcontinent	1.75	3.50	2.75	1.69
Healdton	1.25	2.75	2.00	.80
Gulf Coast	1.25	3.00	1.50	.98
Canada	3.13	4.13	3.38	2.08

In the above table it will be noted that although current prices are down from $1 to $1.85 a barrel from the peak of last year, they are still far above the prices quoted at the beginning of 1917.

COTTON LIST IS UP.

Liverpool's Rally Aids Market—Greatest Fluctuation Covers Only 25 Points.

The cotton market was extremely dull yesterday, and price movements were held within the narrowest of ranges. The trading was typical of the usual pre-holiday session, and after a decline of 3 to 12 points in the forenoon there was a rally of 8 to 20 points in the afternoon. At the close prices were advanced 3 to 13 points net. As evidence of the extreme narrowness of the market, it may be noted that the option which showed the greatest fluctuation, October, covered only 25 points from the early low to the late high.

The opening was dull and prices were inclined to be heavy. Liverpool sent in the usual budget of unfavorable news, and first prices there were down 6 to 11 points. This caused some very limited selling here for the first hour or so, but when Liverpool rallied later and closed at net gains of 2 to 22 points our market turned firmer and recovered all of its forenoon losses.

Trade reports from abroad were as poor as usual. Manchester still is suffering from depression, and the goods market there is very slow, with buyers holding off and bidding only for their merest requirements, and then only at prices below the offerings.

The domestic trade, on the contrary, appears to be improving, slowly but steadily, and the week-end reports were quite encouraging, or would have been if other factors were not so dismal.

Markets in the South were dull and firm. New Orleans was firm late for futures, and virtually all of the Southern spot markets were quiet and steady.

Yesterday's quotations follow:

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.	Prev. Day.
March	13.50	13.63	13.43	13.56	13.52

Dec.	14.85	15.05	14.82	14.98	14.85

Southern spot markets were: Galveston 13.25c, New Orleans 13c, Savannah 14c, Augusta 13c, Memphis 14c, Houston 12.80c, Little Rock 13.75c, all unchanged.

Futures opened quiet 6 to 11 points down and closed steady, 2 to 22 points up on the day. Prices: March 8.68d, May 8.91d, July 9.11d, Sept. 9.22d. WHEAT AT CHICAGO WEAKER AND LOWER

Report That Germany Is Trying to Renege and Larger Offerings Affect Market.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Feb. 11.—Evening up for double holiday, combined with reports that Germany was trying to cancel purchases of wheat and a material increase in offering from the farms in the Southwest, made a weaker and lower market, the finish being at net losses of 1½ to 1¾ cents. The general run of news was much more bearish than of late, and sentiment on the whole was favorable to a lower range, but the market failed to show the weakness expected, as good support was given on the decline, with some of the early sellers covering at the last.

Argentine wheat was reported offered at $1.80, c. i. f. New York, or 7 cents under what No. 2 hard could be laid down for on domestic billing from Chicago, after allowing 5 cents for unloading charges. Foreign countries, according to cables, offered wheat to Europe at anywhere from 10 to 15 cents under domestic via the Gulf, and aside from an inquiry for 60,000 barrels flour from Greece, export business was not in evidence in this country.

Bids of $1.50 at country loading points in Kansas brought out grain in large quantities, and the highest bidder over night was forced to withdraw from the market as a buyer. Bids, track the Gulf, were on the basis of 18 cents over March for thirty-day shipment, an advance of 3 cents in two days, making the price practically the same as the nominal quotation on April export, f. o. b., and indicating that exporters were still short the cash. Should Germany cancel any material amount of wheat, it is generally expected that there would be a great deal of pressure on futures.

The Pillsbury Mills at Minneapolis have closed down until Monday, as have the Washburn-Crosby. The number that will reopen depends on the orders received. The leading mills are feeling acutely the competition with the small country mills, which are generally reported as doing a good business on account of the relatively low price at which they can offer their product.

Estimates made as to the consumption for this season generally show smaller usage of floor, but the fact that time is based almost entirely on the limited capacity of the larger mills, as compared with last year, is regarded as greatly offset by the larger output of the 100 to 200 barrel country mills. Practically all of the wheat arriving at Duluth is said to be Canadian, and around 35 per cent. of the arrivals at Minneapolis are from that country. Duluth is also shipping Canadian to Minneapolis, so that there is more or less duplication in the receipts.

Coarse grains acted rather firm, and closed with corn ⅛ cent higher to ⅛ lower and oats ⅛ to ¼ cent lower. Chicago handlers sold 450,000 bushels of corn to exporters at 11@11½ cents over May, track Baltimore, an advance of around 1½ cents of late. Country offerings are limited.

Primary arrivals for five days aggregated 4,412,000 bushels wheat, compared with 4,753,000 bushels for the same period last week and 3,298,000 bushels last year. Shipments were 3,674,000 bushels; last week, 3,850,000; last year, 3,097,000.

Corn receipts of 4,936,000 bushels compared with 6,728,000 last week and 5,187,000 last year. Shipments were 2,010,000; last week, 2,730,000; last year, 2,889,000.

RETAILERS PROTEST PROFITEER CHARGES

PUBLIC CONFIDENCE NEEDED

"They Must Realize That Every One Made Profits When We Did," Says A. C. Filene.

Joshua W. Alexander, Secretary of Commerce, who was quoted in yesterday afternoon's papers as having said "The profiteering retailer is the only factor standing between the public and low prices," was severely taken to task by Simon P. Halle, President of the National Retail Dry Goods Association, at yesterday afternoon's session of the tenth annual convention of the retailers at the Hotel Pennsylvania. Mr. Halle, President of Halle Brothers, Cleveland, said:

"I am surprised that a man holding one of the most responsible positions in the Federal Government should give utterance to such ill-advised statements, when the facts and figures at his command refute them. Retail prices always follow the trend of wholesale prices, but they react less violently. During the period of rising prices the retail price was from 10 to 20 per cent. lower than the wholesale. They started to climb after the wholesale prices. They never went as high, and even now are about on a parity."

A. L. Filene, Treasurer and General Manager of Filene's Sons Company, Boston, asserted that had the retailers appreciated the importance of educating the public several years ago, they would not now be confronted with questions which the public is demanding that they answer.

"Nobody ever accused a 5 and 10 cent store of profiteering," continued Mr. Filene, "and yet, isn't it a fact that they make as good profits as any other retailers? Selling simply means getting the confidence of the public. If I had been accused as a retailer by some good-natured manufacturer or producer of raw material of profiteering, I think I should have said, 'Yes, during the war we made large profits, but while the retailer made large profits, wasn't it a time in which everybody did?' If I had said that to the public they would have answered, 'There fellows are honest.'"

"Making Ourselves Less Dependent on the Newspapers" was discussed by Andrew Connolly, publicity director of the Joseph Horne Company, Pittsburgh, who said in the beginning that he was convinced that newspaper advertising was essential, but a virtue might be carried to excess, a point he believed was being reached in department store advertising.

"Advertising rates have been low, extremely low in the past," he said, "and as a result advertising has been used carelessly. The newspaper publishers have been surveying the situation, and, as they find the merchant growing more and more dependent upon their wares, have jacked up their prices. The merchants must get together on this thing. If the merchants cannot live without the newspapers, neither can the newspapers live without the merchants."

The elimination of the special sale was suggested by the speaker as one means by which the merchants could cut their advertising. He continued:

"'The public wants these sales,' says somebody. Yes, but the hopeless thing about this sort of public education is that the bargains must be ever bigger, to stimulate action, and when the price reductions get ridiculously low the merchant, in desperation, is forced to exaggeration and falsification."

The convention adopted resolutions pledging the retail merchants to "avoid all misstatements in advertising." It was also resolved that the association request the Senate and the House of Representatives to undertake tax revision before tariff revision.

Banking Corporation Seeks to Recover on Letter of Credit.

Suit to recover $379,176 from the Seaboard National Bank for refusal to honor a draft for that amount made on a letter of credit in a sugar deal between an American importer and a Brazilian exporter has been filed by the International Banking Corporation, with a branch at 60 Wall Street, it was learned yesterday.

The complaint, which has been filed in the United States District Court by Alexander & Green of 120 Broadway, alleges that in April, 1920, the Seaboard Bank delivered to the International Banking Corporation a letter agreeing to pay drafts drawn in accordance with certain conditions by the Compagnia Mercantil Panama, a Brazilian concern, covering the shipment from a Brazilian port not later than Sept. 30, 1920, of 1,000 tons of Brazilian white sugar. The importers were W. K. Seago Company, of New Orleans. It is further set forth that the plaintiff corporation received the draft, to which was attached a set of shipping documents for 999.96 tons of sugar, which, it is alleged, were shipped from Rio de Janeiro in the latter part of September, 1920.

The International Banking Corporation, according to the complaint, negotiated the draft for value, but when it was presented for payment the Seaboard Bank refused to honor it. As to the fact that the shipping documents covered only 999.96 tons of sugar, instead of 1,000, the complaint declares that an established custom in the sugar trade was to consider a shipment within 5 per cent. more or less of the amount specified a sufficient performance by the seller. The plaintiff asserts that all conditions referred to in the letter of credit were fulfilled and demands damages in the amount of the draft, interest and costs.

The Seaboard Bank, in its answer, admitted its refusal to pay the draft, but denied that all of the conditions had been performed.

Goods for Display Purposes.

As a means of preventing confusion, as well as shortages in the transfer of goods to and from the display department of a local department store, special forms are used as requisitions. One is a request for the goods wanted for display purposes, describing the quality and type of merchandise, and the other is a return blank. The two forms bear corresponding numbers, so that the items going to and coming out of a department may be checked to see that they agree. A feature of the blanks used is a portion which may be removed. This is signed in each case by the head of the department showing that the order has been properly received.

THE BUSINESS WORLD

Attention has been called previously to the new colors now appearing in women's underwear, and this development has reached a point where there is almost as much change in the shades of such garments as in outer apparel. A special reason is cited in the case of camisoles to be worn under transparent waists. Since the color shows through it must be the same fashionable shade, or so the manufacturers contend.

Cost Mark Legislation.

Cost mark legislation now before Congress is not being taken lightly by retail association representatives. Several bills of the sort are now awaiting action by the legislators, and merchants are urged to oppose the measures now as a precautionary measure. While it seems to be the general retail sentiment that the necessity of such legislation will be viewed as past by Congressmen, nevertheless the potential injury to the stores is regarded as serious. It is felt, also, that the danger period, so far as popular feeling on prices is concerned, has by no means entirely disappeared.

Raw Silk Consumption Increases.

The recovery of the domestic silk industry from the depression of the past several months is plainly illustrated by statistics showing the amount of silk that is going into consumption. During last month, according to figures based on reports of the Silk Association of America, more raw silks were used than during any previous month since last May, when the January consumption was exceeded only by about 150 bales. The figures in question show that last month's consumption of raw silk in this country totaled 22,176 bales, or a little over 2,000 bales more than were used during November and December last together.

Woolen Opening Draws Near.

Openings of overcoats will be generally made within two weeks, acording to mill agents. Some of the mills are in favor of delaying the new goods until the termination of the present labor trouble in the local clothing industry. However, if no prospect of this sort shows up within the next week, the mills promise to go ahead with their plans for the new season. At present the chief interest is taken in overcoatings and the principal item is the fancyback construction. The suiting outlook is not so bright, but there has been a fair bit of activity from out-of-town clothing markets. This improvement is expected to grow as time goes on, since many mills owe new goods.

Gray Goods Prices Easier.

The feature of yesterday's activities in the local gray goods market was the break in prices which marked some of the printcloth constructions and several of the clothing specialties. For delivery during the remainder of this month, 39-inch 80 square printcloths were sold at 10 cents, which was a decline of half a cent a yard from the level of the previous day. For shipment in February and March, 38½-inch 64-60s brought 7¾ cents. In the sheetings trades were put through in 40-inch, 2.85s at 9¼ cents, in 48-square, four yards, at 7½ cents, and in 5.50s at 5¾ cents, the last-mentioned construction being sold for delivery in March, April and May. In the clothing styles substantial declines were recorded in several constructions of sateens and twills.

The Union Suit Triumphs.

Orders placed for Fall underwear for men to date call for union suits in a part of the country which for some years was loath to take them up, and which only now seems really to be succumbing to their lure. Originally in high favor in the West, the popularity of the heavyweight union suit has continued to spread until orders from the heretofore conservative sections of the East, notably parts of New England, contain this season a preponderance of demand for this type of garment. At their present rate of losing ground, separate shirts and drawers will soon become almost as extinct as the famous dodo bird. The greater comfort and the lower cost are cited as the principal reasons for the growth of the demand for the union suit.

Defining an Art Object.

If the large stores could arrive at a definition of what constitutes an art object, according to a wholesaler of such goods, it would be very much to their advantage. At present there is a good deal of confusion, it seems, among buyers on the subject, when proper ownership of a certain article is claimed. It is explained that book ends, for instance, come within the jurisdiction of the stationery buyer, and yet they could well be sold as art objects in the art goods department. Leather novelties are often claimed by the leather goods department when they might properly belong among the art goods. Instances are common where one buyer exacts a pledge of secrecy concerning purchases about which there might be question. Petty jealousies are aroused, it is said, that might be saved through the definition sought.

Underwear Selling Well.

Most of the business that has been done so far on the lines of wool underwear recently opened in this market has been placed by the smaller jobbers, who apparently have depleted stocks. The individual orders taken have been small, but the purchases, in the aggregate, have been sizeable enough to indicate that no mistake was made in opening the season at this time. Sellers are strengthened in this belief by the increasing interest the larger wholesalers are showing in the offerings. In placing orders to date, the smaller wholesalers in this city and other Eastern markets have been more active than those in the West. Business has also come from the coal and iron districts of the South, but the "agricultural" wholesalers are apparently hampered by poor collections. The new prices are said to represent declines of about one-third from the opening figures of 1920.

THE WEEK'S PRICE TREND.

Most Marked Changes Were the Declines in Dairy Products.

Numerous downward revisions in foodstuffs, some of them—especially dairy products—very sharp, were easily the feature of the current week in the wholesale markets, as reflected by Dun's list of prices. Of the 92 changes for the week, 73 were declines. Last week, in 78 revisions, there were 57 declines.

The following table gives the minimum wholesale prices quoted on standard commodities selected from the list mentioned above. They are corrected to yesterday, and with them are given comparative prices for last week and the corresponding week a year ago:

*Nominal.

So marked was the downward tendency of prices during the week in the foodstuffs that the declines outnumbered the advances by nearly five to one. While in some of the articles quoted there was a recovery late in the week, only one important foodstuff—live beef—actually closed the week higher than it opened it. The other advances were in articles of minor importance. Flour was cheaper in this market, and declines were seen here also in lard, bacon and hams. At Chicago live beef advanced. Live sheep and hogs declined, as did short ribs, but mess pork was unchanged.

In the dairy products list record declines were established in eggs. Nearby fancy stock was quoted 13 cents a dozen lower than last week, and 25 cents a dozen lower than last year. The best Western eggs dropped 17½ cents for the week, and closed 19 cents below the corresponding 1920 level. The best butter fell off 3 cents a pound, and the State dairy grade, common to fair, dropped 2 cents. The best cheese was slightly lower.

Neither the fresh nor dried fruits showed change either way, but in the vegetables there were recorded a drop of 50 cents a barrel in potatoes and a break of 25 cents a barrel in rutabaga turnips. No. 7 Rio coffee dropped, but No. 4 Santos was unchanged. Teas did not change, nor did fine granulated sugar. The best raw sugar advanced, as did mace. Cloves and white pepper declined. Save for hay, which declined, and for straw, which did not change, all of the items quoted in the grains list advanced. Hemp also was quoted higher for the week.

In the combined list for drugs, chemicals, dyestuffs and oils, only two advances were shown, against twenty-three declines. Caustic soda, 76 per cent., and chemically pure acetanilid were the only listed advances. Among the declines was a further drop in Norwegian codliver oil, which is now $60 a barrel lower than at this time in 1920. The building materials produced declines in common Hudson River brick and Eastern spruce lath, and in the lumber changes were seen declines in cypress, basswood and Douglas fir. Resin, tar and turpentine all were lower.

The only changes in the hide list this week were declines in No. 1 buffs and No. 1 calfskins. Excepting for belting butts, which declined, no changes were seen in the quoted leathers. The score in the metals list was seven to four in favor of the declines. Pig iron was cheaper in some grades, as were steel bars, tank plates, beams and No. 28 black sheets. Foundry coke also declined. The advances took place in aluminium, electrolytic copper, lead and tin. Commercial whiting headed the declines in the paints, accompanied by lower prices for American zinc and F. P. R. S. zinc paints. Eastern crude rubber advanced, while Brazilian rubber declined. Basic grades of both Japanese and Chinese raw silks were quoted lower.

For the most part snap was lacking to the demand for textiles during the week, and lower prices in unfinished cottons were the rule. Heavy standard burlaps also slumped somewhat. No marked changes either way were seen in the woolens and silks.

Weather to Control Coal Prices.

Producers of hard coal still have all the business they can handle in the domestic sizes, Saward's Journal will say today, but the advancing season and the absence of a long period of cold weather have taken the urgency out of the demand to a large extent. This is reflected in the price of independent tonnage, which has been steadily on the down grade for weeks past, except for one or two slight and short-lived recoveries. To some extent the market will be a weather proposition from now on, but it is too late to expect much in the way of a revival. Bituminous mining operations have been curtailed to such an extent that the tonnage coming to tidewater is more in line with current requirements than was the case a short time ago.

SALE AND LEASE ON FIFTH AVENUE

WAS HELD AT $450,000

Mrs. J. Blair Leases 279 Fifth Avenue for Twenty-one Years at $500,000.

Two important realty transactions on Fifth Avenue in the heart of the shopping district, involving close to a million dollars, were closed yesterday, and a third deal for a similar amount is reported pending.

One of the deals involved the five-story commercial building 395 Fifth Avenue, which was sold by Klein & Jackson, operators, to an investing client of Stroock & Stroock, attorneys.

The building, which occupies a lot 18.4 by 100 feet, located 31 feet north of Thirty-sixth Street, is leased for a term of twenty-one years to the Betty Wales Costume Company, which occupies the entire structure.

Klein & Jackson, who bought the property about a year ago from the estate of George C. Boldt, held it at $450,000. Byrne & Bowman negotiated the sale. The same brokers recently sold the northeast corner of Thirty-sixth Street and Fifth Avenue, a plot of about 10,000 square feet, fronting 42 feet on Fifth Avenue, on which the Realty Managers, Inc., will erect a twelve-story building.

$500,000 Fifth Avenue Lease.

The second transaction was a lease for twenty-one years of the five-story building 279 Fifth Avenue by Mrs. J. Blair to Harry Rosenberg at an aggregate rental of about $500,000.

The property has been owned by Mrs. Blair for many years. Mr. Rosenberg will occupy part of the building for his business and make substantial improvements to it. F. & G. Pflomm were the brokers.

STORE WALL ST. BOMB CLUES

Just five days less than five months after the Wall Street explosion killed thirty-nine persons, injured hundreds and did great property damage, most of the physical evidence which the police had been able to accumulate was boxed and carted from Headquarters to the police warehouse, without an arrest having been made for the crime.

The investigation hinged on the wagon which was believed to have drawn the infernal contrivance to a point in front of the new United States Assay office where it exploded. Fragments of the wagon and the harness of the horse were taken to Headquarters and displayed in an improvised museum in the office of the Homicide Squad, in the hope that some one would give a clue to the origin of the vehicle. But no one did, nor were exhaustive efforts more fruitful to identify the horse through its shod hoofs, which were salvaged.

Another exhibit in the "museum" was a collection of iron slugs—pieces of common window weights—which rained death and injury about the neighborhood. The slugs and the harness were left at Headquarters, but the wagon parts were incased in seventeen boxes, loaded on a truck and hauled to the Worth Street warehouse.

The carrying of the boxes from Headquarters drew much curious attention and served to remind for the moment a number of habitués of the building that the explosion took place and that the crime still was unsolved.

AYS LABOR FINDS OPEN SHOP IS BEST

RESPECT ARBITER'S DECISION

Labor Gets Pay in Ohio City for What Is Done, Not What an Organization Decrees.

Labor unions in Cleveland, Ohio, have begun to realize that the open-shop principle is the only fair one to the employers, according to W. R. Bassett of the Miller, Franklin, Bassett Company, industrial engineers, who spoke yesterday afternoon on "Labor Relations" at the District conference of the Industrial Relations Association of America and the Executives' Club of New York at the Hotel McAlpin. He described the situation in the garment industry in Cleveland, where a permanent Board of Arbitration has been established, and said its decisions generally were observed.

Mr. Bassett said that in Cleveland a man was paid for what he did, and not what some organized body fixed as the sum to be paid to all in his particular line.

"One hears a good deal about the iron heel of capitalistic depotism sqeezing blood profit out of the poor, downtrodden worker," said the speaker, "but I have yet to discover a company that became really prosperous when operated on the lemon-squeezer principle."

Speaking as adviser in public relations for the Pennsylvania Railroad, Ivy Lee, publicity man, said that about 400,000 railroad workers were among the 3,200,000 men throughout the country shown by Government statistics to be out of employment.

Mr. Lee explained that the Standard Oil Company was in the habit of making its betterments and improvements in dull times. When prices were down and there was a shortage of employment because of slow demand, it put its surplus into permanent capital improvements, keeping as large a number of men at work as possible. It suspended this work in good times, when there was plenty of work for all. He said it was his belief that this was a sound business policy, but it was not applicable to the railroads because in dull times they must suspend improvement work to maintain operations.

Mr. Lee said that the railroads believed that present freight rates were higher than the traffic would bear. To meet their requirements, reductions by the railroads would have to be made along many lines. Unless conditions were remedied the railroads, he said, would be forced into Government ownership.

INDEPENDENT STEEL CUT HITS 40,000 WORKERS

Twenty Per Cent. Reduction Made in Youngstown District—Pittsburgh Not Affected.

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, Feb. 11.—A 20 per cent. reduction in wages for independent steel plants of the Mahoning Valley, Ohio, and the Shenango Valley, Pennsylvania, was announced today, effective Feb. 16. The reduction affects more than 40,000 men.

The cut includes all salaried and tonnage employes, except those in the sheet mills, in which the union sliding scale, based on selling prices, is observed. Common labor is reduced from 46 to 37 cents an hour, but will be paid time and a half for overtime.

Cities affected include Youngstown, East Youngstown, Struthers, Girard, Niles, Warren, Newton Falls, Ohio, and Sharon, Farrell and other towns from Leetonia to Middlesex in the Shenango Valley.

The Brierhill Steel Company here posted notices of the reduction this afternoon and other companies announced that they would follow suit. The companies include the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company, Republic Iron and Steel Company, Trumbull Steel Company and Sharon Steel Hoop Company.

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 11.—Executives of the leading independent steel interests here, when informed of the wage reduction in the independent mills of the Youngstown district, expressed the opinion that similar action would not be taken in Pittsburgh at this time.

They said the general inclination, now that prices were on the same basis as those of the United States Steel Corporation, was also to maintain wages as that concern was doing. Reductions in the independent mills here have not been of the rate of pay, but rather of the number of working hours, particularly the cutting off of all overtime above eight hours, which has been paid for at the rate of time and one-half.

DENY ANTI-UNION CHARGES.

Erectors' Association Says Ironworkers Have "Criminal Record."

Walter Drew, counsel for the National Erectors' Association, replied yesterday to the National Catholic War Council denying that structural iron and steel firms were seeking to cripple or destroy labor unions. Mr. Drew quoted from a number of documents to prove that the association had fought for the open shop but had not discriminated against union men. The association fought Brindell's attempt to force the "closed shop" and officially voted in favor of the policy of employing a "substantial percentage" of non-union men.

"When the attacks of the Brindell combine ceased," he continued, "and other trades returned to work with the open-shop iron workers, union iron workers returned to work for members of the Iron League and today constitute a large majority of their employes.

"The Iron League also has always dealt with unions other than the iron workers on a union basis. Its refusal to deal with the iron workers is due to the criminal record and troublesome character of that organization. The iron contractors do not believe it is in the interest of good unionism or of public policy for employers to deal with and to recognize bad unions. They believe that a union as a condition of collective bargaining should present itself as a desirable contracting agent and be held to the same standards as are parties to contracts in other walks of life.

"As to the Steel Corporation, it has never been represented at meetings of the association or directed the association's policy in any way."

Mr. Drew denied that discrimination had ever been practiced in the sale of manufactured steel and iron products to prevent "closed shop" firms from getting building materials.

B.R.T. SHOPS TO SLOW DOWN

Manager Says This Will Not Affect Safety of Operation.

The inspection shops of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit system will be operated only five days a week instead of six until April 1 and the general repair shops will be closed for one week this month and one week next. Lindley M. Garrison, receiver of the B. R. T. Company, explained yesterday that work which had accumulated during the strike was now completed and that it was deemed better to curtail the hours than to lay off a considerable number of men.

Alfred M. Barrett, Public Service Commissioner, wrote to W. B. Menden, general manager of the company, asking him whether the purpose of the order was "to economize and to avoid laying off men" and if provision had been made for necessary repairs to equipment.

"Our engineers state that practically all available subway and elevated cars are needed by the New York Consolidated Railroad Company every day," the letter said, "and considering the present condition of this equipment it is possible that any cessation of repair work will cause further deterioration."

Mr. Menden replied that conditions in the shops had returned to normal and that the proposed curtailment would not affect the safety of operation.

FOR CO-OPERATIVE SELLING.

Farmers Plan to End Middleman, Congress in Cleveland Is Told.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Feb. 11.—Whether farmers engaged in co-operative marketing shall bring their produce to the city gates and allow consumers' organizations to make distribution or whether they shall open stores in the cities for the sale of their produce was discussed by G. A. Gustafson of Nebraska, Chairman of the All-American Co-operative Congress, today.

Gustafson said farmers' organizations in many States were now prepared to do co-operative selling.

He declared it was up to the city consumers whether they, too, would organize for co-operative buying. If they do not, he said, the farmers would open stores in the cities. He said the farmers "are determined the middleman shall be eliminated."

It is expected that the congress will recommend the establishment of courses in co-operative buying and selling in the State universities. Legislation may also be recommended permitting the establishment of credit unions or "people's banks," enlisting farmers and workers in cities, to secure credit in time of stress.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Feb. 11.—Nearly 100 representatives of farming, banking and business interests met here today to form a State-wide marketing organization. The project includes a proposal for the erection of cold-storage plants in strategic centres, with the general plan in view of having New Hampshire farm products go to feed New Hampshire people.

An appraisal filed in the Surrogate's office here yesterday fixed the value of the estate of the late Charles P. Huntington, architect, at a net total of $40,815.

His wife, Eleanor, if she had survived him, was to have received practically all of the estate, but she died first. Other bequests included one of $5,000 to his daughter, Vivienne Maude, and the residue to "my former wife, Mary Maude Huntington."

Mr. Huntington, who died Aug. 15, 1919, was Secretary of the Board of Directors of the Hispanic Society of America and the architect of all of its buildings and of the "Spanish Centre," at Broadway and 156th Street.

RAISING OF BIDS LAID TO HETTRICK

ONE INCREASE OF $6,000

John C. Aisenbrey, Hettrick's law clerk, who was made Recording Secretary of the Master Plumbers' Association, was the witness through whom Kenneth Spence, for the prosecution, sought to bring out Hettrick's method of awarding contracts. Aisenbrey identified Hettrick's handwriting on memorandum slips from the lawyer's office. One such slip related to a building operation for the Columbia Trust Company in Fifth Avenue, of which Clough-Borne & Co. were the contractors. The memorandum showed that on May 5 last Lassette & Murphy, plumbing contractors, had submitted a bid of $44,438. In the handwriting of Hettrick, which was identified by Aisenbrey, the bid was raised $6,000, and on May 12 sent out at that figure.

The plumbing contract for this job subsequently went to John McMillan on a cost plus basis, it was developed. It is the contention of the prosecution that Hettrick increased bids in order for the contracts to go to certain individuals or to keep outsiders from getting the work.

In another case, a bid of $7,000 was submitted by Conklin and Klute for plumbing on a job for Bloomingdale Brothers. The memorandum slip disclosed that the ciphers had been scratched out and 500 written over them by Hettrick, as admitted by the witness. Also on the memorandum the following words were stamped:

"Your estimate as revised by adjuster found to be correct." This contract went to Harkness B. Devere, whose bid was $7,425.

Aisenbrey was interrogated at length regarding his part in the preparation of the code of practice. He was not sure whether Hettrick dictated its contents to him, but he recalled taking the manuscript to the printer. The letter from the Master Plumbers' Association notifying him of his appointment as Recording Secretary, which was read into the evidence, directed him to accept the services of Hettrick as counsel.

The outstanding feature of the morning session was the request made by Robert Elder of counsel for Hettrick that the members of the jury be supplied with copies of Hettrick's code of practice. Justice McAvoy allowed his request.

George E. Gibson, President of the George E. Gibson Company, testified that some time last year the margin of gross profit was fixed at 24 per cent. at a meeting of the Master Plumbers' Association. Of this amount 10 per cent. was charged to overhead, 10 per cent. for profit and 4 per cent. for insurance, according to the witness.

Under cross-examination by Martin Conboy, Gibson said he thought the association, operating under the code, was legal. Before the code was formed conditions in the plumbing business were chaotic, he declared.

Competition was so keen that plumbers were many times unfair to themselves, and some sort of an arrangement was needed to prevent jockeying of contracts, Gibson said. He described how he came to join the code of practice circle. Walter M. Clough of Clough, Bourne & Co. was also a witness yesterday. The trial will be continued on Monday.

IDLENESS GROWS IN STATE.

Unemployment in Factories Increased 8 Per Cent. in January.

ALBANY, Feb. 11.—Unemployment in factories in New York State shows a further increase of 8 per cent. for January last, according to a statement from the State Industrial Commission, based on a preliminary analysis of 1,596 manufacturers' reports. This is a reduction in employment since March of last year of 26 per cent. The volume of employment in January, 1921, however, was still 1 per cent. greater than in January, 1915.

The largest reduction in employment appears in the cotton and knit goods industry, where the decrease since last April is 74 per cent. Decreases of 50 per cent. or more have occurred in the working forces of firearms and cutlery, automobiles and accessories, fur goods, buttons and brushes and cotton goods industries.

There was an increase in the employment of workers in cotton goods of 20 per cent. from December to January, due to a part reopening of a few mills which were closed in the preceding months. Other increases were 9 per cent. in men's clothing, 3 per cent. in shipbuilding, 2 per cent. in women's clothing and 1 per cent. in laundering.

TO AID MRS. GARDINER IN HUNT FOR $360,000

Surrogate Robert S. Pelletreau of Suffolk County yesterday in the office of the New York Life Insurance and Trust Company, 52 Wall Street, began sifting the charge of Mrs. Nora L. Gardiner that the estate of her husband, Robert Alexander Gardiner, late of Easthampton, L. I., and the Hotel Gotham, of which the trust company is executor, had suffered a mysterious loss of securities worth $360,000. The appraised valuation of the estate was $1,560,000.

Gardiner, his brother David, of West Islip, L. I., and a sister each inherited one-third of their mother's estate of about $4,000,000. Grenville Emmet, counsel for the trust company, expressed the opinion that Mrs. Gardiner in her petition had overestimated the value of that estate $1,000,000, thereby arriving at the conclusion that her husband's fortune was about $360,000 more than it really was.

Mrs. Gardiner, who wanted to make "a general statement," provided the Surrogate would exclude reporters, which he refused to do, interpolated a number of questions regarding a tin dispatch box. This David Gardiner denied ever having seen, asserting that he doubted that his brother, a competent business man, would have kept valuable papers in any such place.
